

This is a digital copy of a book that was preserved for generations on library shelves before it was carefully scanned by Google as part of a project to make the world's books discoverable online.

It has survived long enough for the copyright to expire and the book to enter the public domain. A public domain book is one that was never subject to copyright or whose legal copyright term has expired. Whether a book is in the public domain may vary country to country. Public domain books are our gateways to the past, representing a wealth of history, culture and knowledge that's often difficult to discover.

Marks, notations and other marginalia present in the original volume will appear in this file - a reminder of this book's long journey from the publisher to a library and finally to you.

In some few instances, where unimportant typographical errors had occurred in the sessions acts, particularly in those of 1802 and 1803, they have been corrected by a reference to the Inrolled Bills.

The variations above alluded to are the following:

In some instances, typographical error in the sessions acts have been corrected by a reference to the Inrolled Bills.

PREFACE.

IN a government emanating from the people, whose will, expressed in the form of laws, is the only sovereign, it must necessarily follow, that those laws will be amendable. If a doubt exist with respect to the meaning of a statute, which cannot be removed by the judges according to settled rules of interpretation, or, if it is defective, the explanation in the one case, or the amendment in the other, can only be made by the legislative authority, vested in the representatives of the people. Not so, in a despotic government, where the will of the prince, supplies the defect of the law, and his dictum is regarded as the law itself. Yet, strange as it may appear, how often have we heard the code of Frederick of Prussia extolled as a model worthy of imitation! How often has a wish been expressed by some of those living under our free government, that our code of laws should be assimilated to his! Is there a man who, upon serious reflection, would consent to give up his liberty with his volumes of laws, and become a slave that he might be governed by a concise code? Would he be willing to exchange the right of self-government for a despotism? Such would be the effect of yielding to a system of legislation which substitutes the will of an individual for the voice of the people.

The spirit of liberty which caused thousands of our ancestors to migrate to this western world, was very early manifested in their laws. And, notwithstanding the restrictions imposed by the British government on the colonial legislatures, and the severe conflicts which frequently arose, respecting the prerogative of the king of England, and the rights of the people of America, in matters of self-government, the legislature of Virginia, lost no opportunity in providing a code of laws adapted to the situation of the country.

From the year 1619, when the first legislature met in Virginia, to the present day, our laws have been various and complicated. This produced the necessity of having frequent revisals; some of which, being made before any printing presses were introduced in America, have remained till this day in manuscript. Those which are printed are, Purvis's collection, published in London, (supposed in the year 1682,) and the editions of 1733, 1752, 1769, 1785, 1794, and 1803. In some of those collections all the acts relating to the same subject were consolidated into single acts, by a committee of revisors, and re-enacted by the legislature: but in others, it was a mere compilation of the acts of a public nature then in force.

The last revisal of our laws, came down to the end of the session of 1801; since which period, a variety of public acts of great importance have been passed. The form in the present collection, ONE HUNDRED AND THIRTY-TWO CHAPTERS, which are dispersed through the different sessions acts. When it is considered, that upwards of one thousand magistrates in Virginia, appointed within the last few years, have been but partially furnished with those sessions acts, and that few of them have the aid of a complete and general INDEX, the utility and even necessity of this compilation must be obvious.

But the continuation of the Revised Code, so far as it respects a collection of the acts of a public and permanent nature, is far from being the most valuable part of the publication. The appendices at the end of the volume, it is believed, will be found to contain matter of equal importance with that in the body of the work; and such additional matter, is the more valuable, as it has hitherto been of more difficult access.

Laws relating to subjects, in which either the state or a great proportion of its citizens have an interest, should form a part of every revisal. This rule was so strictly observed in all the editions of our laws prior to that of 1794, that even the acts concerning particular rivers, with many others, on subjects merely local, were inserted. The laws, in this collection, which come within the general principle just laid down, are those FOR THE ESTABLISHMENT OF THE JAMES RIVER, POTOWMAC, APPOMATTOX, AND DISMAL SWAMP CANAL COMPANIES, in all of which, the state holds a number of shares; those concerning the NORTHERN NECK, (a considerable portion of the state, and part of the laws relating to which were regularly inserted in the editions of 1752, 1769, 1785, and 1794, but all those passed since 1785 were omitted;) those AUTHORISING THE ESTABLISHMENT OF TURNPIKE ROADS, AND THE ERECTION OF TOLL BRIDGES; CONCERNING THE MUTUAL ASSURANCE SOCIETY AGAINST FIRE ON BUILDINGS; RELATING TO WASTE AND UNAPPROPRIATED LANDS ON THE EASTERN AND WESTERN WATERS; ESTABLISHING FERRIES; and CONCERNING THE PUBLIC GUARD; all of which, are here digested and arranged under their respective heads. To these are added, A LIST OF TITLES OF PRIVATE AND LOCAL ACTS, passed since the October session of 1783; a TABLE OF FINES, FORFEITURES, PENALTIES AND AMERCEMENTS, designating to whose use respectively appropriated; and a collection of acts of a general nature OMITTED in former editions.

It may at first view excite some degree of surprize, that so many acts and resolutions, of a public and permanent nature, should have been omitted in the editions of 1794, and 1803; but the history of those revisals will readily account for it. In the session of 1789, (a) the legislature passed an act, providing for a new edition of the laws of this commonwealth, which was amended at the next session, (b.) A difference of opinion having arisen among the revisors as to the objects of the legislature with respect to one branch of their duty, a resolution was adopted at the session of 1791, declaring that it was the intention of the legislature, in assigning that particular duty to the revisors, "that the several laws existing on the same subject should be consolidated into single bills, but that no new matter should be introduced into the system." (c.) In conformity with this construction, the revisors digested a code of laws, introducing under one title the several acts relating to the same subject. These were prepared in the form of bills, and reported to the legislature, in two volumes, at their session of 1792. The subject of the revisal was taken up during the same session; and several of the bills, (some with amendments, and some without,) were re-enacted into laws. But the legislature, not having time to go through the whole of the bills as reported by the revisors, directed that certain laws formerly enacted should be published in the Revised Code, by their specific titles. (d.) The consequence of which was, that nothing could be inserted in those acts, when republished in the Revised Code, but what before existed in them, under the titles by which they were particularly directed to be published, though some parts had been repealed by subsequent acts, under different titles; and thus all the matter collected by the revisors, from various other acts on the same subjects, was omitted. For example: the act "concerning election of members of General Assembly," was one of those directed to be published by its title. It is accordingly inserted in the Revised Code, as it passed in the year 1785, (e.) By the 22nd sect. of that act, it is declared, that "Every act of the General Assembly, hereafter to be made, shall commence and

" be in force from the passing thereof, unless in the act itself another day for the commencement thereof be particularly mentioned; and, in the former case, the day of passing thereof, shall be noted next after the title." In 1789, (f) an act passed, the 2nd section of which, declares, that, " Every act passed during any stated annual session, shall commence in force on the first day of March, then next ensuing, unless, in the act itself, another day be particularly mentioned for the commencement thereof." The committee of revisors reported a bill, the title of which, was, " A Bill concerning election of members of General Assembly; AND DECLARING WHEN ACTS OF ASSEMBLY SHALL COMMENCE IN FORCE." (g.) In this bill, they retained such parts of the act of 1785 as were in force, and particularly substituted the 2nd section of the act of 1789 for the 22nd section of the act of 1785. (h.) But when the act of 1785 was republished from its title, the 22nd section was, of course, retained, and the 2nd section of the act of 1789 rejected. The above is but one, among many instances, in which laws in force were omitted in the Revised Code, from the peculiar mode of publication.

Another circumstance which produced many omissions was this: The legislature, in providing for a republication of the laws by the act of 1792, (i) directed that the Declaration of Rights, and Constitution of this Commonwealth, should be prefixed to the Code; that certain acts should be published from their titles; and that these, together with the laws, as revised and enacted during that session, should be printed; but, with respect to the acts of a public nature originally passed at the session of 1792, the law was silent. This edition was not printed till the year 1794; and, though it purported to contain all the public acts from 1792, to 1794, inclusively, yet it will be found, that some of those which, for the first time, passed at the session of 1792, were omitted, as well as others of 1793, and 1794. An act of 1792, To amend " An act authorising the Executive to direct the sheriffs to sell certain lands the property of the commonwealth," and another, " To provide more effectually for the collection of the public taxes in certain cases," which were omitted in the edition of 1794, were very properly introduced into the appendix to that of 1803, (k.) But the acts for " arranging the counties into districts, to choose representatives to congress;" " repealing the act providing a sinking fund for the gradual redemption of the public debt;" " repealing so much of a former law as prohibited the sale of goods, wares and merchandizes, at public vendue;" and " for appointing electors to choose a President and Vice President of the United States," were omitted in both editions. They are therefore inserted in this, (l.) Until the act of 1792, a law was in force which prohibited, under severe penalties, the sale of goods at auction.—It is only by the 2nd section of the act of the same session, for appointing electors to choose a President and Vice President of the United States, that the time is positively fixed for the people to meet, to vote for electors; the act of 1803, (m) only declaring, that the persons qualified to vote for electors, under the " act for appointing electors to choose a President and Vice President of the United States," shall each hereafter vote for twenty-four electors, without saying at what time they are to meet for that purpose.

The edition of 1803 contained all the laws in that of 1794; and continued down the public acts to the end of the session of 1801; besides some acts of a public nature inserted in the appendix.

(f) See Appendix No. IX. p. (104.) sect. 2.—(g) See Revised Bills, 1792, vol. I. p. 7.—(h) Ibid. sect. 25. p. 12.—(i) See Revised Code, vol. I. ch. 149, p. 292, s. 1, 4.—(k) See Revised Code, vol. I. Appendix, ch. 5, p. 443, and ch. 6, p. 454.—(l) See Appendix No. IX. p. (114.) (118.)—(m) See ch. 31, p. 31, of this vol.

It would be useless here to enumerate all the acts of a public nature which have been omitted in the late revisals, as an inspection of Appendix No. IX. to this volume will exhibit them at one view. Two of those acts are, however, of such general importance, that it is deemed proper to notice them more particularly. By an act passed in 1794, entitled, "An act to amend the act prescribing the mode of ascertaining the taxable property within this commonwealth, and of collecting the public revenue," (n) there was a legislative exposition of the ~~edit~~ ^{edition} of the same act, as it passed in 1792, (o) by which, it was declared, that no land should be deemed forfeited for the non-payment of taxes, unless the returns and notices prescribed by the 34th section of the same law had been made and given. In 1796, another act passed, declaring, that "all entries thereafter made shall become void, unless surveyed within two years after their date, and the lands subject to another location," (p.) Both of these acts were omitted.

Among the laws inserted under the title of "OMITTED ACTS," there are some which have been superseded by acts subsequently passed; but still, as rights have accrued under them, and they are of general concern, it was deemed expedient to retain them. Such are all the laws, relating to the sale of lands for the non-payment of taxes.

The collecting under one head the several laws concerning waste and unappropriated lands on the Eastern and Western waters will prevent the necessity of a laborious examination into this intricate branch of our statutes, whenever it may be necessary to recur to it.

A list of titles of private and local acts (which had never been omitted till the edition of 1794,) is given, to aid the researches of those who may have occasion to refer to a law not to be found in any collection of public acts.

But the most difficult, and, it is presumed, not the least useful, part of the compilation, has been the TABLE OF FINES, FORFEITURES, PENALTIES AND AMERCEMENTS, designating to what uses respectively appropriated. A collection of this kind has long been much wanted: for, while it will have a tendency to guard the people against incurring the penalties of the law, it will direct the right application of fines, whenever they shall be imposed. If the value of this part of the work might be estimated by the time which it has taken to prepare it, the compiler would rate it at very little short of the price of the whole book.

The whole of this volume, according to the ^{original} plan, had been printed off before the meeting of the last legislature; but the publication was suspended, in order to introduce the acts of the last session of the General Assembly; since which, some additional heads have been inserted; particularly the LIST OF TITLES OF PRIVATE AND LOCAL ACTS. To the whole, is subjoined, a very copious Index, referring to the section as well as the page; in the compilation of which, much time and labour have been bestowed, as may readily be inferred from the circumstance of its containing EIGHTY EIGHT pages.

The publisher having embarked a large capital in this work, his own interest, as well as the importunities of the public, would have induced him to complete it as early as possible. If the publication has been delayed longer than was originally contemplated, he feels confident, that more than an adequate compensation will be afforded by the additional matter contained in the volume.

2. Be it enacted and declared by the General Assembly of this Commonwealth, That every fine, forfeiture and penalty imposed, declared, inflicted or incurred, or which may be imposed, declared inflicted or incurred, for the use of the commonwealth, under any act, or part or parts of any act heretofore made, or under this act, or any act which shall or may hereafter be made, for the prevention or discouragement of any kind of unlawful gaming, or for the suppression thereof, shall and may be recovered in any court of record in this commonwealth, upon presentment or indictment by a grand jury, or upon information filed by the attorney for the commonwealth, in any such court, or by action of debt, bill, plaint, or any other legal ways or means whatsoever; and in every such case, no exception shall be admitted or sustained, for any defect or want of form in any presentment, indictment, information or other suit or action whatsoever, which may be brought or instituted on behalf of the commonwealth, or of any person or persons entitled to sue for the same, either on his own behalf, or on the behalf of such person and the commonwealth, but the court before whom any such presentment, indictment, information, suit or action, shall be brought, shall proceed to give judgment according to the very right of the case, any former law, custom or usage to the contrary notwithstanding.

And for the prevention of unnecessary delays, in the prosecution of offenders, Be it further enacted, That where any presentment or indictment authorised by this or any other act, shall be made by a grand jury, the court wherein the same shall be made, shall immediately order the proper process to bring the offender before them, returnable with all convenient expedition; which process may be directed to the sheriff or other officer, of any county or corporation within this commonwealth, where the offender or offenders may be found, and such sheriff or other officer to whom the same shall be directed, is hereby empowered and required to execute the same, and make return thereof to the court from which it issued; and if the defendant being duly summoned, shall fail to appear, and plead to such presentment or indictment immediately, the court shall forthwith proceed to give judgment against him in the same manner as if he had appeared and confessed the charge, or denying it, had been found guilty by the verdict of a jury, and may award execution against him accordingly; but if he shall appear, and plead not guilty to the presentment or indictment, the court shall without delay proceed to the trial, and render judgment according to the very right of the case as herein before directed; and where upon any rule to shew cause why an information should not be filed by the attorney for the commonwealth, the defendant shall fail to appear and shew cause, pursuant to the notice duly given him, or left at his usual place of abode, in every such case, if the information be thereafter filed, the court may on any day after the day of shewing cause, proceed to give judgment upon such information, in the same manner, as upon a presentment or indictment by a grand jury: Provided nevertheless, That if the offender against whom any judgment may be rendered, for want of his appearing to answer the presentment or indictment, or to shew cause against the filing the information, shall at any time during the same term, appear, and surrender himself in custody, or give bail, being ruled so to do by the court, for his appearance when required, and plead not guilty to the presentment, indictment or information, it shall be lawful for the court in every such case, to set aside the judgment against him, and thereupon the court shall without delay, proceed to the trial in the same manner as if he had appeared and pleaded thereto in the first instance, and shall render judgment thereupon according to the very right of the case, without regard to any exception that may be alledged against it.

8. And be it further enacted, That the superior courts of record shall have the same power of revoking the licenses of tavern keepers in any case of delinquency in permitting unlawful gaming in their houses or taverns, as the county and corporation courts now possess.

CHAP. XVIII.

*An Act to impose taxes for the support of Government.

[Passed January 28, 1803.]

1. BE it enacted by the General Assembly, That the public taxes for the year one thousand eight hundred and two, shall be Taxes imposed.

* The taxes imposed by this act were first established, in the session of 1798. They have continued nearly the same ever since; and the law imposing them was re-enacted in the sessions of 1799, 1800, 1801, 1802, and 1803, with very little variation either in the form or substance, though many of its provisions, as to the collection of the taxes, might easily have been made permanent. In the session of 1804, a collision took place between the senate and house of delegates, with respect to the constitutional right of the former to amend money bills. The following is a short sketch of their proceedings:—The house of delegates passed a bill “To impose taxes for the support of government,” which was copied verbatim from the revenue act of the preceding year; (see journal of the house of delegates of 1804, page 99.) This bill was rejected by the senate, without assigning any reason, at the time, for its rejection. (Journal of the senate, 1804, page 70.) It having been suggested that the cause of the senate’s rejecting the bill was, that it incorporated subjects which related to the collection of the revenue, and was not confined to the mere imposition of taxes, the house of delegates separated the subject matter of the first mentioned bill, and passed two other bills, one under the same title with the first, which comprehended the whole of it to the end of the fifth section, as it had before passed the house of delegates this session and the legislature the preceding year, (acts of 1803, ch. 3, pa. 9; the other entitled “An act for the more effectual collection of taxes,” which included the residue of the first mentioned bill. (Journ. of the house of delegates, pa. 107.) The second bill sent up to the senate, entitled “An act to impose taxes for the support of government,” was also rejected by them; upon which they entered into several resolutions declaring their constitutional power of amending every bill originating in the house of delegates, except such as impose taxes only; and because this bill comprehended different subjects, and thereby deprived the senate of their constitutional right to amend such parts as did not relate to the imposition of taxes, it was unanimously rejected by them. (Journ. sen. page 77.) These resolutions were opposed by others entered into by the house of delegates, denying the constitutional power conferred for by the senate. (Journal of the house of delegates, page 113.) Another bill was introduced into the house of delegates, “Providing for the support of government, by the imposition of taxes,” which included the mere laying of the taxes, (Journal of the house of delegates, page 111;) which was passed by the senate. (Journ. sen. page 81.) Under the title of the bill “For the more effectual collection of taxes,” sent up by the house of delegates with the second bill “To impose taxes for the support of government,” the senate proposed as amendments such parts of the last mentioned bill, as had any relation to the collection of the taxes. (Journ. sen. page 82.) When this bill with the proposed amendments of the senate was taken up in the house of delegates, it was immediately rejected without reading it; the house having previously determined that the senate did not possess a constitutional power to amend any bill providing for the collection of the taxes. (Journal of the house of delegates, page 113.) The senate adhered to their amendments, (Journ. sen. page 84) and the house of delegates adhered to their disagreement. (Journal of the house of delegates, page 114.) Thus the bill died a parliamentary death. The house of delegates afterwards passed another bill “To provide more effectually for the collection of the taxes, which included the subject matter of the first bill, nearly under that title, together with such amendments as the senate had proposed. (Journal of the house of delegates, page 114.) This bill was passed by the senate; their committee stating that it contained nothing more than the substance of the bill “For the more effectual collection of the taxes,” as amended by them, and that they discovered no defects in it, and they should insist on the right of the senate to amend it. (Journ. sen. page 85.) See a very able report drawn up by Mr. Jefferson in the October session, 1777, on the constitutional right of the two houses with respect to money bills.

CHAP. XIX.

*An Act to appropriate the Public Revenue, and for other purposes.

[Passed January 28, 1803.]

1. BE it enacted by the General Assembly, That the taxes and arrearages of taxes due prior to the year one thousand seven hundred and ninety-eight, and all other branches of the public revenue, which arise to the commonwealth, prior to the first day of January one thousand eight hundred and four, shall constitute a general fund, and be appropriated in the following manner: for the payment of the expenses of the general assembly, at their next session, forty-two thousand dollars; for the officers of civil government, fifty-eight thousand dollars; for officers of militia, four thousand five hundred dollars; for expenses of examinations and trials of criminals, in the county and district courts, twenty thousand dollars; for guards employed over the district and county jails, five thousand dollars; for slaves executed, eight thousand five hundred dollars; for slaves transported, four thousand dollars; for the lunatic hospital in the city of Williamsburg, five thousand five hundred dollars;

General fund.

Appropriation.

* Acts to appropriate the public revenue are varied almost every session according to the exigencies of the government. It is worthy of remark, however, that the restrictions upon the discretion of the executive as to the appropriation of the contingent fund, and the surplus of other funds, scarcely any two laws speak the same language. In the present act there is a proviso, that the sum appropriated for the contingent expenses of government should not include such expenses as may be incurred in repelling invasions and suppressing insurrections, and such other cases as may result from unexpected necessity; a provision which is not to be found in any subsequent appropriation law. In the session of 1803, (chap. 2, sec. 4, page 17,) the executive were expressly authorised to supply the deficiency of one fund appropriated, from the surplus of others. In 1804, (chap. 3, sec. 2, page 5) this power is expressly taken away. In the act of 1805, (chapter 2, page 4,) no restriction on the discretion of the executive is inserted. During the session of 1805, a severe conflict arose between the two houses, respecting the constitutional power of the senate to amend an appropriation bill. The house of delegates passed a bill "To appropriate the public revenue," which contained a clause restraining the executive from applying the surplus of one fund to make good the deficiency of another. The senate proposed several amendments, one of which was to limit the objects for which the executive might supply the deficiency of one fund from the surplus of another. (Journ. sen. 1805, page 85.) When the amendments of the senate were taken up by the house of delegates, they entered into a resolution declaring that an appropriation bill was a money bill, which, by the constitution, the senate had no power to amend, and immediately afterwards, unanimously rejected the amendments. (Journal of the house of delegates, pages 104, 105.) The senate unanimously adopted a counter-resolution, asserting that a money bill was no other than a bill providing for the imposition of taxes, which alone they were restrained from amending by the eighth section of the constitution, and contended that they had uniformly exercised the power of amending bills for the collection and appropriation of the revenue, whenever it was deemed necessary. (Journ. sen. page 87.) The senate then insisted upon their amendments, and neither house receding, the bill was finally lost. Another bill was afterwards brought into the house of delegates, under the same title, and containing nearly the provisions insisted upon by the senate, in their amendments, (Journal of the house of delegates, page 106,) which passed the senate, without opposition. (Journ. sen. page 90.) A similar conflict took place between the two houses in the same session, on the bill "To provide more effectually for the collection of taxes," which originated nearly in the same way.

3. Every inspector shall stow away and secure at night, every hogshead of tobacco by him inspected during the day, under the penalty of ten dollars for every hogshead he shall fail or neglect to stow away and secure; and shall moreover be liable to the action of the proprietor of such tobacco, for all damages accruing thereto by his negligence.

4. And be it further enacted, That it shall be the duty of the inspectors to prize and cooper up all refused tobacco which the owner shall not choose to have picked, to weigh the same, and mark the gross weight on each cask, and take care of and deliver the same to the owner, or to his order, for which the said inspectors may demand and receive fifty cents for every hogshead so delivered. And for the prevention of frauds, the inspectors shall grant a manifest for every hogshead of tobacco so delivered; and if any person shall sell refused tobacco, or manufacture the same without such manifest, he shall forfeit and pay the sum of one hundred dollars, for each hogshead so sold or manufactured: But it may be lawful for any person, having a hogshead of tobacco refused, to carry the same, with the manifest, to any other warehouse, and the inspectors on viewing the tobacco, if they esteem it of good quality, first destroying the manifest, may grant a receipt as is now directed by law for the same, or shall grant another manifest, for which fifty cents shall be paid, expressing the review, and that it was the second time refused; after which the person shall not be permitted to carry the tobacco to any other warehouse for reinspection, but may either have the same picked, or sell it as by this law directed.

The duty of the commissioners appointed under the first section of the act, entitled, "An act concerning the inspection of tobacco," passed on the twenty-sixth day of December, one thousand seven hundred and ninety-six, shall not be construed to extend to any repairs or additions to be made to their several warehouses, but they shall, from time to time, report to their several county courts, the condition of the warehouses under their charge, and the quantity of tobacco they are capable of containing; and thereupon such court shall take such steps, and make such orders in relation thereto, as they might or could have taken or made previous to the passage of the said act: Provided nevertheless, That it shall still continue to be the duty of the said commissioners, to provide at the said warehouses such conveniences, as by the laws now in force are to be provided at the public expense, and to have the same repaired when it shall be necessary. And whereas, the appointment of commissioners is directed by the last mentioned act to be made by the several county courts, in the months of August or September only, in every year, which duty it has been represented, the said courts have sometimes failed to perform in those months, and doubts have arisen whether they are authorised to make such appointments at any other court thereafter holden:

CHAP. II.

An Act for vesting in George Washington, Esquire, a certain Interest in the Companies established for opening and extending the Navigation of Potowmac and James Rivers.

[Sessions acts of October, 1784, ch. 83, pa. 26.]

1. WHEREAS it is the desire of the representatives of this commonwealth to embrace every suitable occasion of testifying their sense of the unexampled merits of George Washington, Esquire, towards his country ; and it is their wish in particular that those great works for its improvement, which, both as springing from the liberty which he has been so instrumental in establishing, and, as encouraged by his patronage, will be durable monuments of his glory may be made monuments also of the gratitude of his country :

2. BE it enacted by the General Assembly, That the treasurer be directed, in addition to the subscriptions he is already authorised to make to the respective undertakings for opening the navigations of Potowmac and James Rivers, to subscribe to the amount of fifty shares to the former, and a hundred shares to the latter, to be paid in like manner with the subscriptions above-mentioned ; and that the shares so subscribed, be, and the same are hereby vested in George Washington, Esquire, his heirs and assigns, forever, in as effectual a manner as if the subscriptions had been made by himself or by his attorney.

CHAP. III.

An Act to amend the Act, entitled, " An Act for vesting in George Washington, Esquire, a certain Interest in the companies established for opening and extending the navigation of James and Potowmack rivers."

[Sessions acts of 1785, ch. 11, pa. 12.]

1. WHEREAS by an act, entitled, " An act for vesting in George Washington, Esquire, a certain interest in the companies established for opening and extending the navigation of James and Potowmac rivers," and reciting, " that whereas it is the desire of the representatives of this commonwealth to embrace every suitable occasion of testifying their sense of the unexampled merits of George Washington, esquire, towards his country ; and it is their wish in particular, that those great works for its improvement, which, both as springing from the liberty which he has been so instrumental in establishing, and as encouraged by his patronage, will be durable monuments of his glory, may be made monuments also of the gratitude of his country : " It is enacted, " That the treasurer be directed in addition to the subscriptions he is already authorised to make to the respective undertakings for opening the navigations of Potowmac and James rivers, to subscribe to the amount of fifty shares to the former and one hundred shares to the latter, to be paid in like manner with the subscriptions above mentioned ; and that the shares so subscribed be and the same are hereby vested in George Washington, esquire, his heirs and assigns forever, in as effectual a manner as if the subscriptions had been made by himself or by his attorney." And whereas, the said George Washington, esquire, in his letter addressed to the governor, which has been laid before the general assembly, hath expressed his sentiments thereupon, in the words following, to wit : " Your Excellency having been pleased to transmit me a copy of the act appropriating to my benefit certain shares in the companies for opening the navigation of James and Potowmac rivers, I take the liberty of returning to the general assembly, through your hands, the profound and grateful acknowledgments, inspired by so signal a mark of their beneficent intentions towards me. I beg you, Sir, to assure them, that I am filled on this occasion with every sentiment which can flow from a heart warm with love for my country—sensible to every token of its approbation and affection—and solicitous to testify, in every instance, a respectful submission to its wishes : With these sentiments in my bosom, I need not dwell on the anxiety I feel, in being obliged, in this instance, to decline a favor, which is rendered no less flattering by the manner in which it is conveyed, than it is affectionate in itself. In explaining this obligation, I pass over a comparison of my endeavors in the public service with the many honorable testimonies of approbation which have already so far over-rated and over-paid them ; reciting one consideration only, which supercedes the necessity of recurring to every other. When I was first called to the station with which I was honored during the late conflict for our liberties—to the diffidence which I had so many reasons to feel in accepting it, I thought it my duty to join a firm resolution to shut my hand against every pecuniary recompence ; to this resolution I have invariably adhered—from this resolution (if I had the inclination) I do not consider myself at liberty to depart. Whilst I repeat, therefore, my fervent acknowledgments to the legislature for their very kind sentiments and intentions in my favor, and at the same time beg them to be persuaded, that a remembrance of this singular proof of their goodness towards me, will never cease to cherish returns of the warmest affection and gratitude, I must pray, that their act, so far as it has for its object my personal emolument, may not have its effect : But if it should please the general assembly to permit me to turn the destination of the fund vested in me, from my private emoluments, to objects of a public nature, it will be my study in selecting these, to prove the sincerity of my gratitude for the honor conferred on me, by preferring such as may appear most subservient to the enlightened and patriotic views of the legislature." And whereas the desire of the general assembly to mark by the provision above mentioned, their sense of the illustrious merits of the said George Washington, esquire, at the same time that it is strengthened by this fresh and endearing proof of his title to the gratitude of his country, is superseded by their respect for his disinterested wishes and patriotic views :

2. Be it enacted, That the said recited act, so far as it vests in George Washington, esquire, and his heirs, the shares therein directed to be subscribed in his name, shall be, and the same is hereby repealed.

3. And be it further enacted, That the said shares with the tolls and profits hereafter accruing therefrom, shall stand appropriated to such objects of a public nature, in such manner, and under such distributions, as the said George Washington, esquire, by deed during his life, or by his last will and testament, shall direct and appoint.

CHAP. IV.

An Act to amend an act entitled " An Act for clearing and improving the Navigation of James River.

[Sessions Acts of 1785, ch. 52, pa. 37.]

1. WHEREAS by the act, entitled " An act for clearing and improving the navigation of James River, it is among other things provided, that the first subscriptions should not exceed the sum of one hundred thousand dollars, and that no toll should be demanded, except in a particular case, before the said river should be rendered capable of being navigated in dry seasons by vessels drawing one foot of water at least from the highest place practicable to the Great Falls ; and whereas it hath been represented to the general assembly, that it may be necessary to extend the sum to be subscribed, and to put the depth of the canals in the discretion of the company, and the point to which the navigation is directed to reach, before the demand of the tolls, is by being too vague, a discouragement to adventurers :

2. Be it therefore enacted by the General Assembly, That it shall be lawful for the said company, at any general meeting, to extend the shares, so as not to exceed one hundred in addition to those already subscribed, and to proportion the depth of the water in the canals to the depth of water in the river in dry seasons.

3. And be it further enacted; That Crow's ferry, at the mouth of Loony's Creek, shall be forever taken and deemed to be the highest place practicable within the meaning of the above recited act, And whereas, it may be found expedient for the said company to borrow money to answer the purposes of their institution.

4. Be it further enacted, That it shall be lawful for the president and directors to give an interest of six per centum upon all sums of money that shall be lent to them for the carrying on of the work.

CHAP. XII.

IN THE HOUSE OF DELEGATES, Tuesday, Dec. 1st, 1795.

WHEREAS the migration of American youth to foreign countries for the completion of their education, exposes them to the danger of imbibing political prejudices disadvantageous to their republican forms of government, and ought therefore to be rendered unnecessary and avoided:

Resolved, That the plan contemplated of erecting an University in the Federal City, where the youth of the several states may be assembled, and their course of education finished, deserves the countenance and support of each state.

And whereas when the General Assembly presented sundry shares in the James River and Potowmac Companies, to George Washington, as a small token of their gratitude for the great, eminent and unparalleled services he had rendered to this commonwealth, to the United States, and to the world at large, in support of the principles of liberty and equal government, it was their wish and desire that he should appropriate them as he might think best. And whereas the present General Assembly retain the same high sense of his virtues, wisdom and patriotism:

Resolved therefore, That the appropriation by the said George Washington of the aforesaid shares in the Potowmac Company to the University intended to be erected in the Federal City, is made in a manner most worthy of public regard and of the approbation of this commonwealth.

Resolved also, That he be requested to appropriate the aforesaid shares in the James River Company, to a Seminary at such place in the upper country as he may deem most convenient to a majority of the inhabitants thereof.

[Passed January 7th, 1799.—Acts of 1798, ch. 28, pa. 15.]

Preamble.

Time of completing the locks required by law, discretionary with the company.

1. Be it therefore enacted, That the erection of the said locks shall, as to time of commencement and completion, be optional with the said company, any thing to the contrary in any law notwithstanding; and that all laws which come within the purview of this act, shall be, and the same are hereby repealed: Provided, That the discretion hereby given to the said company, shall not be so construed, as to prohibit any future legislature from directing the completion of the said locks, whenever it shall appear reasonable.

2. Be it therefore enacted, That from and after the first day of January, in the year one thousand eight hundred and seven, the said James river company shall not demand nor receive any of the tolls allowed by the above recited act, unless the said company shall have made the said river well capable of being navigated in dry seasons by vessels drawing one foot water at least, from the highest place practicable to the great falls, according to the true intent and meaning of the said recited act. An Act to amend “An Act concerning the James River Company.”

[Passed December 31st, 1806.—Acts of 1806, ch. 64, pa. 26.]

Preamble.

WHEREAS it hath been represented, that a majority of the commissioners appointed by the act, entitled “An act concerning the James River Company,” passed the thirtieth of January, one thousand eight hundred and five, met pursuant to the notification of the said company, in order to view the said river and ascertain whether the navigation thereof from the highest practicable point to the great falls, had been completed according to the terms of the original charter; but owing to a sudden rise of the water, they were prevented from effecting the object of their meeting; and it is just and reasonable that a further time should be allowed for that purpose:

Further time allowed James river company to comply with act
of 1805.

1. Be it therefore enacted, That the further time of one year from the first day of January next, be allowed the James River Company, and the commissioners appointed by the above recited act, or a majority of them, to comply with the provisions thereof; and in the mean time, the James River Company shall be permitted to collect the full tolls allowed by the act “For clearing and improving the navigation of James River,” any thing in the first mentioned act to the contrary notwithstanding:

CHAP. IV.

An Act to amend an act, for opening and extending the Navigation of Potowmac River.

[Sess. acts, 1785, ch. 23, pa. 21.]

1. WHEREAS the President and Directors of the Potowmac Company, by their petition to this General Assembly on behalf of the said company, have set forth, that in pursuance of the acts of assembly of this state, and of Maryland, entitled "An Act for opening and extending the navigation of Potowmac River," they purpose to make a canal on one level to be supplied by the current of the river from a little above the Great Falls of Potowmac, to a convenient place below those Falls, where they design to effect a communication with the bed of the river by connected locks, and that they are under the strongest impressions, if any canal and locks should be found necessary or useful at the Little Falls of the said river, that another such cut on one level and a waste of the whole fall by a set of locks at tide water, will be preferable there on every account; and that, as the depth of the water in such canals will be increased on the rise of the water in the river, so as to permit an easy passage for all such boats and rafts as can pass in the river, even less than two feet depth of water in the said canals in dry seasons, with the certain necessary increase on the rise of the river, will be fully sufficient, instead of the four feet required by the said acts, to answer all useful purposes; and that, cutting the said canals four feet below the level of the water in dry seasons, will very greatly and uselessly enhance the expense of the canals, occasion considerable delay in the work, and render it in a degree less secure—they have therefore prayed that acts of the assemblies of both states may pass, making it necessary that such canals contain two feet only, instead of the four feet required by the said acts, and if the levels should be broken by locks placed apart from each other, that the first level may necessarily contain only two feet depth, and the other, or rest, four; all which suggestions appearing to this General Assembly to be true, and the prayer of the said petition to be reasonable:

2. Be it enacted by the General Assembly, That any canal which shall be cut or made on one level by the Potowmac Company, at the Great or Little Falls of Potowmac River, supplied by the current of that river, containing two feet of water at the least in dry seasons, and communicating again with the river by locks, if necessary, the spaces between the locks, if they should be placed distant from each other, containing four feet depth of water, shall be equally available to every intent and purpose as if the whole of such canal had been made to contain four feet depth of water, agreeable to the directions of the said acts; any thing in the said acts to the contrary notwithstanding.

3. This act to take place as such, on a similar law being passed by the legislature of Maryland, and not otherwise.

CHAP. V.

An Act giving further time for improving the navigation between the Great Falls of Potowmac River and Fort Cumberland:

[Sess. acts of 1786, ch. 114, pa. 54.]

BE it enacted by the General Assembly, That the Potowmac Company shall be, and they are hereby allowed, until the seventeenth day of November, one thousand seven hundred and ninety, for making and improving the navigation between the Great Falls and Fort Cumberland; any law to the contrary thereof, notwithstanding. Tolls not demandable unless the navigation is completed.

Benefits of this act done away in case of failure to commence and complete the work in a certain time.

19. And be it hereby provided and enacted, That in case the said company shall not begin the said work within nine calendar months after the company shall be formed, or if the navigation shall not be made and improved as aforesaid, in the manner herein before mentioned, within three years after the said company shall be formed, that then the said company shall not be entitled to any benefit, privilege or advantage under this act.

*An Act for opening and extending the Navigation of Appomattox

[Passed December 17th, 1787.—Acts of 1787, ch. 33, pa. 37.]

1. WHEREAS it is represented to this present General Assembly, that the clearing, improving and extending the navigation of Appomattox River, to the highest part practicable, will be of great benefit and public utility, and that many persons are willing to subscribe considerable sums of money for carrying the same into effect. Be it therefore enacted, That John Pride, John Holcombe, Joseph Michaux, John Archer, Joseph Jones, Everard Meade and Richard Crump, Gentlemen, be and they are hereby constituted and appointed trustees for clearing, improving and extending the navigation of the said river, from Banister's mill as far up the same as they may judge it practicable, so as to have a sufficient depth and width of water to navigate boats, batteaux, or canoes, capable of carrying six hogsheads of tobacco, and they are authorised to take and receive subscriptions for that purpose: If any person shall neglect or refuse to pay the money by him subscribed for the purposes of this act, it shall be lawful for the said trustees to recover the same by warrant before a single magistrate where the subscription shall not exceed twenty-five shillings, and where it shall exceed that sum, by motion in the court of the county where the person resides, provided the party has ten days previous notice of such motion. The said trustees or a majority of them, shall, as soon as may be, proceed to view the said river, and ascertain as nearly as they can, the highest part capable of navigation, according to this act; and have power to contract and agree with any person or persons for clearing and improving the navigation of the said river, in such manner as the trustees shall judge proper, and to remove all obstructions which in any wise injure the said navigation.

2. And be it further enacted, That the said trustees, or a majority of them, as often as they may see occasion, shall nominate and appoint one or more of their number to be receiver or receivers of all monies subscribed by virtue of this act; and the person or persons so appointed shall, in the court of the county where they respectively reside, give bond with sufficient security, in a reasonable penalty, payable to the said trustees and their successors, for the time being, with condition that he or they, his or their heirs, executors, or administrators, at all times when required, will truly and faithfully account for all such sums of money as shall come to the hands of the said receiver or receivers, for the purposes of this act, and pay the same to such person or persons as the said trustees or a majority of them shall order and direct.

3. And whereas it may be found necessary in some parts of the said river, to straighten the same by cutting away the bank or by a canal, Be it therefore enacted, That it shall and may be lawful for the said trustees, or a majority of them, to agree with the owners of any land through which the said canal is intended to pass, for the purchase thereof, and in case of disagreement, or in case the owner thereof shall be a feme covert, under age, non-compos, or out of the state, the like proceedings shall be had to estimate the value thereof by a jury, as are directed and prescribed by the act entitled "An act for opening and extending the navigation of Potowmac river," and such valuation shall be paid by the said trustees to the owner of the said land, or his legal representative, and on payment thereof, the said land shall thenceforth be vested in the said trustees, and their successors in fee, for the purposes of this act. The said trustees and their successors, or a majority of them, shall have power and authority to agree with any person or persons, to cut such canals, and erect such locks, and to perform such other works, as they may think necessary for opening, improving and extending the navigation of the said river, and out of the money arising from the subscriptions, and tolls hereafter given to pay for the same, and to repair and keep in order the said canals, locks and other works necessary thereto, and to defray all incidental charges, and to appoint such toll gatherers, managers and servants, as they shall judge requisite, and to agree for, and settle their respective wages, or allowances, and settle and pass their accounts, and to make and establish such rules of proceeding, and to transact all the other business and concerns for the purpose of carrying this act into execution.

4. And be it further enacted, That for, and in consideration of the expense the subscribers will be at, not only in cutting canals, erecting locks or other work and labor for opening, improving and extending the navigation of the said river, but in maintaining and keeping the same in repair, the said canals and works with all their profits, shall be, and the same are hereby vested in the said trustees, and their successors forever, to, and for the use of the subscribers.

and their heirs, as tenants in common, to be apportioned among them, according to the sums by them respectively subscribed and paid, and the same shall be deemed real estate, and be forever exempt from payment of any tax, imposition or assessment whatsoever, and it shall and may be lawful for the said trustees, and their successors, at all times hereafter to demand and receive at such place or places upon the said river as they may think most convenient, for all commodities transported through either of them respectively, tolls not exceeding those imposed by the said recited act: and in case any person shall refuse or neglect to pay the tolls at the time of offering to pass through any of the said places, and previous to the vessels passing through the same, the collectors of the said tolls, may lawfully refuse passage to such vessels, and if any vessel shall pass without paying the said toll, then the said collectors may seize such vessel wherever found, and sell the same at auction, for ready money, which, so far as is necessary, shall be applied towards paying the said tolls, and all expenses of seizure and sale, and the balance, if any, shall be paid to the owner, and the person having the direction of such vessel, shall be liable for such toll, if the same is not paid by sale of such vessel as aforesaid.

5. And be it enacted, That it shall and may be lawful for every subscriber to transfer his interest in the said canals, or works, in the same manner and under the like conditions and exceptions as are prescribed by the said recited acts. The owners of mills on the said river above Banister's mill, and every of them, shall within eighteen months after passing this act, erect good and sufficient locks through their dams, or on canals convenient and proper around them, so as to procure an easy, safe, and expeditious passage for loaded canoes, boats, and batteaus, both up and down the said river, through or around each and every of the said dams; and moreover the said owners of mills on the said river, shall keep the said locks in good and sufficient repair, and cause to be given constant attendance at the same, by some person or persons, whose duty it shall be, to work and manage the said locks at all times when thereto required by any person for the purpose of passing through the same with craft as aforesaid, without delay, giving them free passage, and on failure so to do, the offender shall forfeit and pay the sum of five pounds for every time such failure shall happen, and be moreover liable to the party grieved for damages, which said penalty may be recovered in the court of the county where the offender resides, by motion on ten days previous notice, by any person who will inform or sue for the same.

6. And be it enacted, That if any owner or owners of mills on the said river shall refuse or fail to build such good and sufficient locks, for passing through, or around his or their mill dam or mill dams as aforesaid, for the purposes of this act, within eighteen months as aforesaid, then and in that case, the mill dam or mill dams, not having such locks, are hereby declared to be nuisances and shall and may be abated, and thrown down and destroyed. And the trustees aforesaid, or a majority of them, are hereby empowered and directed to cause the said dams to be cleared away, and to present an account of the reasonable expense thereof, to the owners of the same, which expenses he or they shall pay, or on failure the amount thereof may be recovered against him or them by the said trustees, on motion to the court of the county, giving him or them ten days previous notice thereof.

7. And be it further enacted, That if any land holder on the said river, shall suffer any tree to be felled from his land into the same, and therein to remain the space of twenty four hours, at any time after the navigation of the same hath become practicable, every such landholder shall forfeit and pay the sum of forty shillings to any person who will inform or sue for the same in any court of record. The said trustees and their successors, are hereby declared to be incorporated, by the name of the Appomattox Trustees, and may sue and be sued as such. In case of vacancy by death, refusal to act, resignation, or other legal disability, of any one or more of the said trustees, it shall be lawful for the remaining trustees, or a majority of them, to elect others in their stead. Provided nevertheless, that the said trustees shall be compelled to begin this work as near to Banister's mill as circumstances will admit. So much of all and every act, and acts, as comes within the meaning of this act, is hereby repealed.

CHAP. II.

[Passed December 30, 1788.—Acts of 1788, ch. 82, pa. 48.]

1. WHEREAS it hath been represented to the present general assembly, that the navigation of Appomattox river might be greatly improved by deepening the channel from Pocahontas bridge to Broadway, so as to admit large vessels to go up to the town of Petersburg: BE it therefore enacted by the General Assembly, That books shall be opened in the town of Petersburg, on the first day of February next, under the management of Robert Bolling, junior, Joseph Jones, Theodorick Bland, Christopher M'Conico, Thomas Griffin Peachy, James Campbell, Edward Pegram, and William Barksdale, for receiving subscriptions for the purpose of deepening the channel of the said river. The subscriptions shall be made personally or by power of attorney, and shall be in current money, and paid in gold or silver coin at the current value. The capital to be subscribed for the purpose aforesaid, shall be ten thousand pounds, and shall be divided into two hundred shares of the value of fifty pounds each. Any person may subscribe one or more whole shares, but no subscription shall be received for less than one share.

2. So soon as one half of the said capital shall be subscribed, the managers herein before named, shall by advertisement in the Petersburg Gazette, call a general meeting of the subscribers at the said town of Petersburg. The subscribers who are present at the said meeting shall choose a president and four directors, and thereafter the subscribers, their heirs and assigns, shall be incorporated into a company, by the name of the Appomattox Company, and by that name may sue and be sued. The president and directors shall continue in office for one year, and from thence until the next meeting of the company; and they, or a majority of them, shall have full power to receive subscriptions until the before mentioned capital is completed: to contract with any persons on behalf of the company to perform such works as they judge necessary for deepening the channel of the said river from Pocahontas bridge to Broadway, and for keeping the same open : to appoint such officers as they deem necessary, to be employed in the service of the company : to call a meeting of the company when necessary, to receive from the subscribers the sums respectively subscribed by them, at such times, and in such proportions, as they shall judge proper : and to transact all the other business and concerns of the said company.

3. If any member shall fail to pay to the person authorised by the president and directors to receive the same, the proportion of the subscription required of him within one month after such requisition is made in the Petersburg Gazette, the said president and directors may recover the same by motion in the general or district court, in the same manner as the president and directors of the James river and Potowmac companies, can recover the arrears due from any member of the said companies.

4. There shall be a meeting of the said Appomattox company, on the first Monday in May, in every year, at which, members or their proxies, having one hundred and five shares at the least, shall be present, and at any intermediate meeting, members or proxies, having sixty shares shall be sufficient.

5. If a sufficient number of members be not present on the first day, the meeting may be adjourned from day to day, until a sufficient number attend. In counting the votes, each member shall be allowed one vote for every share, as far as ten shares, and one vote for every five shares after ten. The said company at their annual meeting, or at any other meeting called by the president and directors, may call upon them for an account of their proceedings and contracts, for the execution of the plan for deepening the said river, and of the money received and disbursed by them, and may allow them a sum for their services : may displace the said president and directors or any of them, and appoint others in their stead : may lower the tolls herein after allowed them, and may exempt any vessels from the payment thereof : And shall, after leaving in the hands of the president and directors a sufficient sum for the expenses attending the repairs of the said works, and other contingent charges, make an equal dividend of the nett profits arising from the tolls and other profits thereof amongst themselves according to their respective proportions. In consideration of the expenses that will be incurred by the said company in deepening the bed of the said river and keeping the same open, the members of the said company, their heirs and assigns, shall be entitled to the tolls herein after mentioned, for ever, as tenants in common, in proportion to their respective shares, and the same shall be deemed real estate, and be forever exempt from the payment of any tax or imposition whatsoever.

6. And it shall and may be lawful for the said president and directors, to demand and receive at the place called the Bakehouse on the said river, or at such other places above that as the said president and directors shall appoint, tolls from vessels drawing upwards of five feet of water, for their passage by or through the said places, according to the following table and rates, to wit : On vessels of five and half feet, three shillings per foot ; on vessels of six feet, three shillings and nine pence per foot ; on vessels of six and half feet, four shillings and six pence per foot ; on vessels of seven feet, five shillings and three pence per foot ; on vessels of seven and half feet, six shillings per foot ; on vessels of eight feet, six shillings and nine pence per foot ; on vessels of eight and half feet, seven shillings and six pence per foot ; on vessels of nine feet, nine shillings per foot ; on vessels of nine and half feet, eleven shillings and three pence per foot ; on vessels of ten feet, fifteen shillings per foot ; on vessels over ten feet, and not more than twelve feet, twenty shillings per foot ; and on all vessels over twelve feet, one pound five shillings per foot. Which tolls are rated in money, and may be discharged in gold or silver coin at their current value.

7. The tolls herein before allowed to be demanded and received, shall be paid on condition only, that the said Appomattox company shall make the said river capable of being navigated in any season, from Broadway to Pocahontas bridge, by vessels drawing twelve feet water, and in case the company shall not begin the said work within two years after the company shall be formed, and complete the same within seven years after it is begun, then the said company shall not be entitled to any benefit or privilege under this act.

8. If payment of the said tolls shall be refused, when any vessel from which the same are demandable offers to pass by or through the said places herein before named, the collectors may lawfully refuse passage to such vessel ; and if any such vessel shall pass without paying the said tolls, the master, skipper, or owner of such vessel, shall forfeit and pay to the said Appomattox company, the sum of two pounds for every foot of water which it may draw ; to be recovered on motion and ten days notice, in any court of record within this commonwealth. The said river and the channel thereof when deepened as aforesaid, shall forever be considered and taken as a public highway for the passage of all vessels, and transportation of all commodities, upon payment of the tolls aforesaid ; and no other tax or toll shall at any time hereafter be imposed for the use of the water of the said river ; but the said river shall nevertheless be subject to such regulations, as may be prescribed by the laws of this state or the United States. The shares in the said company shall to all intents and purposes be held and transferred by the proprietors thereof, in the same manner and on the same conditions, as the shares of the proprietors in the James river and Potomac companies.

9. Nothing herein contained shall be construed to prevent vessels drawing less than five and an half feet water, from using and navigating the said river Appomattox, in the same manner as if this act had never been made : Provided always, That nothing herein contained shall be construed to affect the private right of any individual owning a fishery on the said river.

Preamble.

1. WHEREAS the act of assembly passed in December, seventeen hundred and eighty seven, for opening and extending the navigation of Appomattox river, hath among other matters therein contained, enacted, That it shall and may be lawful for the trustees therein appointed, or a majority of them, to agree with the owners of any land, through which the said canal is intended to pass, for the purchase thereof, and in case of disagreement, or in case the owner thereof shall be a feme covert, under age, non compos, or out of the state, the like proceedings shall be had to estimate the value thereof by a jury, as are directed and prescribed by the act, entitled, An act for opening and extending the navigation of Potowmac river, and such valuation shall be paid by the said trustees to the owner of the said land, or his legal representative, and on payment thereof, the said land shall thenceforth be vested in the said trustees, and their successors, in fee, for the purposes of this act. And whereas doubts have arisen whether the trustees appointed to carry the said act into execution, have a

[Passed December 1st, 1787.—Acts of 1787, ch. 13, pa. 15.]

1 WHEREAS the cutting of a navigable canal from the waters of Elizabeth river, in this state, to the waters of Pasquotank river in the state of North Carolina, will be of great public utility, and many persons are willing to subscribe large sums of money to effect so beneficial a work, and it is just and proper that they, their heirs and assigns, should be empowered to receive reasonable tolls for ever, in satisfaction for the money advanced by them in carrying the work into execution, and the risk they run, therefore, Be it enacted by the General Assembly of Virginia, That it shall and may be lawful to open books in the towns of Norfolk, Portsmouth, Suffolk, Petersburg, Richmond, York, Fredericksburg, and Alexandria, under the management of George Kelly in Norfolk; of John Cowper in Portsmouth; of Wells Cowper in Suffolk; of Christopher M'Connico in Petersburg; of James Héron in Richmond; of Thomas Nelson in York; of William Lewis in Fredericksburg, and of William Hartshorne in Alexandria; and under the management of such persons and at such places in North Carolina as shall be appointed by that state for receiving and entering subscriptions to the amount of eighty thousand dollars for the said undertaking, which subscriptions shall be made personally or by power of attorney, and shall be in Spanish milled dollars, but may be paid in other silver or in gold coin of the same value. That the said books shall be opened for receiving subscriptions on the first day of May next, and continue open until the first day of September next inclusive; and on the nineteenth day of the said month of September, there shall be a general meeting of the subscribers at Halifax in the state of North Carolina, of which meeting, notice shall be given by the said managers, or any three of them, in the gazettes of both the aforesaid states, at least one month next before the said meeting, and such meeting shall and may be continued from day to day until the business is finished. And the acting managers shall, at the time and place aforesaid, lay before such of the subscribers as shall meet according to the said notice the books by them respectively kept, containing the state of the said subscriptions; and if one half of the capital sum aforesaid, should on examination appear not to have been subscribed, then the said managers are empowered to take and receive subscriptions to make up the deficiency; and a just and true list of all the subscribers with the sums subscribed by each shall be made out and returned by the said managers, or any four or more of them, under their hands into the General Court of this state, and into such court as the state of North Carolina shall direct, to be there recorded. And in case more than eighty thousand dollars shall be subscribed, then the same shall be reduced to that sum by the said managers or a majority of them, by beginning at and striking off from the largest subscription or subscriptions, and continuing to strike off a share from all subscriptions under the largest and above one share, until the sum is reduced to the capital aforesaid of eighty thousand dollars, or until a share is taken from all subscriptions above one share; and lots shall be drawn between subscribers of equal sums, to determine the number, in which such subscribers shall stand on a list to be made for striking off as aforesaid; and if the sum subscribed still exceeds the capital aforesaid, then they shall strike off by the same rule until the sum subscribed is reduced to the capital aforesaid, or all the subscriptions are reduced to one share; and if there still be an excess, then lots shall be drawn to determine the subscribers who are to be excluded to reduce the subscriptions to the capital aforesaid, which striking off shall be certified in the list aforesaid, and the said capital sum shall be reckoned and divided into three hundred and twenty shares of two hundred and fifty dollars each, of which every person subscribing may take and subscribe for one or more whole shares, and not otherwise.

2. Provided, That unless one half of the said capital shall be subscribed, all subscriptions made in consequence of this act shall be void, and in case one half and less than the whole of the said capital shall be subscribed as aforesaid, then the president and directors are hereby empowered and directed to take and receive the subscriptions which shall be first offered, in whole shares as aforesaid, until the deficiency shall be made up; a certificate of which additional subscriptions shall be made under the hands of the president and directors or a majority of them for the time being, and returned to, and recorded in the courts as aforesaid.

3. And be it enacted, That in case one half of the said capital, or a greater sum shall be subscribed as aforesaid, the said subscribers, and their heirs and assigns, from the time of the said first meeting, shall be and are hereby declared to be incorporated into a company by the name of the Dismal Swamp canal company, and may sue and be sued as such; and such of the said subscribers as shall be present at the said meeting, or a majority of them are hereby empower and required to elect a president and four directors for conducting the said undertaking and managing all the said companies business and concerns, for and during such time not exceeding three years, as the said subscribers or a majority of them shall think fit; and in counting the votes of all general meetings of the said company, each member shall be allowed one vote for every share as far as ten shares, and one vote for every five shares above ten by him or her held at the time in the said company; and any proprietor by writing under his or her hand executed before two witnesses, may depute any other member or proprietor to vote and act as proxy for him or her at any general meeting.

4. And be it enacted, That the said president and directors so elected, and their successors, or a majority of them assembled, shall have power and authority to agree with any person or persons on behalf of the said company, to cut the said canal and to erect such locks and perform such other works as they shall judge necessary for the navigation of the said canal, and carrying on the same from place to place, and from time to time, and upon such terms, and in such manner as they shall think fit, and out of the money arising from the subscriptions and tolls and other aids hereafter in this act given to pay for the same and to repair and keep in order the said canal, locks, and other works necessary thereto, and to defray all incidental charges, and also to appoint a treasurer, clerk, and such other officers, toll gatherers, managers, and servants, as

5. Provided always, That the treasurer shall give bond in such penalty and with such security, as the said president and directors or a majority of them shall direct for the true and faithful discharge of the trust reposed in him, and that the allowance to be made to him for his services shall not exceed three pounds in the hundred for the disbursements by him made, and that no officer in the said company shall have a vote in the settlement or passing of his own account. And be it enacted, That the said president and directors, and their successors, or a majority of them, shall have full power and authority from time to time, as money shall be wanting, to make and sign orders for that purpose, and direct at what time, and in what proportion the proprietors shall advance and pay off the sums subscribed, which orders shall be advertised at least one month in the North Carolina and Virginia Gazettes; and they are hereby authorised and empowered to demand and receive of the several proprietors from time to time, the sums of money so ordered to be advanced for carrying on and executing, or repairing and keeping in order the said works, until the sums subscribed shall be fully paid; and to order the said sums to be deposited in the hands of the treasurer, to be by him disbursed and laid out, as the said president and directors, or a majority of them shall order and direct; and if any of the said proprietors shall refuse or neglect to pay their said proportions within one month after the same so ordered and advertised as aforesaid, the said president and directors or a majority of them, may sell at auction and convey to the purchaser, the share or shares of such proprietor so refusing or neglecting payment, giving at least one month's notice of the sale in the North Carolina and Virginia Gazettes; and after retaining the sum due and charges of sale out of the money produced thereby, they shall refund and pay the overplus, if any, to the former owner; and if such sale shall not produce the full sum ordered and directed to be advanced as aforesaid with the incidental charges; the said president and directors or a majority of them, may, in the name of the company; sue for and recover the balance by motion on ten days previous notice; and the said purchaser or purchasers shall be subject to the same rules and regulations, as if the said sale and conveyance had been made by the original proprietor:

6. And to continue the succession of the said president and directors and to keep up the same number, Be it enacted, That from time to time, on the expiration of the term for which the said president and directors were appointed, the proprietors of the said company at the next general meeting shall either continue the said president and directors or any of them, or shall choose others in their stead; and in case of the death, removal, resignation or incapacity of the president or any of the directors, may and shall in manner aforesaid elect any other person or persons to be president and directors in the room of him or them so dying, removing, resigning or becoming incapable of acting, and may at any of their general meetings remove the president or any of the directors and appoint others for and during the remainder of the term for which such person or persons were at first to have acted.

8. And be it enacted, That the presence of proprietors having one hundred and eighty shares at least, shall be necessary to constitute a general meeting, and that there be a general meeting of proprietors on the first Monday in September in every year, at such convenient town, as shall from time to time be appointed by the said general meeting; but if a sufficient number should not attend on that day, the proprietors who do attend may adjourn such meeting from day to day, till a general meeting of proprietors shall be had, which may be continued from day to day until the business of the company is finished, to which meeting the president and directors shall make report, and render distinct and just accounts of all their proceedings, and on finding them fairly and justly stated; the proprietors then present or a majority of them shall give a certificate thereof, a duplicate of which shall be entered on the said company's books; and at such yearly general meetings, after leaving in the hands of the treasurer such sum as the proprietors or a majority of them shall judge necessary for repairs and contingent charges. An equal dividend of all the nett profits arising from the tolls hereby granted shall be ordered and made to the proprietors of the said company in proportion to their several shares; and on any emergency in the interval between the said yearly meetings, the president or a majority of the directors may appoint a general meeting of the proprietors of the company at any convenient town, giving at least one month previous notice in the North Carolina and Virginia Gazettes, which meeting may be adjourned and continued as aforesaid.

10. All produce, goods, wares, or merchandize, passing the causeways shall be subject to the same toll, as goods passing through the canal; but which tolls though chargeable in Spanish milled dollars may be paid in other silver, or in gold coin of the same value. And in case of refusal to pay the tolls at the time of offering to pass the place aforesaid, and previous to passing the same, the collector of the said tolls may lawfully refuse passage to whatever refuses payment, and if any vessel, waggon, or cart, shall pass without paying the toll, then the said collector may seize such vessel, waggon, or cart, wherever found and sell the same at auction for ready money, which, so far as is necessary, shall be applied towards paying the said toll, and all expenses of seizure and sale, and the balance, if any, shall be paid to the owner, and the person having the direction of such vessel, waggon, or cart, shall be liable for such toll, if the same is not paid by the sale as aforesaid. Provided, that the said proprietors or a majority of them holding at least one hundred and eighty shares, shall have full power and authority, at any general meeting, to lessen the said tolls or any of them, or to determine that any article may pass free of toll.

11. And be it enacted, That the said canal and works to be erected thereon in virtue of this act, and the causeways when completed, shall forever thereafter be esteemed and taken as public highways, free for the transportation of all goods, wares, commodities, or produce whatsoever, and for travelling, on payment of the tolls imposed by this act; and no other toll or tax whatever for the use of the water of the said canal and the works thereon erected, or the causeways, shall at any time hereafter be imposed by both or either of the said states, subject nevertheless to such regulations as the Legislatures of the said states may concur in, to prevent the importation of prohibited goods, or to prevent fraud in evading the payment of duties imposed in both or either of the said states on goods imported into either of them.

12. And whereas it is necessary for the making of the said canal, locks, causeways, and other works, that a provision should be made for condemning a quantity of land for the purpose,

13. Be it enacted, That it shall and may be lawful for the said president and directors, or a majority of them to agree with the owners of any land, through which the said canal is intended to pass, for the purchase thereof, and in case of disagreement, or in case the owner thereof shall be a feme covert, under age, non compos, or out of the state, on application to any two justices of the county in which such land shall lie, the said justices shall issue their warrant under their hands to the sheriff of their county to summon a jury of eighteen inhabitants of his county of property and reputation, not related to the parties nor in any manner interested, to meet on the land to be valued at a day to be expressed in the warrant, not less than ten nor more than twenty days thereafter, and the sheriff, on receiving the said warrant, shall forthwith summon the said jury, and when met, provided that not less than twelve do appear, shall administer an oath or affirmation to every jurymen that shall appear, " That he will fairly, justly, and impartially value the land (not exceeding the width of three hundred feet) and all damages the owner thereof shall sustain

"by cutting the canal through such land, according to the best of his skill and judgment, and that in such valuation he will not spare any person through favour or affection, nor any person grieve through malice, hatred or ill will." And the inquisition thereon taken shall be signed by the sheriff and some twelve or more of the jury, and returned by the sheriff to the clerk of his county, to be by him recorded, and on every such valuation the jury is hereby directed to describe and ascertain the bounds of the land by them valued, and their valuation shall be conclusive on all persons, and shall be paid by the said president and directors to the owner of the land or his legal representatives, and on payment thereof the said company shall be seized in fee of such land as if conveyed by the owner to them and their successors by legal conveyance.

14. Provided nevertheless, That if any farther damage shall arise to any proprietor of land in consequence of opening such canal or in erecting such works, than had been before considered and valued, it shall and may be lawful for such proprietor as often as any such new damage shall happen, by application to and a warrant from any two justices of the county where the lands lie, to have such further damage valued by a jury in like manner and to receive and recover the same of the said president and directors. But nothing herein shall be taken or construed to entitle the proprietor of any such land to recover compensation for any damages which may happen to any mills, or other works, or improvements which shall be begun or erected by such proprietor after such first valuation, unless the said damage is wilfully or maliciously done by the said president and directors, or some person by their authority.

15. And be it enacted, That the said president and directors or a majority of them are hereby authorised to agree with the proprietor or proprietors for the purchase of a quantity of land not exceeding one acre, at or near the place of the receipt of tolls aforesaid for the purpose of erecting necessary buildings, and in case of disagreement or any of the disabilities aforesaid, or the proprietor being out of the state, then such land may be valued, condemned, and paid for as aforesaid, and the said company shall on payment of the valuation of the said land be seized thereof in fee simple as aforesaid.

16. And whereas it is represented that the waters of the lake in the Dismal Swamp commonly called Drummond's Pond may be useful for a supply of water to the said canal,

17. Be it enacted, That the said lake, so far as the waters thereof shall be necessary for the purpose aforesaid, shall be and is hereby vested in the proprietors of the said canal, and it shall and may be lawful for the said president and directors or a majority of them to open, if they shall find it expedient a cross canal from the lake to the principal canal for the purpose of drawing from the lake a supply of water, and for executing this work and keeping the same in repair, they shall have the same powers which they are authorised to exercise in opening the principal canal. And it shall not be lawful for any person whatsoever so to cut off or divert the courses of those waters, which now flow from the westward into the said lake as to prevent their continuing to fall into it.

18. And whereas some of the places through which it may be necessary to conduct the said canals may be convenient for erecting mills and other water works, and the persons possessors of such situations may design to improve the same, and it is not the intention of this act to interfere with private property but for the purpose of improving and perfecting the said navigation,

19. Be it enacted, That the water or any part thereof conveyed through the said canals shall not be used for any purpose but navigation, unless there shall be sufficient to answer both the purposes of navigation and water works aforesaid, in which case the said president and directors, or a majority of them are hereby empowered and directed to enter into reasonable agreements with the proprietors of such situations concerning the just proportion of the expenses of making the canals capable of carrying such quantities of water as may be sufficient for the purposes of navigation and also for any such water works as aforesaid.

20. And whereas the said canals may be of great utility in affording the means of draining the sunken lands through which they pass,

21. Be it enacted, That it shall and may be lawful for the proprietors of the said adjacent sunken lands to open cross ditches into the said canals, Provided, that these cross ditches shall not be within less than one mile of one another on the same side of the canals, and be covered where they pass through the causeways with good bridges of the breadth of the causeways at the expense of the persons cutting them and also be so constructed that the water may be entirely prevented passing through them into the canals at any time, when this shall be necessary. And the works occasioned by these cross ditches, except the bridges, shall be kept in repair at the expense of their proprietors.

22. And be it enacted, That it shall and may be lawful for every of the said proprietors to transfer his share or shares by deed executed before two witnesses, and registered after proof of the execution thereof in the said company's books and not otherwise, except by devise, which devise shall also be exhibited to the president and directors, and registered in the company's books before the devisee or devisees shall be entitled to draw any part of the profits from the said tolls, Provided, that no transfer whatsoever shall be made except for one or more whole share or shares, and not for part of such shares, and that no share shall, at any time, be sold, conveyed, transferred, or held in trust for the use and benefit, or in the name of another, whereby the said president and directors, or proprietors of the said company or any of them shall or may be challenged or made to answer concerning any such trust, but that every such person appearing as aforesaid to be a proprietor, shall, as to the others of the said company, be to every intent taken absolutely as such, but between any trustee and the person for whose benefit any trust shall be created the common remedy may be pursued.

23. And whereas it hath been represented, that sundry persons are willing and desirous on account of the public advantage, and also the improvement their estates may receive thereby, to promote and contribute towards so useful an undertaking and to subscribe sums of money to be paid on condition the said works are completed and carried into execution, but do not care to run any risque, or desire to have any property therein,

24. Be it therefore enacted, That the said president and directors shall be, and are hereby empowered to receive and take in subscriptions on the said conditions, and on the said works being completed and carried into execution according to the true intent and meaning of this act, that it shall and may be lawful for the said president and directors or a majority of them, in case of refusal or neglect of payment, in the name of the company as aforesaid, to sue for and recover of the said subscribers, their heirs, executors, or administrators, the sums by them respectively subscribed, by action of debt, or on the case in any court of record within this state.

25. And be it enacted, That if the said capital and the other aids already granted by this act shall prove insufficient, it shall and may be lawful for the said company from time to time to increase the said capital by the addition of so many more whole shares, as shall be judged necessary by the said proprietors or a majority of them holding at least one hundred and eighty shares present at any general meeting of the said company. And the said president and directors, or a majority of them are hereby empowered and required after giving at least one months notice thereof in the North Carolina and Virginia Gazettes, to open books at the before mentioned places for receiving and entering such additional subscriptions, in which the proprietors of the said company for the time being shall and are hereby declared to have the preference of all others for the first thirty days after the said books shall be opened as aforesaid, of taking and subscribing for so many whole shares as any of them shall choose. And the said president and directors are hereby required to observe in all other respects the same rules herein as are by this act prescribed for receiving and adjusting the first subscriptions, and in like manner to return under the hands of any three or more of them an exact list of such additional subscribers with the sums by them respectively subscribed into the books as aforesaid, to be there recorded. And all proprietors of such additional sums shall and are hereby declared to be from henceforward incorporated into the said company.

26. And it is hereby declared and enacted, That the tolls herein before allowed to be demanded and received, are granted and shall be paid on condition only, that the said Dismal Swamp canal company shall make the canal thirty two feet wide, and eight feet in depth below the surface of the earth, and capable of being navigated in dry seasons by vessels drawing three feet water, from Deep Creek near Tucker's mill in Virginia to the highest good navigation for vessels of the aforesaid draft, in Pasquotank river in North Carolina with sufficient locks each of ninety feet in length and thirty two feet in breadth, and capable of conveying vessels drawing four feet water at the least, and that each of the causeways shall be twenty feet in breadth.

27. And it is hereby enacted and provided, That in case the said company shall not begin the said work within one year after the company shall be formed, or if the said company shall not complete the navigation and works as aforesaid within ten years after the said company shall be formed, then shall all interest of the said company and all preference in their favour, as to the navigation and tolls of the said canals and causeways, be forfeited and cease.

28. And whereas at a meeting of commissioners appointed by the states of North Carolina and Virginia to agree on the form of an act for cutting the said canal, and for regulating the commerce which may be carried on through it between the citizens of the two states, to wit: Archibald Maclaine, William M'Kenzie, James Galloway, and John Stokes; Esquires, on the part of North Carolina, and Robert Andrews and John Cowper, Esquires, on the part of Virginia, at Fayette-Ville, in the state of North Carolina, on the twelfth day of December in the year of our Lord one thousand seven hundred and eighty-six, the following compact was mutually agreed to by the said commissioners: First. The state of Virginia agrees that the waters of Elizabeth river from the said canal to the mouth thereof, the waters of Hampton Road, and of Chesapeake Bay to the capes, and also Roanoke river wherever it is in Virginia, shall be forever considered as a common highway free for the use and navigation of all vessels belonging to the state of North Carolina or any of its citizens, and that they shall not be therein subject to the payment of any toll or charge whatever, imposed for the purpose of raising a revenue. Secondly. The state of Virginia agrees that no restriction, duty, or impost, shall be laid on any commodity, which is the growth, produce, or manufacture, of the state of North Carolina, brought through the said canal or over the said causeways for sale or exportation, and that the same may be exported without reinspection. Thirdly. The state of Virginia agrees that when any imported goods shall within five months after entry be exported through the said canal or over the said causeways into the state of North Carolina in packages, bales, or casks, as imported, the duties thereof shall be remitted or repaid as the case may be to the exporter; on his producing within six months after the aforesaid entry the certificate of the naval officer of the district of North Carolina, into which the said canal enters, that the said goods have been entered there. Fourthly. The state of North Carolina agrees that the waters of Roanoke river, Meherrin, Nottoway, Chowan, Albemarle Sound, as low as the mouth of Pasquotank river, and of Pasquotank, from the mouth thereof to the said canal shall be forever considered as a common highway free for the use and navigation of all vessels belonging to the state of Virginia or any of its citizens, and that they shall not be subject therein to the payment of any toll or charge whatever imposed for the purpose of raising a revenue. Fifthly. The state of North Carolina agrees that no restriction, duty, or impost, shall be laid on any commodity which is the growth, produce, or manufacture, of the state of Virginia, passing through the aforesaid waters to the said canal, or brought through the said canal or over the said causeways for sale or exportation, and that the same may be sold or exported without reinspection. In those articles where it is expressed that no duty or impost is to be laid for the purpose of raising revenue it is not to be understood that the imposition of tolls for the purpose of improving the navigation of the said waters is prevented. Sixthly. The state of North Carolina agrees that when any imported goods shall within five five months after entry be exported through the said canal or over the said causeways into the state of Virginia, in packages, bales, or casks, as imported, the duties thereof shall be remitted or repaid as the case may be to the exporter on his producing within six months after the aforesaid entry the certificate of the naval officer of Norfolk, that the said goods have been entered there. Seventhly. Imported goods passing from one part of either of the said two states to another part of the same, through any of the waters of the other state, shall not be subject to any duty imposed for the purpose of raising a revenue. Lastly. The citizens of each of the said two states may have the use of the inspections of the other, for the purpose of reinspecting any damaged commodities, which have passed through the said canal, on paying the price of the labour of reinspection and no more.

29. And whereas this General Assembly are of opinion that the said compact is made on just and mutual principles for the true interest of both governments;

30. Be it therefore enacted, That the said compact is hereby approved, confirmed, and ratified, by the General Assembly of the state of Virginia, and that every article, clause, matter, and thing, therein contained; shall be obligatory on this state and the citizens thereof, and shall be forever faithfully and inviolably observed and kept by this government and all its citizens, according to the true intent and meaning of the said compact, and the faith and honour of this state are hereby solemnly pledged and engaged to the General Assembly of the state of North Carolina and the government and citizens thereof, that this law shall never be repealed or altered by the legislature of this state; without the consent of the state of North Carolina. Every act or part of an act of assembly which comes within the purview and meaning of this act shall be, and the same is hereby repealed. This act shall commence and be in force from and after the passing of a like act by the General Assembly of North Carolina.

An Act to revive and amend the Act, entitled, "An Act for Cutting a Canal from the Waters of Elizabeth River to the Waters of the North River".

[Passed January 2d, 1800.—Acts of 1799, ch. 40, pa. 21.]

[See Rev. Code, vol. I. ch. 3, pa. 5.—Ch. 4, pa. 10.—Chan. Rev. pa. 99, 100. pa. 176. pa. 180. pa. 206,

CHAP. I.

An Act for the safe keeping the Land Papers of the Northern Neck in the Register's Office.

[Acts of 1785, ch. 67, pa. 36.]

1 WHEREAS it is necessary and expedient that the records and papers upon which the titles to their lands of the citizens of this commonwealth depend, should be kept in the same office ; and whereas it hath heretofore been customary to keep the records, documents, and entries of the lands within the district of the Northern Neck in the office of the late proprietor :

2. Be it enacted, That in future all such records, documents, books, and papers, shall be in the keeping of the register of the land office, in the city of Richmond, who is hereby appointed keeper of the same ; and the executive shall, within three months from the passing of this act, cause the said records, documents, books, and papers, to be safely removed from the said proprietary office into the office of the register, who shall give a receipt for the same, which receipt shall be lodged in the council chamber, and recorded in the council books. And the expenses incurred by the said removal shall be paid out of the contingent fund.

3. And be it further enacted, That every person having title or claim to any land or lands within the Northern Neck, shall, on application, be furnished with an authenticated copy of any record, document, or writing, by the register ; and such authenticated copies shall be evidence in all courts of record in which the title or quit rents of any of the said lands shall at any time be drawn into question. And whereas since the death of the late proprietor, the right honourable Thomas Lord Fairfax, no mode hath been adopted to enable those who had before his death made entries for waste and unappropriated lands in his office, nor to enable those who since his death have made entries within the said district, according to an act of assembly, entitled " An act concerning surveyors," to obtain titles for the same,

4. Be it therefore enacted, That where any surveys have been heretofore made, or hereafter shall be made under entries made in the life of the said proprietor, or under entries made with the surveyor of any county, under the act of assembly aforesaid, and which have been returned to the said proprietary office, or shall hereafter be returned to the register's office, the register shall make out grants therefor, to bear teste under the hand of the governor and the seal of this commonwealth, in the same manner as is by law directed in cases of other unappropriated lands ; and the surveyors with whom such entries have been made, are hereby directed and empowered, to proceed to survey and record the same, and to make return of such surveys to the register's office, in the same manner, and within the same time, as is or shall be directed in cases of warrants issued for other unappropriated lands within this commonwealth, and thereupon grants shall issue in the manner herein before directed.

5. And be it further enacted, That from and after the passing of this act, the unappropriated lands within the said district shall be subject to the same regulations, and granted in the same manner, and all caveats shall be proceeded upon, tried and determined, as is by law directed in cases of other unappropriated lands belonging to this commonwealth.

6. And be it further enacted, That upon grants issued under this act, in consequence of entries heretofore made, a composition after the rate of thirteen shillings and four pence for every hundred acres, shall be paid to the register, to be by him accounted for and paid into the public treasury, in the same manner as other monies by him received by virtue of his office; and the surveyors within the said district shall for their services be entitled to and receive the same fees as other surveyors within this commonwealth for the like services.

7. And be it further enacted, That the land holders within the said district of the Northern Neck, shall be forever hereafter exonerated and discharged from composition and quit rents; any law, usage, or custom, to the contrary notwithstanding.

CHAP. II.

An Act to extend the operation of an Act, entitled "An Act concerning Escheators" to the several Counties in the Northern Neck.

[Acts of 1785, ch. 53, pa. 37.]

1 WHEREAS the act of assembly, entitled "An act concerning Escheators," does not in its operation extend to the counties in the Northern Neck, and it is necessary that escheators should be appointed in the several counties in that district.

2. Be it therefore enacted, That the aforesaid act of assembly shall be carried into execution, and be in full force in the several counties in the Northern Neck. And the court of each of the said counties is hereby required to recommend to the governor and council, some proper person to be commissioned escheator within such county, on or before the first day of June next; and in case of the failure of such recommendation, it shall be lawful, and the governor is hereby required, to appoint and commission, as soon as may be, an escheator within each of the said counties, who shall be a resident of such county.

CHAP. I.

An Act for establishing a Mutual Assurance Society against Fire on Buildings in this State.

[Passed December 22d, 1794.—Acts of 1794, ch. 26, pa. 17.]

1 WHEREAS from the great and frequent losses sustained by the ravages of fire, it is advised expedient to adopt some mode to alleviate the calamities of the unfortunate who may suffer by that destructive element, and William Frederick Ast, of the city of Richmond, having suggested and submitted to the consideration of the general assembly, a plan of mutual assurance, the title whereof is "The mutual assurance society on buildings against fire of the state of Virginia," which it is conceived will fully answer the above purposes :

Preamble.

2. Be it therefore enacted, That an assurance be established, to be called and known by the name of "The mutual assurance society against fire on buildings of the state of Virginia," the principles whereof shall be "that the citizens of this state may insure their buildings against the losses and damages occasioned accidentally by fire, and that the insured pay the losses and expenses, each his share according to the sum insured : And that subscriptions be opened in the different parts of this state, where it may be thought necessary, under the direction of Thomas Newton, junior, and James Morris, at Norfolk ; Archibald Richardson and John Driver, at Suffolk ; Robert Andrews and Robert Greenhow, at Williamsburg ; John Jeffers, Alexander McRae, and John Osborne, at Petersburg ; Worlich Westwood and George Hope, at Hampton ; John Harvie, Robert Mitchell, Andrew Dunscomb, and William F. Ast, at Richmond ; Fontaine Maury and Robert Patton, at Fredericksburg ; William Hartshorne and Robert T. Hoe, at Alexandria ; Archibald Magill and Abraham Neille, at Winchester ; Alexander St. Clair and Robert Grattan, at Staunton ; Henry Bowyer, Thomas Madison, and John Miller, at Fincastle ; William Norvell and Sackville King, at Lynchburg ; John Caruthers and William Lyle, at Lexington ; William Reynolds, William Cary, and Abraham Archer, at York ; James Perm and Thomas Read, at New-London ; James Muschitt and Alexander Henderson, at Dumfries ; Alexander Smyth and John Montgomery, of Wythe ; James Miller and John Hipkins, at Port Royal ; John Quinn and John Otee, of Liberty ; Robert Dunbar and Daniel Triplett, Falmouth ; William White and Caleb Boush, Kempsville ; Thomas Bell and Robert Jouitt, at Charlottesville ; and David Hunter and Moses Hunter, at Martinsburg, in the county of Berkeley. As soon as the sum subscribed for shall amount to three millions of dollars or upwards, notice shall be given in the Virginia gazettes, and a day fixed upon for the meeting of the subscribers, who shall then either attend in person or by representatives in the city of Richmond, to examine the aforesaid system of a mutual assurance, proposed by the said William Frederick Ast, and conclude upon such rules and regulations as they or a majority of them may think best, which shall be signed by any twelve of them chosen for that purpose, and that the same shall then be binding on all those who shall insure their property in the said assurance society.

lations, they shall proceed to elect by a majority of the votes of the subscribers present, agents for the management of the business of the said society, and thenceforth they shall be considered as a body politic incorporated by this act, under the denomination aforesaid, and by that name shall have succession, and may sue and be sued, plead and be impleaded, answer and be answered, defend and be defended, in any court of law or equity in this commonwealth or elsewhere, and may buy and sell, do and execute every other thing relative to the society. But none of the subscribers or their agents shall be sued individually for any thing that relates to the assurance society in general. In case of law suits or any other business, application shall be made to the agents, and they shall appear and act for and in behalf of the society.

4. The society, or a majority of them, shall be at liberty from time to time to alter and amend the rules and regulations as they may judge necessary.

5. They shall agree upon certain premiums to be paid by the persons who shall have their property insured at the time of such insurance, which shall be deposited and kept as a fund for the purpose of making immediate reparation to such persons as may sustain losses or damages by fire after proof that the fire actually happened, unless it be proved that the proprietor of the buildings insured did wilfully occasion the fire directly or indirectly.

6. If the funds should not be sufficient, a repartition among the whole of the persons insured shall be made, and each shall pay on demand of the cashier, his, her or their share according to the sum insured, and the rate of hazard at which the building stands, agreeable to the rate of the premiums, for which purpose it is hereby declared that the subscribers, as soon as they shall insure their property in the assurance society aforesaid, do mutually for themselves, their heirs, executors, administrators and assigns, engage their property insured (but none other) as security, and subject the same to be sold, if necessary, for the payment of such quotas.

7. That these quotas shall always be so rated as to raise and keep up a fund, so that the interest thereof may be deemed by the president and directors (to be elected by the said society) sufficient to pay the annual losses and expenses. If such quotas are found necessary, the president is to publish in the public newspapers how much the quota is of each rate of hazard per every hundred dollars, whereupon the insured shall pay the same on application to the cashier in whose office the property is insured. Whosoever any person or persons shall neglect to pay such quotas, the assurance to him made shall cease and discontinue from the day on which they became due until paid.

8. To the end that purchasers or mortgagees of any property insured by virtue of this act, may not become losers thereby, the subscribers selling, mortgaging, or otherwise transferring such property, shall at the time apprise the purchaser or mortgagee of such assurance, and endorse to him or them the policy thereof, And in every case of such change the purchaser or mortgagee shall be considered as a subscriber in the room of the original, and the property so sold, mortgaged, or otherwise transferred, shall still remain liable for payment of the quotas in the same manner as if the right thereof had remained in the original owner.

9. As an encouragement and compensation to the said William Frederick Ast, for forming, suggesting and publishing the before-mentioned useful plan of mutual assurance, Be it further enacted, That he shall be entitled to have and receive annually, one cent for every hundred dollars that are or may be insured as aforesaid, to be paid him at the end of every three months, as the same become due, out of the funds of the said mutual assurance society, as a yearly stipend, and for which, if required by the insured, he is by himself or agent to perform faithfully the duty (which can reasonably be done by one person) of such office of the said society as he may be appointed to by the same, and the emolument hereby allowed shall not in any manner be diminished during his good and faithful behaviour.

Compensation to Wm. F. Ast, author of the plan.

Society may require him to perform such office as they may appoint him to.

10. The subscribers in default of paying the premiums at the times fixed therefor, shall, on request of the cashier, be compelled to pay the same with six per cent. interest thereon to the day of payment, and their property shall be liable to be sold for the same as aforesaid.

How subscribers may be compelled to pay the premiums.

11. This act shall commence and be in force, from and after the passing thereof.

CHAP. I.

An Act for the safe keeping the Land Papers of the Northern Neck in the Register's Office.

[Acts of 1785, ch. 67, pa. 36.]

1 WHEREAS it is necessary and expedient that the records and papers upon which the titles to their lands of the citizens of this commonwealth depend, should be kept in the same office; and whereas it hath heretofore been customary to keep the records, documents, and entries of the lands within the district of the Northern Neck in the office of the late proprietor:

2. Be it enacted, That in future all such records, documents, books, and papers, shall be in the keeping of the register of the land office, in the city of Richmond, who is hereby appointed keeper of the same; and the executive shall, within three months from the passing of this act, cause the said records, documents, books, and papers, to be safely removed from the said proprietary office into the office of the register, who shall give a receipt for the same, which receipt shall be lodged in the council chamber, and recorded in the council books. And whereas since the death of the late proprietor, the right honourable Thomas Lord Fairfax, no mode hath been adopted to enable those who had before his death made entries for waste and unappropriated lands in his office, nor to enable those who since his death have made entries within the said district, according to an act of assembly, entitled "An act concerning surveyors," to obtain titles for the same,

4. Be it therefore enacted, That where any surveys have been heretofore made, or hereafter shall be made under entries made in the life of the said proprietor, or under entries made with the surveyor of any county, under the act of assembly aforesaid, and which have been returned to the said proprietary office, or shall hereafter be returned to the register's office, the register shall make out grants therefor, to bear teste under the hand of the governor and the seal of this commonwealth, in the same manner as is by law directed in cases of other unappropriated lands; and the surveyors with whom such entries have been made, are hereby directed and empowered, to proceed to survey and record the same, and to make return of such surveys to the register's office, in the same manner, and within the same time, as is or shall be directed in cases of warrants issued for other unappropriated lands within this commonwealth, and thereupon grants shall issue in the manner herein before directed.

Property in Alexandria may be insured.

2. Be it further enacted, That the said mutual assurance society may insure buildings situate in the county of Alexandria; as also the mutual insurance company against fire on goods and furniture in the state of Virginia, may insure goods and furniture in the said county, within the district of Columbia, and such subscribers for insurance, shall have the same benefits and rights of recovery, as if he, she or they, had been citizens of this commonwealth; Provided, That congress pass a law subjecting those who declare for insurance in the aforesaid society and company, or either of them, to the provisions and regulations of the laws of this state, which are already, or may hereafter be passed, concerning the said society and company.

Commencement

3. This act shall commence and be in force so soon as congress shall pass a law subjecting the citizens of the county of Alexandria, who shall hereafter subscribe for insurance in the said society and company, to the same mode of recovery in the court of the county of Alexandria, as is now allowed and granted by the laws of this commonwealth, against defaulting subscribers residing within this state.

WHEREAS it hath been represented to this present general assembly, on the part of the mutual assurance society against fire on buildings, that such a change in their constitution as shall separate the interests of the inhabitants of the towns from the interests of the inhabitants of the country, is essential to the equalization of the risks; and that the same hath been agreed upon at a general annual meeting of the said society.

7. All valuations of houses now insured in the towns, or in the country, shall be revised within the year one thousand eight hundred and five, under the superintendence of the said agents, and no building which may be thereafter consumed by fire, shall be paid for, but according to such revaluation, subject to a deduction of one fifth thereof; and where such revaluation shall exceed the former valuation, an additional premium shall be paid. Property now insured to be revalued within the year 1805.

8. Buildings both in the towns and in the country, shall be arranged into as many different classes of risk, as the president and directors may think necessary for the purposes of equalization. Classes of risk.

The salary of the president shall be five hundred dollars, and the salaries of the directors, three hundred and fifty dollars each. A majority of the members shall be necessary to form a board for the transacting of business not delegated to the president. The president alone may perform any act which he may be authorised to do by a resolution of the board, except in the disbursement of money, which power shall be exercised only by the board. And the said president and directors shall take the following oath: "I, A. B. do solemnly swear, or affirm, that I will faithfully execute the duties of my office (as president or director, as the case may be) to the best of my skill and understanding." ## APPENDIX No. IX.

CONTAINING A COLLECTION OF SUCH ACTS OF THE GENERAL ASSEMBLY, OF A PUBLIC NATURE, AS HAVE PASSED SINCE THE REVISAL OF 1785, AND WERE OMITTED IN THE EDITIONS OF 1794, AND 1803.

CHAP. I.

An Act to amend an Act "For establishing a Land Office, and ascertaining the terms and manner of granting waste and unappropriated lands."

[Acts of 1784, ch. 10, pa. 7.]

1. WHEREAS by the act, entitled, "an act for establishing a Land office, and ascertaining the terms and manner of granting waste and unappropriated lands," it was enacted, that any person possessing high lands, to which any swamp, marshes, or sunken grounds are contiguous, shall have the pre-emption of such swamps, marshes, or sunken grounds, for one year from and after the passing of the said recited act; and if such person shall not obtain a grant for such swamps, marshes, or sunken grounds, within the said year, then any other person may enter on, and obtain a grant for the same, in like manner as is directed in the case of other unappropriated lands. And great inconvenience will arise to the proprietors of high lands adjacent to such swamps, marshes, or sunken grounds, for the want of a due promulgation of the said recited act:

2. Be it therefore enacted, That so much of the said act as is recited above, shall be, and the same is hereby repealed. And for preventing a multiplicity of law suits which may arise out of the said recited clause in the act aforesaid,

3. Be it further enacted, That all and every entry or entries that may have been made by any person whatsoever for such swamps, marshes, or sunken grounds, shall be, and the same are hereby declared null and void.

4. And be it further enacted, That the proprietor of high lands, to which any such swamps, marshes, or sunken grounds are contiguous, shall have a right of pre-emption to enter for and complete their title thereto, until the first day of May, one thousand seven hundred and eighty-six, and no longer; after which, it shall and may be lawful for any other person or persons to enter for, survey, and obtain grants for the same: saving to persons beyond sea, feme coverts, infants, and persons under other legal disabilities, the term of three years, after their respective disabilities shall be removed.

5. And be it further enacted, That patents shall be obtained upon entries for all vacant sunken grounds aforesaid, in the same manner and upon the same terms as upon surplus lands. And whereas the register of the land office is restrained from receiving surveys, unless the warrant under which each survey is made is also therewith returned, which in many cases is productive of great inconvenience, and the register by having in his office a list of warrants is possessed of a sufficient check to prevent imposition herein;

6. Be it therefore enacted, That the said register may henceforth receive into his office, any survey certified by a sworn surveyor, which corresponds with the warrant it refers to, although the said warrant under which the said survey is made shall not be returned into his office.

7. And be it further enacted, That the sheriffs of the several counties within this commonwealth, shall immediately after receiving this act, read the same at the court house door of their respective counties for two several court days.

CHAP. II.

An Act altering the time of the annual meeting of the General Assembly, and for other purposes.

[Acts of 1784, ch. 20, pa. 12.]

BE it enacted, That the sheriffs, under sheriffs, or other officers authorised by law to hold elections of senators and delegates; shall within sixty days* after every election for their respective districts, counties, cities, or Boroughs, return to the clerk of the house of delegates, and to the clerk of the senate, as the case may require, certificates of such elections under their hands and seals; and shall furnish each delegate and senator with a duplicate thereof. Any sheriff, under sheriff, or other officer, failing to make such return within the time abovementioned, shall forfeit and pay the sum of fifty pounds*; to be recovered by bill, plaint, or information, in any court of record within this commonwealth; one half to the use of the commonwealth, and the other half to the informer. [If any sheriff or deputy sheriff, shall directly or indirectly so interfere in the election of senators or delegates, as to shew partiality for any of the candidates, he shall forfeit and pay the sum of two hundred pounds; to be recovered on bill, plaint, or information, in any court of record; one moiety to the use of the informer, and the other to the use of the commonwealth; and moreover be deprived of his right of voting for two years at any such election thereafter.]

2. And be it further enacted, That the meeting of the general assembly shall be on the third Monday in October* annually, unless convened at some other time by the governor, agreeable to the powers vested in him by the constitution or form of government. So much of an ordinance of convention, entitled "an ordinance for regulating the election of delegates, and ascertaining their allowances, and also for regulating the election of committee men in the several counties and corporations within this colony, and for other purposes," as comes within the purview of this act, shall be, and the same is hereby repealed.

*Altered in 1793 to second Tuesday in November, and in 1796, to first Monday in December. See Rev. Code, vol. 1, ch. 162, pa. 315—ch. 205, pa. 364.

CHAP. III.

An Act to explain and amend the Act, entitled "An Act to amend an Act, entitled, an Act for adjusting and settling the Titles of Claimers to unpatented Lands under the present and former Government, previous to the Establishment of the Commonwealth's Land Office."

[Acts of 1784, ch. 79, pa. 23.]

1 WHEREAS by the act, entitled "an act to amend the act, entitled an act for "adjusting and settling the titles of claimers to unpatented lands under the present and former government, previous to the establishment of the commonwealth's land office," county courts were empowered to grant certificates of settlement and pre-emption rights in certain cases. And whereas also, it has been doubted whether any person claiming lands by virtue of a treasury warrant, and caveating a person claiming the same lands under such certificate of settlement and pre-emption, or being caveated by him, be allowed to examine into and contest the legality of such certificate in the trial of the cause, even though he had no previous notice that such certificate was to be applied for:

2. Be it enacted, That in all cases where any caveat has been or shall be entered by or against any person claiming lands by virtue of a certificate granted by a county court of a settlement and pre-emption right, or of a pre-emption right only, such certificate shall not of itself be considered as conclusive proof of the title of the person holding the same, but the opposite party, by or against whom such caveat may have been entered, shall be allowed to adduce any testimony proving that such certificate was granted contrary to law, or in any manner invalidating the said certificate. Provided always, That any magistrate, or officer belonging to the court, granting such certificate as aforesaid, and, who was present at the time of granting the same, may be admitted as a witness for either party to prove on what testimony such certificate was granted.

CHAP. IV.

An Act to amend the Act concerning Pensioners.

[Acts of 1785, ch. 44, pa. 32.]

1 WHEREAS the United States in congress assembled, have by their act of the seventh of June last, recommended to the several states to make provision for officers, soldiers, and seamen, who have been disabled in the service of the said United States, in a certain manner in the said act described, and it is expedient and necessary that the same be adopted and carried into effect within this commonwealth; and also, it is found that the laws now in force concerning pensioners, are very defective:

2. Be it therefore enacted by the General Assembly, That the auditors of public accounts be, and they are hereby authorised and directed, to make out in a book to be kept for that purpose, on the first day of January, in every year hereafter, a complete list of all officers, soldiers, and seamen, who having served in the army or navy of the United States, or in the militia in the service of the United States, and have been disabled in such service, who now are or hereafter may be on the pension list. In this list shall be expressed the pay, age, and disability of each invalid; also, the regiment, corps, or ship, to which he belonged, together with the changes which may happen, from year to year. A copy of this list shall annually, as soon as may be, after the day abovementioned, be transmitted to the executive, who shall transmit a duplicate thereof to the secretary at war, as directed by the act of congress aforesaid.

3. And be it further enacted, That no officer, soldier, or seaman, who has been disabled in the service of the United States, or of this commonwealth, shall, after the passing of this act, be considered as an invalid, or entitled to a pension, unless he is so disabled as to be incapable of military duty, or of obtaining a livelihood by labour, and can produce a certificate from the commanding officer, or surgeon, of the regiment, ship, corps, or company in which he served, or from a physician or surgeon of a military hospital, or other good and sufficient testimony, setting forth his disability, and that he was thus disabled while in service. All commissioned officers within the aforesaid description, disabled in the service of the United States, or of this commonwealth, in the army, navy, or militia, so as to be wholly incapable of military duty, or of obtaining a livelihood, shall be allowed a yearly pension, equal to half of their pay, respectively; and all commissioned officers, as aforesaid, who shall not have been disabled in so great a degree, shall be allowed a yearly pension, which shall correspond with the degree of their disability, compared with that of an officer wholly disabled. All non-commissioned officers and privates, within the aforesaid description, disabled in either service, as aforesaid, so as to be wholly incapable of military duty, or of obtaining a livelihood by labour, shall be allowed a sum not exceeding five dollars per month; and all non-commissioned officers and privates, who shall not have been disabled in so great a degree, shall be allowed such a sum as shall correspond with the degree of their disability, compared with that of a non-commissioned officer or private wholly disabled.

4. And be it further enacted, That the governor, with advice of council, be, and he is hereby authorised and directed, to examine all claimants of pensions, as aforesaid, and upon finding any person to be an invalid, and that he was disabled while in service, to give him a certificate thereof, specifying the regiment, corps, or ship or other vessel, to which he belonged, and whether he was in the service of the United States, or of this commonwealth, when disabled, together with the degree of disability, and the pay to which he is entitled; a duplicate of which certificate, shall be transmitted to the auditors of public accounts, who shall thereupon enter such invalid on the pension list as heretofore. And in case of any claimants being so disabled or remote from the seat of government, as to render a personal attendance there too burthensome and inconvenient, the executive shall, upon satisfactory proof thereof, and having sufficient evidence in their opinion, on which to found any certificate directed by this act to be given, grant such certificate, notwithstanding the non-attendance of the claimant.

5. And be it further enacted, That the auditors shall, annually, before the last day of March, transmit to the clerks of the several counties in this state, a general list of pensioners; and every pensioner shall, annually, in May* or June*, apply in person, or if an orphan, by his or her guardian, to the court of the county wherein he or she resides, and exhibit the certificate upon which his or her claim is founded, and make oath that he or she is the person to whom it was given; or where such person shall be unable to attend, he or she shall make the like oath before a magistrate; and the court upon comparing the certificate with the list transmitted from the auditors, and finding it to be right, shall order it to be recorded, and direct the sheriff to pay the pension; a copy of which order shall be given the pensioner: whereupon the sheriff shall make payment thereof, and take a receipt upon the said order, and be entitled to credit for the same in the settlement of his account with the auditors. And to the end, that all invalids who have heretofore been put on the pension list, may regularly have certificates thereof, and be enabled to conform to the regulations in this act prescribed,

6. Be it enacted, That every such invalid having a certificate, such as is above directed, shall apply to the governor, who, upon examination, and finding the same to be true, shall affix his counter signature thereto; or having no such certificate, shall in like manner make application and obtain one, specifying when he was put on the pension list.

7. And be it further enacted, That the executive shall be, and they are hereby authorised, to grant certificates for admission to the pension list, with such allowances as to them shall seem just, the widows and orphans of all officers, soldiers, and seamen, who died in the service of the United States, or of this commonwealth, in the army, navy, or militia, upon certificates from the court of the county in which they reside respectively, of their being widows or orphans of such officers, soldiers, or seamen, as the case may be: Provided, That no such allowances shall be made except indigency of circumstances shall render the same necessary. And to the end, that all invalids, widows and orphans who now are or hereafter may be on the pension list, may from time to time have their several allowances, adapted to the degrees of disability of the former, and necessities of the two latter, or dismissed from the said list, when such allowances become no longer requisite :

8. Be it enacted, That all pensioners shall undergo a re-examination, whenever the governor, with advice of council, shall direct ; and upon any such re-examination, the executive are hereby authorised and required, to order the allowance of the pensioner to be raised or reduced according to his or her real situation : or in case the allowance shall appear to be no longer necessary, in any degree, to order such pensioner to be struck off from the list altogether.

9. And be it further enacted, That the auditors shall make up accounts of all payments which have been or hereafter may be made to invalids for their pensions, to the end of the present year, and ought, according to the principles of this act, to be charged to the United States, and that they charge the same against the quotas of the respective years for which such payments may have been made ; and all payments of such pensions for any succeeding year, shall be charged in like manner : Provided, That no greater sum than half the pay of any officer shall be charged to the account of the United States. Every act or resolution of assembly concerning any matter or thing coming within the purview of this act, shall be, and the same is hereby repealed.

CHAP. V.

Progr. 11.

1 WHEREAS the great number of the laws of this commonwealth, dispersed as they are through many different volumes, renders it often questionable, which of them are in force ; copies of those laws are procured with difficulty, and only at high prices ; and so many of them have been repealed, wholly or in part, were temporary and have expired ; were occasional, and have had their effect ; were private or local, or have been re-enacted in substance, in the laws, taken from the report of the revisors, appointed in the year of our lord one thousand seven hundred and seventy-six, that scarce a third of them concern the public at large.

Certain persons appointed to revise the laws—and to report to the General Assembly.

Be it enacted by the General Assembly, That James Mercer, Henry Tazewell, Joseph Prentis, Saint George Tucker, Edmond Randolph, James Innes, John Taylor and John Marshall, Esquires, be appointed, whose duty it shall be, first, to report to the next session of the general assembly, what English statutes, if any there be, are suited to this commonwealth, and shall not have been enacted in the form of Virginia laws ; secondly, what laws or parts of laws, which are of a general concern, shall remain in force at the close of the present session of assembly ; thirdly, what laws on the same subject, ought from their multiplicity to be reduced into single acts ; and fourthly, what laws or parts of laws are either unfit to be continued in force, or unnecessary to be published in any code of the laws ; fifthly, to prepare and report as aforesaid, marginal notes and a full index to all the laws of this commonwealth ; sixthly, to note in due order of time and report as aforesaid, the titles of all those laws, which may be proper to be omitted, in a general compilation of the laws ; and seventhly, to instruct the clerk of the house of delegates, as far as it may be in their power, how to obtain for the use of his office, copies of those laws, the rolls whereof are lost.

To prepare marginal notes and a full index to the laws.

Copies of those laws, the rolls whereof are lost, to be procured.

2. And for preventing many inconveniencies, which certain rules for the construction of laws have already occasioned, and may hereafter occasion :

A law repealed, not revived by repealing the law which repealed the first. When the acts passed at stated sessions to commence in force.

Be it further enacted by the General Assembly, That whensoever one law, which shall have repealed another, shall be itself repealed, the former law shall not be revived, without express words to that effect ; every act passed during any stated annual session, shall commence in force on the first day of March then next ensuing, unless in the act itself, another day be particularly mentioned, for the commencement thereof.

Rule of construing laws passed at the same session.

3. As often as a question shall arise, whether a law passed during any session, changes or repeals a former law, passed during the same session, the same construction shall be made, as would have been made, if the act entituled “ an act concerning election of members of general assembly,” had never been passed.

When this act commences in force.

4. This act shall commence and be in force on the fifteenth day of January, one thousand seven hundred and ninety.

CHAP. XIV.

An Act repealing a part of the Ordinance by which certain English Statutes were declared to be in Force within this Commonwealth.

[Passed November 25th, 1789.—Acts of 1789, ch. 17, pa. 11.]

WHEREAS by an ordinance of convention, entitled Preamble:
“ an ordinance to enable the present magistrates and officers to continue the administration of justice and for settling the general mode of proceedings in criminal and other cases, till the same can be more amply provided for;” it is among other things enacted, that “ all statutes or acts of parliament made in aid of the common law, prior to the fourth year of the reign of king James the first, and which are of a general nature, not local to that kingdom, shall be the rule of decision, and shall be considered as in full force, until the same shall be altered by the legislative power of this colony;” and whereas the good people of this commonwealth may be ensnared by an ignorance of acts of parliament, which have never been published in any collection of the laws; and it has been thought adviseable by the general assembly during their present session, specially to enact such of the said statutes as to them appeared worthy of adoption, and did not already make a part of the public code of the laws of Virginia.

Be it enacted by the General Assembly, That so much of the above recited ordinance, as relates to any statute or act of parliament, shall be and is hereby repealed; and that no such statute or act shall have any force or authority within this commonwealth. English statutes no longer to be in force in this state.

2. But all rights arising under any such statute or act, and all crimes and offences committed against the same, at any time before the commencement of this act, shall remain in the same condition in all respects, as if this act had never been made. This act shall commence in force on the first day of January, in the year one thousand seven hundred and ninety-one. All rights arising under them and offences committed against them before the commencement of this act to remain in the same condition.

CHAP. XV.

An Act to fix the Time of holding Elections for Representatives to Congress.

[Passed December 1st, 1789.—Acts of 1789, ch. 27, pa. 16.]

WHEREAS the act entitled, “ an act for the election of representatives, pursuant to the constitution of government of the United States,” is confined to the election of representatives to be holden on the second day of February, which was in the year of our lord one thousand seven hundred and eighty-nine.

Be it enacted by the General Assembly, That the above recited act shall be extended to future elections, with the alterations and amendments following, that is to say: First, the election of representatives shall be holden on the first Monday in September, in the year one thousand seven hundred and ninety, and one thousand seven hundred and ninety-two, and in every second year thereafter; and the two years for which any future representative may serve, shall bear date from the second day of February in the year one thousand seven hundred and ninety-one, one thousand Elections of Representatives in Congress when to be holden;

Elections to supply vacancies, when and how to be holden.

seven hundred and ninety-three, and in every second year thereafter: Secondly, when the executive authority of this state, shall in pursuance of the constitution of the United States issue a writ of election to fill any vacancy happening in the representation thereof, the place and manner of holding such election, and all the rules and regulations relating thereto shall be the same, as are prescribed by the above recited act.

CHAP. XVI.

An Act concerning Invalid Pensioners.

[Passed December 19th, 1789.—Acts of 1789, ch. 41, pa. 24.]

Preamble.

WHEREAS it is provided by the act entitled, “an act to amend the act concerning pensioners,” that the court of the county wherein the pensioner resides, shall compare the certificate upon which the claim is founded, with the list transmitted from the auditors, and finding it to be right, shall order it to be recorded and direct the sheriff to pay the pension. And whereas by an act of congress, entitled “an act providing for the payment of the invalid pensioners of the United States,” it is enacted that the military pensions which have been granted and paid by the states respectively, in pursuance of the acts of the United States in congress assembled, to the invalids who were wounded and disabled during the late war, shall be continued and paid by the United States, from the fourth day of March, in the year one thousand seven hundred and eighty-nine, for the space of one year, under such regulations as the president of the United States may direct.

County courts not to direct the payment of pensions hereafter.

Be it therefore enacted by the General Assembly, That after the passing of this act, the courts of the several counties shall not direct the sheriffs thereof to pay any pension coming within the description of the above recited act of congress; and to prevent misconstruction, the executive shall cause to be forwarded to the said courts respectively, a list of such pensions as are provided for by congress in manner aforesaid, together with the regulations made by the president of the United States in the premises.

TUESDAY, the 1st of November, 1791.

RESOLVED, That the executive be requested to procure fifteen hundred copies of the laws of the last session of congress, or a greater number if necessary, having regard to the number of the judges of the superior courts, magistrates, clerks, and attorneys for the commonwealth; and that they be also requested to have the same number of the laws of each succeeding session of congress printed, and cause the same to be distributed amongst the several counties and corporations within this commonwealth, in the same manner as the laws of the general assembly.

TUESDAY, the 29th of November, 1791.

MR. CORBIN reported, from the committee to whom was referred a letter from the revisors of the laws, stating a difference of opinion, as to the object of the legislature, with respect to that branch of their duty, which consists in “preparing bills upon the subject of such laws, as from their multiplicity ought to be reduced into single acts,” that the committee had, according to order, had the same under their consideration, and had come to several resolutions thereupon, which he read in his place, and afterwards delivered in at the clerk’s table, where the same were again twice read, and agreed to by the house, as followeth:

Resolved, That it is the opinion of this committee, that it was the intention of the legislature, in assigning the aforementioned duty to the revisors, that the several laws now existing on the same subject, should be consolidated into single bills, but that no new matter should be introduced into the system; the object of the act under which the said revisors were appointed, being to compile a new and concise edition, and not to form a new code of laws.

Resolved, That it is the opinion of this committee, that the revisors in examining the bills which have been drafted, ought to conform to this construction of the said act, and, that as soon as the revisal shall be completed, the executive be requested to order the public printer to print two hundred and fifty copies of the bills, under the direction of any two of the committee of revisors, two copies of which shall be transmitted by the executive to each county and borough within this commonwealth, for the use of the delegates, and one copy to each of the senators who may compose the next general assembly.

Resolved, That the revisors ought to be authorised and empowered to employ a clerk.

December 3d, 1791.—Agreed to by the senate.

 The first twelve articles proposed as amendments to the constitution of the United States, were adopted this session, by resolutions of the house of delegates and senate.—See resolutions at the end of acts 1791, and laws of the United States, vol. 4—Appendix, pa. 23.

[Passed December 19th, 1794.—Acts of 1794, ch. 21, pa. 15.]

1 WHEREAS by the twenty-ninth section of the act, entitled "an act prescribing the mode of ascertaining the taxable property within the commonwealth, and of collecting the public revenue," it is enacted in the words following, to wit: "No sheriff or collector shall be allowed to distrain for any taxes after two years from the time the taxes became due, except sheriffs appointed prior to the year one thousand seven hundred and ninety-two, who shall have the power of distraining for the taxes now due for the term of eighteen months from the passing of this act. Provided nevertheless, that no sheriff or collector shall be allowed to distrain for such arrearages until he shall have entered into bond, with sufficient security to be approved of by such court, to pay and satisfy all such damages and costs as may be recovered against him for any abuse of the power hereby vested in him." And whereas, by the fortieth section of the said act the same was declared to commence in force from and after the passing thereof, to wit, the thirteenth day of December, in the year of our lord one thousand seven hundred and ninety-two: And whereas, by one other act, passed on the twenty-eighth day of December, in the year one thousand seven hundred and ninety-two, entitled "an act declaring what acts of the present session shall be immediately in force, and to suspend the operation of all other acts of the present session, which are of a public and permanent nature," the operation of the act first aforesaid was suspended until the first day of October, in the year of our lord one thousand seven hundred and ninety-three, by reason whereof doubts have arisen from what period the aforesaid term of eighteen months was to be accounted to commence: For remedying whereof, and to give to the said sheriffs appointed prior to the year one thousand seven hundred and ninety-two, the full benefit intended by the said act,

2. Be it enacted and declared, That the said term of eighteen months within which they may have power of distraining for the taxes then due under the regulations of the said act, shall be held to have commenced from and after the said first day of October, one thousand seven hundred and ninety-three, and not sooner. And be it further enacted, That the further time of six months from the expiration of the said term of eighteen months, shall be allowed the said sheriffs for completing their collections under the regulations and provisions of the said recited act,

Time allowed by law to sheriffs appointed prior to the year 1792, to collect their arrearages extended.

3. Whereas doubts have arisen whether the lands on which no taxes are paid for the space of three years do not become forfeited to the commonwealth under the thirty-fifth section of the aforesaid act, although the returns directed to be made by the sheriffs or collectors, and the notice to be thereupon given by the treasurer, as prescribed by the thirty-fourth section of the said act, have not been made nor given. For a plain declaration of the law, Be it therefore enacted, That no lands shall be deemed to have been forfeited to the commonwealth, unless the returns and notice have been made and given agreeably to the said thirty-fourth section, nor shall any land become forfeited to the commonwealth for the non-payment of taxes for the space of three years, unless the returns and notice prescribed by the thirty-fourth section shall be made and given.

No lands to be deemed forfeited for non-payment of taxes, unless the returns and notices required by law have been made and given.

If the register of the land office shall at any time fail to account, according to the directions of this act, for the space of six months, he shall forfeit and pay the sum of ten thousand pounds, to be recovered in the name of the governor or chief magistrate for the time being, in any court of record, by the solicitor, on thirty days previous notice; and if the deputy

5. Be it enacted, That whenever upon a caveat the general court shall determine in favor of the caveator, all the fees he shall pay into the register's office in consequence of such determination, in order to obtain his patent, shall be by the register paid to the person who in the first instance upon the return of the survey hath been compelled to pay the fees:

[Acts of October 1784, ch. 66, pa. 15.]

IT being represented to this present general assembly, that many people within this commonwealth have not received the benefit of an act of the last session of assembly, entitled "an act to revive and amend in part an act, entitled an act for giving further time to enter certificates for settlement rights, and for locating warrants upon pre-emption rights, and for other purposes;”

2. Be it enacted, That the said act be, and is hereby continued: until the first day of June, one thousand seven hundred and eighty-five and no longer.

CHAP. VI.

An Act to explain and amend the Act, entitled “ an Act to amend an Act, entitled an Act for adjusting and settling the Titles of Claimers to unpatented Lands under the present and former Government, previous to the Establishment of the Commonwealth’s Land Office.

Note.—This act is published in the appendix to this volume, pa. (88.)

CHAP. VII.

An Act concerning the Location of certain Warrants upon Waste and Unappropriated Lands, in the Counties of Greenbrier, Harrison, and Monongalia.

[Acts of 1785, ch. 31, pa. 25.]

1 WHEREAS it hath been represented to this present general assembly, that previous to the extending the line between Greenbrier and Harrison counties, the latter of which has been lately taken from Monongalia, that state warrants have been located on the same parcel of land in the several counties herein mentioned, and as it is just and right that the first location should hold said land,

2. Be it therefore enacted, That the surveyor of each of the aforesaid counties, shall, on or before the first day of June next, transmit an attested copy of all entries of state warrants made in his office, to the surveyor of each of the aforesaid counties, with the date, and quantity of land held or claimed by such entries, that the several surveyors may thereby be enabled to survey said entries to the person or persons who had the first locations:

3. And be it further enacted, That all surveys heretofore made in either of the aforesaid counties by virtue of the first location, shall be good and valid; any act to the contrary notwithstanding.

CHAP. VIII.

An Act for reviving, amending, and continuing “ an Act to revive and amend in part, an Act for giving further time to enter Certificates for Settlement Rights, and for Locating Warrants upon Pre-emption Rights, and for other purposes.”

[Acts of 1785, ch. 36, pa. 27.]

1 WHEREAS the act of assembly, passed in the year one thousand seven hundred and eighty-four; entitled “ an act to revive and amend in part, an act, entitled an act for giving further time to enter certificates for settlement rights, and for locating warrants upon pre-emption rights, and for other purposes,” which was continued by a subsequent act, expired on the first day of June last, and it is expedient that the same should be revived, continued, and amended:

2. Be it therefore enacted, That the said recited act shall be revived, and continue and be in force until the first day of November, one thousand seven hundred and eighty-six, and no longer; within which time, the register of the land office, or his deputy, shall receive all plats and certificates of survey, although not returned within the time heretofore limited by law; and such lands shall not be considered as forfeited, or liable to a forfeiture on that account. And whereas, the time allowed for entering certificates for settlement rights, is expired, and it being adjudged necessary that the same ought to be revived and continued,

3. Be it therefore enacted, That it shall and may be lawful for the surveyors of this commonwealth, within their respective counties, at any time before the first day of June next, to receive and enter all such certificates, or the attested copies of such as shall be lost, and to proceed to survey the same as the law directs. And whereas sundry persons have been prevented by unavoidable accident, from obtaining and entering pre-emption warrants before the register of the land office was prohibited from issuing any more warrants by a resolution of the general assembly,

4. Be it further enacted, That all such persons shall be allowed until the said first day of November, to obtain and enter such warrants. And that every person entitled to a pre-emption warrant as aforesaid, shall pay into the public treasury, thirteen shillings and four-pence for every hundred acres of land, in specie or audited certificates, in full for the state price heretofore required, which being audited, and a certificate thereof produced to the register of the land office, the said register is hereby authorised and directed to issue such warrant to the party entitled to the same, or to his assigns.

CHAP. IX.

An Act to repeal an Act, entitled " an Act concerning Entries and Surveys on the Western Waters, and for other purposes."

[Acts of October 1785, ch. 41, pa. 31.]

WHEREAS the time limited by an act, entitled " an act concerning entries and surveys on the western waters," hath been found too short for the owners of entries to carry the same into actual surveys, and the mode therein prescribed being found inconvenient:

2. Be it enacted by the General Assembly, That so much of the said recited act as directs that all entries made before the passing of the said act shall be surveyed by the first day of February next, for the surveying of all future entries on the western waters within one year from the date thereof, be, and the same is hereby repealed.

3. And be it further enacted, That immediately after the first day of January, in the year one thousand seven hundred and eighty-seven, the principal surveyor of every county on the western waters shall, and he is hereby required, to give notice to all persons claiming land by entry within his county, or to their agents, attorneys, or other persons acting in their behalf, either personally, or by affixing the same at the courthouse door, or other usual place of holding the courts of the said county, on two several court days, that he will proceed by himself, or one of his deputies, to survey the lands therein mentioned on a certain day which he shall appoint, which day so appointed shall be one month at the least after the notice given or last time of advertising the same. And if any person, or his agent or attorney, as aforesaid, shall fail or neglect to attend the surveyor, with chain carriers, and a person to mark the lines as required by law, on the day appointed for that purpose, such entry shall become void, and the lands liable to be again entered for by any person holding a land warrant; and the surveyor shall return the warrant on which such entry was made, to the person owning the same; or his agent, which may nevertheless be located on any waste or unappropriated lands, or on the same lands, if not already taken by some other warrant. And the owners of entries already made, shall, on or before the said first day of January, appoint some person within the county where the lands lie, or their agent or attorney, who shall give notice of such appointment to the surveyor, within one month thereafter, or on failure thereof, his entry shall become void. Provided, That nothing in this or any other act shall extend to forfeit or make void any entry claimed by infants, or prisoners in captivity, but that all such persons shall have three years after their several disabilities are removed, to complete the same: Provided also, That, if on the day appointed by the surveyor for the surveying any entry as before directed, he shall be prevented, by accident or other cause, from making the same, such entry shall not, in that case, become void, but the surveyor shall give other notice as often as such cases shall happen. And whereas the principal surveyor of Jefferson county resigned his office in the month of July, in the year one thousand seven hundred and eighty-four, but after such resignation, and before notice thereof could be given at his office, sundry locations and surveys were made with the deputy, and it is just and reasonable to confirm the same:

4. Be it therefore enacted, That all such locations and surveys shall, to all intents and purposes, be good and valid, and shall entitle the persons claiming land under the same to the same preference as they would have had, if no such resignation had taken place.

CHAP. X.

An Act to dispose of the Waste and Unappropriated Lands in the Commonwealth of Virginia, on the Eastern Waters.

[Acts of October 1785, ch. 42, pa. 32.]

FOR creating a fund in aid of the annual taxes, to discharge the public debt, Be it enacted by the General Assembly, That any person may acquire title to so much waste and unappropriated land, lying within this commonwealth, on the eastern waters, as he shall desire to purchase, on paying the consideration of twenty-five pounds* for every hundred acres, and so in proportion for a greater or smaller quantity, and obtaining certificate from the auditor of public accounts in the following manner: The consideration money shall be paid into the hands of the treasurer, who shall give to the purchaser a receipt for the payment, specifying the purpose it was made for, which being delivered to the auditor, he shall give to such person a certificate thereof, with the quantity of land he or she is entitled to, and upon lodging the same in the land office, the register thereof shall grant to such person or persons a warrant, authorising the surveyor of the county where the land lies to lay off and survey the same therein, under the like fees, rules, regulations and restrictions, as are directed and prescribed for the issuing, entering, locating, surveying and granting patents on warrants, by the law now in force relative thereto. All fees accruing to the commonwealth, shall be paid into the treasury by the register of the land office, in the same manner, and under the same penalties, as directed in the act appropriating the fees of the land office, in aid of the public revenue, and placing the register, his deputies and assistants, on the civil list; and the said fees, with the money arising on the sales aforesaid, shall be applied by the treasurer in aid of the funds set apart for payment of foreign creditors. Provided nevertheless, That nothing herein contained shall be construed to affect any legal entry made before the passing of this act, nor any pre-emption right to marshes or sunken grounds.

CHAP. XI.

An Act for safe keeping the Land Papers of the Northern Neck in the Register's Office.

[Acts of October 1785, ch. 47, pa. 36.]

CHAP. XII.

An Act for reviving, continuing and amending an Act to revive and amend in part an Act for giving further time to enter Certificates for Settlement Rights, and for Locating Warrants upon Pre-emption Rights, and for other purposes.

[Acts of 1786, ch. 3, pa. 5.]

WHEREAS the act of assembly passed in the year one thousand seven hundred and eighty-four, entitled "an act to revive and amend in part an act for giving further time to enter certificates for settlement rights, and for locating warrants upon pre-emption rights, and for other purposes," which was continued by several subsequent acts, did expire on the first day of November last, and it is expedient that the same should be revived, continued, and amended, Be it therefore enacted, That the said recited act shall be revived and continue in part, and be in force until the last day of December, one thousand seven hundred and eighty-seven, within which time the register of the land office or his deputy, shall receive all plats and certificates of survey although not returned within the time heretofore limited by law and such lands shall not be considered as forfeited or liable to a forfeiture on that account.

2. And whereas the time allowed by law for entering certificates for settlement rights is expired, and it being adjudged necessary that the same ought to be revived and continued, Be it therefore enacted, That it shall and may be lawful for the surveyors of this commonwealth within their respective counties at any time before the said last day of December, to receive and enter all such certificates, or the attested copies of such as shall be lost, and to proceed to survey the same as the law directs. Provided, Such attestation be made by the commissioners who granted the same, or by the clerk of the superior court of the district of Kentucky, or the register of the land office.

Provided also, and be it further enacted, That no county court within this commonwealth shall, after the passing of this act, exercise a power of granting certificates for settlement or pre-emption rights.

3. And whereas sundry persons have been prevented by unavoidable accident from obtaining and entering pre-emption warrants before the register of the land-office was prohibited from issuing any more warrants by a resolution of the general assembly, Be it further enacted, That all such persons shall be allowed until the said last day of December, to obtain and enter such warrants, And that every person entitled to a pre-emption warrant as aforesaid, shall pay into the public treasury thirteen shillings and four pence for every hundred acres of land in specie or audited certificates in full for the state price heretofore required, which being audited and a certificate thereof produced to the register of the land office, the said register is hereby authorised and directed to issue such warrant to the party entitled to the same or to his assigns.

4. And whereas by sundry acts of assembly entries and surveys on the eastern waters have been hitherto protected from forfeiture, and it is reasonable that a certain time should be limited for surveying such entries and making return thereof to the land office, Be it therefore enacted, That the entries for lands on the eastern waters, which have been legally made before the first day of January, in the year one thousand seven hundred and eighty, except entries made within the district of the Northern Neck, shall proceed to survey the same with all practicable dispatch, which surveys, together with those already made and founded upon entries of the above description, shall be returned into the register's office on or before the first day of October, one thousand seven hundred and eighty-eight, and not after, and on failure of such surveys being made and returned on or before the said first day of October, one thousand seven hundred and eighty-eight, such lands are hereby declared vacant and shall be liable to be located in the same manner, as other unappropriated lands within this commonwealth. And be it enacted, That the owners of entries for lands within the district of the Northern Neck regularly made before the seventeenth day of October in the year of our lord one thousand seven hundred and eighty-five shall proceed to survey the same, which surveys, together with those already made upon like entries, shall be returned into the register's office on or before the said first day of October one thousand seven hundred and eighty-eight, and on failure such entries are hereby declared void, and the lands liable to be located in the same manner, as other unappropriated lands within the said district. And the composition upon grants issued from the register's office on surveys under entries made as aforesaid may be paid either in specie or audited certificates,

5. And whereas many surveys regularly made and returned into the proprietor's office before the said seventeenth day of October one thousand seven hundred and eighty-five, have been ungranted until they have become forfeited according to the rules of the said office, and it is reasonable the same indulgence should be extended to the people within the said district, as to the other citizens of this commonwealth, Be it enacted, That the owners of such surveys may, before the said first day of October one thousand seven hundred and eighty-eight, apply to and obtain from the register grants for the same upon paying the quitrents and composition due thereon in manner aforesaid, and on failure thereof the lands contained in such surveys shall be forfeited and may be granted in the same manner as other unappropriated lands within the said district. And any person possessing high lands within the said district to which any swamps, marshes, or sunken grounds are contiguous and not already appropriated shall have the pre-emption of such swamps, marshes or sunken grounds at the rate of twenty-five pounds by the hundred acres, until the said first day of October one thousand seven hundred and eighty-eight; And if such person shall not obtain a grant for such swamp, marshes, or sunken grounds before that time, then any other person may enter on and obtain a grant for the same in like manner as is directed for other unappropriated lands within the said district. But nothing herein contained shall be construed or extend to give liberty to any person to locate or obtain a grant for any unappropriated swamps, marshes or sunken grounds lying contiguous to the high land of any feme covert, infant, person not being compos mentis, or person out of the commonwealth, but such persons shall be allowed twelve months after the removal of their several disabilities for the pre-emption of such lands.

6. And be it further enacted, That where any caveat hath been entered in the proprietor's office of the Northern Neck before the seventeenth day of October in the year of our lord one thousand seven hundred and eighty-five, the person who entered such caveat shall, within twelve months next following, assign the causes thereof in the register's office, and proceed to prosecute the same; and on failure the same shall be taken and deemed dismissed, and a grant for the lands so caveated shall issue to the person, his assignees, or legal representatives, in whose favor the survey was made.

7. And whereas the act passed at the last session of assembly, entitled "an act to dispose of the waste and unappropriated lands in the commonwealth of Virginia on the eastern waters," directs that a composition of twenty-five pounds, for every hundred acres of the said lands should be paid by the person or persons who shall obtain a warrant for the same, Be it enacted, That from and after the passing of this act the composition aforesaid may be paid in auditors warrants or audited certificates, any thing in the said recited act to the contrary notwithstanding.

CHAP. XIII.

An Act to amend an Act, entitled an Act to repeal an Act, entitled an Act concerning Entries and Surveys on the Western Waters, and for other purposes.

[Acts of 1786, ch. 11, pa. 14.]

1 WHEREAS the act, entitled "an act to repeal an act, entitled an act concerning entries and surveys on the western waters, and for other purposes" requiring that the owners of entries shall appoint agents or attorneys in each county where such entries are made, and notify such appointments to the principal surveyor of the county, by the first day of February, one thousand seven hundred and eighty-seven, and declaring that on failure thereof, such entries shall be void, whereby many of the good people on the western waters, through ignorance of the said recited act, are likely to be injured by a forfeiture of their entries: For remedy whereof,

2. Be it enacted, That no entry shall be forfeited under the said recited act, for and during the term of two years, after the passing of this act.

CHAP. XIV.

*An Act to legalize the qualification of the late Surveyor of Yohogania County,**

[Acts of 1786, ch. 93, pa. 49.]

1 WHEREAS it is represented to this present general assembly, that Benjamin Johnston was, on the twelfth day of September one thousand seven hundred and eighty-three, legally commissioned surveyor of the county of Yohogania, but as no court was afterwards held in the said county (the extension of the boundary line between this state and Pennsylvania having included in the latter the magistrates, sheriff, and clerk) the said Benjamin Johnston could not qualify to his commission in manner directed by law, yet he entered into bond on the third day of October, in the same year, with two sufficient securities, before the late clerk of Yohogania court, and proceeded to the execution of his office. And whereas doubts have arisen whether the said Benjamin Johnston was legally qualified as surveyor, and thereby, the rights of individuals may be questioned: For remedy whereof,

2. Be it enacted, That the bond executed by the said Benjamin Johnston, as surveyor for the said county of Yohogania, before the late clerk of the said county court, shall be as good and valid in law, as if the same had been taken and executed in open court, and that all acts done by the said Benjamin Johnston, as surveyor, shall be as valid as if he had qualified to his commission in manner directed by law. Provided, That nothing contained in this act shall be construed so as to affect the rights of any person or persons, their heirs or assigns, claiming title to any of the lands by prior entries, surveys, patents, or pre-emptions.

* This county, on the extension of the western boundary line of Pennsylvania, being too small to form a distinct county, was added to the county of Ohio—See acts of 1786, ch. 69, pa. 36.

CHAP. XV:

An Act for the Preservation of the Entries made for Lands in the District of Kentucky.

[Passed December 20th, 1787.—Acts of 1787, ch. 25, pa. 21.]

WHEREAS it has been represented to this general assembly, that the entry books now in possession of the county surveyors respectively, within the district of Kentucky, are from continual use so much worn and defaced, that many entries for lands are scarcely legible, and as the title of many good people of this commonwealth to the lands held by them within the aforesaid district, may eventually depend on their entries for the same;

2. Be it enacted, That the surveyor of each county within the district aforesaid, shall transcribe in their regular order, into well bound books, all original entries for lands made in his office since the county took place, whereof he is surveyor. And as it is represented, that the surveyor of Jefferson is in possession of the entry books, containing the entries made in the county of Kentucky, before the division of the same into the counties of Lincoln, Jefferson, and Fayette,

3. Be it enacted, That the said surveyor of Jefferson, shall, in like manner; copy all original entries made in the said county of Kentucky, until the division aforesaid took place.

4. And be it further enacted, That the books into which the entries shall be so transcribed, shall be furnished to the surveyor by the county lieutenant of each county respectively, to be by him purchased out of the money which now may or hereafter shall be in his hands, arising from militia fines. And so soon as any surveyor shall have copied such entries as aforesaid, he shall give information thereof to the judges of the supreme court of the said district, who shall, and they are hereby authorised and directed, to appoint one or more person or persons, being magistrates in such county, together with such surveyor, carefully to examine the copies so made out, and compare the same with the originals; and shall, together with such surveyor, certify at the end of such book the number of copies of entries therein contained, and that they are faithfully transcribed; which said book or books shall be by them delivered to the clerk of the supreme court of the said district, to be kept in his office, and shall thereafter be deemed a legal record; and all copies therefrom certified by the said clerk, shall be admitted as evidence in any court of record, in the same manner as if taken from the original entry book, and certified by the surveyor of the county.

5. And be it further enacted, That each surveyor shall be allowed the sum of four pence halfpenny, for each entry by him copied as aforesaid; for which sum the judges of the supreme court aforesaid, are hereby authorised and required to grant to such surveyor or surveyors, their certificate or certificates, which shall be receivable in payment of all taxes arising in said district:

1 WHEREAS the act of assembly passed in the year one thousand seven hundred and eighty-four, entitled “an act to revive and amend in part an act for giving further time to enter certificates for settlement rights, and for locating warrants upon pre-emption rights, and for other purposes,” which was continued by several subsequent acts, will expire on the last day of December one thousand seven hundred and eighty-seven, and it is expedient that the same should be further continued in part: Be it therefore enacted by the General Assembly, That the said recited act shall be continued in part until the thirty-first day of December one thousand seven hundred and eighty-eight; within which time the register of the land office or his deputy shall receive all plats and certificates of survey, although not returned within the time heretofore limited by law, and such lands shall not be considered as forfeited or liable to forfeiture on that account.

2. And whereas the time allowed by law for entering certificates for settlement rights, will expire on the last day of December one thousand seven hundred and eighty-seven, and it is judged expedient to continue the same, Be it therefore enacted, That it shall and may be lawful for the surveyors of this commonwealth within their respective counties at any time before the said thirty-first day of December in the year aforesaid to receive and enter all such certificates or the attested copies of such as shall be lost, and to proceed to survey the same as the law directs: Provided, such attestation be made by the commissioners who granted the same, or by the clerk of the superior court of the district of Kentucky, or the register of the land office.

3. And be it farther enacted, That any person who hath obtained, or shall obtain a pre-emption warrant before the last day of December in the present year, shall be allowed until the last day of June one thousand seven hundred and eighty-eight to enter the same with the surveyor of the county in which the land may lie; and all warrants so obtained, with the entry and survey thereupon, shall be good and valid in law, any act or acts to the contrary notwithstanding.

9. And be it further enacted, That nothing in this act contained shall be so construed as to prevent any plaintiff or plaintiffs, his, her or their executors, administrators or assigns, whose judgment or execution may be stayed by this act, from resorting to his, her or their original security or securities, his, her or their executors or administrators, for the recovery of his, her or their original debt or demand; Provided, due diligence be used after the expiration of this act to enforce the payment of such bond or bonds, as to him, her or them may be made or given, under the authority of this act; nor shall any such bond be regarded as a satisfaction of the debt or demand, on account of which it shall be so made or given, until the same shall be actually paid.

Plaintiff whose judgment is stayed by this act, may resort to original security.

Proviso.

10. Be it enacted, That such original security, his, her or their executors or administrators, may, at any time, move for counter-security in the same manner as the securities mentioned in the eighth section of this act. And, in case the principal debtor or debtors, his, her or their executors or administrators, fail to give such security, then execution may immediately issue against such principal debtor or debtors, his, her or their executors or administrators, and his, her or their last security or securities, in favor of the creditor, and for the relief of the said original security or securities, who nevertheless shall remain bound to the creditor, in the terms of his, her or their original contract.

And in such case, the sheriff or other officer shall deliver to such defendant or defendants the property so taken in execution, upon his, her or their producing and delivering to him a certificate from the clerk issuing such execution, that bond with security hath been given according to the provisions of this act.

may take under the authority of this act, to be paid by the defendant or defendants executing such bond, and collected in like manner as fees for other services.

Costs to be paid before the benefit of this act can be had.

Proceedings to be had where defendants, &c. do not avail themselves of the provisions of this act.

14. And be it further enacted, That in all instances where any person, who, under the provisions of this act, is authorised to stay proceedings on any judgment, deed of trust, decree, execution, distress, or upon any forthcoming bond, replevy bond taken on distress for rent, or on levying an execution, or bond given for property sold on twelve months credit, by giving bond with security, in the manner heretofore directed, shall fail to avail himself of the indulgence, all property taken by virtue of such judgment, execution, decree, deed of trust, and upon every such forthcoming bond, replevy bond taken on distress for rent, or on levying an execution or bond given for property sold on twelve months credit, the time and place of sale being previously duly notified, shall be sold to the highest bidder, and bond or bonds from the purchaser or purchasers, unless he, she or they shall be the creditor, with sufficient security, shall be taken by the officer, or other person or persons conducting the sale, payable to him or them to whom the money may be due, or to his, her or their executors or administrators, in double the amount of the purchase, conditioned for the payment of the amount purchased by the purchaser or purchasers, with interest on so much thereof as shall be sufficient to satisfy the purchase, payable at the expiration or repeal of this act: And the said bond or bonds shall have the force of a judgment, shall be assignable, and when due, may be proceeded on as twelve months replevy bonds may be proceeded on when due.

Where bond is given to stay proceedings on deeds of trust, &c. lien on the property to continue.

15. And be it further enacted, That upon all mortgages and deeds of trust, where proceedings shall be delayed by the debtor giving bond with security, or where the property shall be sold, as prescribed by this act, the lien on the property so mortgaged or conveyed in trust shall not be removed, until the bond so given shall be discharged; and when such discharge shall be in consequence of payment by the security or securities in any such bond, his, her or their executors or administrators, he, she or they so paying shall acquire the right, and be substituted in the place of the original creditor or creditors holding such lien, and a sale may take place at the instance of the one, as it could have done at the instance of the other, had such payment not have been made.

Proceedings where property sold under this act, may bring more than the debt, &c.

16. And be it further enacted, When, by virtue of this act, property shall be sold on a credit, to expire with the expiration or repeal of this act, where the property shall sell for more than the sum due from the debtor or debtors, the sheriff or other person making sale thereof, shall take bond with sufficient security, payable to the debtor or debtors, his, her or their executors or administrators, in double the amount of such excess, conditioned for the payment thereof, which bond shall have the force of a judgment, and at the expiration of this act the same proceedings shall be had thereon, as are had on twelve months replevy bonds when due.

17. And be it further enacted, That the act, entitled "An act, concerning the sale of property under executions and incumbrances," passed the first day of February, in the year eighteen hundred and eight, shall be, and the same is hereby repealed, except so much thereof as was intended to be perpetual.

CHAP. XL.

An Act to suppress Duelling.

[Passed January 26, 1810.]

WHEREAS experience has evinced, that the existing remedy for the suppression of the barbarous custom of duelling is inadequate to the purpose, and the progress and consequences of the evil have become so destructive as to require an effort on the part of the legislature to arrest a vice the result of ignorance and barbarism, justified neither by the precepts of morality nor by the dictates of reason—for remedy whereof,

Preamble;

1. Be it enacted by the General Assembly, That any person who shall hereafter wilfully and maliciously, or by previous agreement fight a duel or single combat with any engine, instrument or weapon, the probable consequence of which might be the death of either party, and in so doing shall kill his antagonist, or any other person or persons, or inflict such wound as that the person injured shall die thereof within three months thereafter, such offender, his aiders, abettors and counsellors, being thereof duly convicted, shall be guilty of murder and suffer death by being hanged by the neck; any law, custom or usage of this commonwealth to the contrary notwithstanding.

Person killing another in a duel, guilty of murder.

2. And be it further enacted, That if any person whatsoever shall challenge another to fight a duel with any weapon, or in any manner whatsoever, the probable issue of which may or might result in the death of the challenger or challenged, or if any person shall accept a challenge or fight a duel with any weapon, or in any way whatsoever, the probable issue of which may or might terminate in the death of the challenger or challenged, such person shall be incapable of holding or being elected to any post of profit, trust or emolument, civil or military, under the government of this commonwealth.

Person challenging or accepting a challenge, incapacitated from holding an office.

Oath to be taken by person appointed to any office.

See Leigh's case, 1 Munf. 468.

3. And be it further enacted, That from and after the passing of this act, every person who shall be appointed to any office or place, civil or military, under this commonwealth, shall in addition to the oath now prescribed by law take the following oath :
 " I do solemnly swear or affirm (as the case may be) that I have not been engaged in a duel, by sending or accepting a challenge to fight a duel or by fighting a duel, or in any other manner, in violation of the act entitled " An act to suppress duelling," since the passage of that act, nor will I be so concerned directly or indirectly in such duel during my continuance in office.—So help me God."

This act to be given in charge to the grand juries, together with all other laws to suppress duelling.
 Their duty.

4. And be it further enacted, That it shall be the duty of the judges of the circuit courts and the county courts at their quarterly sessions, to give in charge expressly to the jury all the laws in force to suppress duelling, also to charge the jury to present all persons concerned in carrying, sending or accepting a challenge ; and if any person shall be presented in such courts, the said courts shall, if they have jurisdiction of said offences, proceed to trial of the same in the ordinary way, and if not, that the presentment shall be either certified by order of the court, to such court as has jurisdiction, or shall be considered in law a sufficient authority, for a magistrate to issue his warrant against the accused, where an examining court is necessary.

Duty of judges and magistrates who suspect a duel is about to take place.

5. And be it further enacted, That when any judge or magistrate of this commonwealth has good cause to suspect any person or persons are about to be engaged in a duel, he may issue his warrant to bring the parties before him ; and if he shall think proper to take of them a recognizance to keep the peace, he shall insert in the condition, that the party or parties shall not during the time for which they were bound, directly or indirectly, be concerned in a duel, either with the person suspected or any other person, within the time limited by the recognizance.

Proceedings to be had where persons leave the state.

6. And be it further enacted, That if any person or persons shall, for the purpose of eluding the operation of the provisions of this law, leave the state, the person or persons so offending shall be deemed as guilty, and be subject to the like penalties as if the offence had been committed within this commonwealth. If any person shall leave this state with the intention of giving or receiving a challenge to fight a duel, or of aiding or abetting in giving or receiving such challenge, and a duel shall actually be fought, whereby the death of any person shall happen, and the person so leaving the state shall remain thereout so as to prevent his apprehension for the purpose of a trial ; or if any person shall fight a duel in this state, or aid or abet therein, whereby any person shall be killed, and then flee into another state to avoid his trial ; in either case it shall be the duty of the executive, and they are hereby directed to adopt and pursue all legal steps to cause any such offender to be apprehended and brought to trial in the county where the offence was committed, when the duel shall have been fought within the state ; and when it shall have been fought without the state, then in that county where, in the opinion of the ex-executive the evidence against the offender can be best obtained and produced upon his trial.

7. Be it further enacted, That it shall be the duty of the attorneys of the commonwealth for the county courts to give information to the executive whenever a case shall arise in their counties respectively which will render the interposition of the executive authority under this act necessary. And the said attorneys, either at the first quarterly court of their respective counties after the commencement of this act, or at the time of their acceptance of their offices, where they shall hereafter be appointed, shall take the following oath: "I do solemnly swear, or affirm, (as the case may be) that I will to the best of my judgment execute the duty imposed on me by the act for suppressing duelling.—So help me God."

Duty of commonwealth's attorneys.

8. And be it further enacted, That all words which from their usual construction and common acceptation are considered as insults, and lead to violence and breach of the peace, shall hereafter be actionable, and no plea, exception or demurrer shall be sustained in any court within this commonwealth, to preclude a jury from passing thereon, who are hereby declared to be the sole judges of the damages sustained: Provided, That nothing herein contained shall be construed to deprive the several courts of this commonwealth from granting new trials as heretofore.

Certain words made actionable

2. Be it enacted by the General Assembly, That whenever the judge of any superior court of chancery shall overrule any application for an injunction, it shall be his duty to certify the same at the foot of the bill. And whenever any motion or application for an injunction shall be overruled, or whenever any order shall be said justices shall issue their warrant to the sheriff of their county to summon a jury of twenty-four inhabitants of his county, of property and reputation, not related to the parties, or in any manner interested, to meet on the premises to be valued, on a day expressed in the warrant, not less than ten, nor more than twenty days thereafter; and the sheriff upon receiving such warrant shall forthwith summon the said jury, which shall consist of twelve at the least, and before entering upon the discharge of the duties hereby required of them, shall take the following oath or affirmation, to be administered by the sheriff: I do solemnly swear or affirm (as the case may be) that I will faithfully, justly and impartially value the lands or property, and all the damages the owner thereof shall sustain by the operation of the said improvements according to the best of my skill and judgment, and that in such valuation I will not spare any person for favor or affection, or any person grieve for hatred or malice or ill will." And on their proceeding to make the valuation, the jury is hereby directed to describe the particular kind of property, or if land, to ascertain and describe the bounds thereof, and also to particularly describe any other matter or thing whereby the said navigable improvements may in their judgment injure or detrimentally affect the owner of said land or property, and agreeably to the value of the land or property, and to the injury it will cause the owner thereof, they shall make out a plain and distinct report of the sum which in their judgment the company ought to pay the owner for such land or property, or such damages as he may sustain; and which report shall be signed by at least twelve of the jury, and by the sheriff who shall return the same to the clerk of his county, by him to be entered of record, which shall be conclusive on all parties interested; and upon the payment of the valuation money by the president and directors, or their agent, to the proprietor of the land or property, or to his legal representative, the said company shall be seized in fee of such lands, property and privileges, as fully to all intents and purposes as if legally conveyed by the owner thereof; and where it shall be necessary for the contemplated navigation that the company should affix locks to any mill dam, or to any race or canal, for the purpose of entering and navigating the same, that then if private negotiation with the owner should fail, a warrant shall be issued by two justices as aforesaid, directing a sheriff to summon a jury in manner aforesaid, to whom, after meeting on the place in question, he shall administer the oath or affirmation before directed; and they shall then proceed to make out a fair and distinct report, stating the disadvantages that the said locks and water, for their purposes, and the use of the said canals, may be to the owners, and also the benefit that the said owners may probably derive from said improvements; and after deliberate consideration of these things, and also the value of the earth, stone and gravel that may be taken for building said locks, they shall affix a sum to be annually paid by the said company as a rent for liberty of affixing their locks to such dams, and for liberty to affix locks to enter such canals, and using for either purpose such quantity of water as is absolutely necessary for the purpose of navigating the river; which report shall be signed by at least twelve of the jury, and the sheriff, who shall, as before directed, return the same to the clerk of his county, by him to be entered of record; and which shall vest the company in a complete and permanent right to make their locks to enter such dams and canals, and to use what water is absolutely necessary for such purposes ; and such canals shall ever after be considered and used as a part of the highway for the purpose of navigation : Provided nevertheless, That if any further damage shall arise to any proprietor of land, mills or other property, in consequence of every of the aforesaid improvements, other than was before considered and valued, or if the company or those in their service should lavishly use the water or otherwise carelessly or wantonly impede any mill or works, to the race or dam of which they may have affixed their locks, it shall and may be lawful for such owner or proprietor, as often as such new damage may arise, by application to, and warrant from any two justices of the county where the property lies, to have such further damage valued in like manner, and to recover the same of the company. But nothing herein contained shall be taken or construed to enable the owner or proprietor of any such land or property, to recover compensation for any damages which may happen to mills or other water works which shall be begun or erected by such proprietor after such first valuation ; unless the same damage is wilfully or maliciously done by the said president and directors, or some person acting by their authority.

place by any other method than that of erecting a strong dam at the lower part of such rapids, and to raise it so high as to eddy the current of the water there above, in that case the president and a majority of the directors shall endeavor to effect by private contract from the respective owners, one acre of land on each side of the said river or its branches, as the case may be, for abutments to join the ends of the same dam unto; and, failing all private negotiation to effect the said business to mutual satisfaction, it shall in that case be lawful for the president and a majority of the directors, or their agent, to apply and receive from two justices of the county where the land may lie, who shall proceed in manner and form as prescribed in section the eleventh of this act; and if the said two acres shall lie in different counties, that is, one on each side of the river or branch, as the case may be, then in that case the same proceedings may be had in each of said counties; and upon every such valuation the jury is hereby directed to describe and ascertain the bounds of the land by them valued, and their valuation to be set forth in their report, signed by at least twelve of them, and by the sheriff or sheriffs, who shall, as in similar cases, return the said report or reports to the clerks of their respective county courts, to be recorded; and the valuation shall be conclusive on all parties, and shall be paid by the said president and directors, to the owner or owners of the said land, or his or her legal representative; on payment thereof, the said company shall be seized in fee simple of such land as fully as if legally conveyed by the owners thereof.

14. Be it enacted, That the water, and every part thereof conveyed through any canal already made, shall not be used by the said company or any one holding under them, for any other purpose but for navigation, and that without wilfully and negligently wasting, at their locks, or any where else, any quantity of water arising more than is absolutely necessary for transporting and conveying such boats of passage as may necessarily occupy the same without consent of the owners for the time being first had and obtained; and the president and directors, or a majority of them, are hereby authorised, if it can on just and reasonable terms be accomplished to answer both the purposes of navigation and water works aforesaid, to endeavor to enter into private contract with the proprietor of such situations concerning the just proportion of the expense in widening such canals, and making them capable of conveying such quantities of water as may be sufficient for the proposed navigation, and also for such water works as aforesaid; and, in case of entire disagreement,

15. Be it enacted, That the president and a majority of the directors may, as authorised in the eleventh section of this act, obtain a warrant from two justices of the county wherein the premises in question may be, directing the sheriff to summon a jury, and with them, in like manner as before directed in said eleventh section, proceed to consider all the circumstances and make out a report, which shall in like manner be returned by the sheriff to the clerk of his county, to be entered of record, and which shall be conclusive between all parties and persons therein concerned.

And any sheriff, under-sheriff, or other officer, who shall make such improper return, shall forfeit and pay to the party grieved thereby not less than five fold, nor more than ten fold the amount of the taxes so returned delinquent, to be recovered, in like manner as is provided by the seventh section of this act for the recovery of the penalties hereby imposed.

15. Whenever, in any controversy respecting the title of any land supposed to be forfeited for non-payment of taxes, it shall be alleged, in opposition to the official return, that the taxes on such land have been paid, or that there was personal property to be found thereon liable to distress, sufficient to satisfy such taxes, no evidence shall be received, in support of such allegation, other than the judgment of a court, as herein authorised, establishing the incorrectness of the official return so controverted.

16. Nothing in this act shall be construed to affect the remedy which any individual, or the commonwealth might be entitled to, against any sheriff or his deputy, or the sureties, or representatives of either, if this act had not been passed.

And the said freeholders shall be allowed one dollar and fifty cents a day, for every day which they may be employed in the performance of the duties required of them: And the agent of the literary fund four dollars per day for every day he may be engaged in superintending such sale, which sums, with all costs of sale, shall be paid out of the proceeds thereof, and be judged of and allowed by the said county courts: Provided also, that, at any time before a sale is made of any tract, it shall be lawful for the owner, joint tenant, tenant in common or parcener of said land, to pay the arrears of tax and interest due on such land, or his, or her proportion thereof, and a like proportion of the costs which may then have been incurred in preparing for the sale of such tract, to be liquidated by the court of said county; and thereupon the said land, or the proportion thereof, for which payment shall have been so made, shall be released to the owner.

18. The sheriff and agent of the literary fund, for the time being, or their successors, in all cases of sale, shall execute deeds to the purchasers.

An Act to Incorporate a Company for the purpose of cutting a Navigable Canal from Roanoke River to Meherrin River, and from the waters of Chowan River in North Carolina, to some of the waters of James River in this State, or to the Dismal Swamp Canal.

[Passed January 31, 1812.]

Preamble, setting forth the great importance of the proposed undertaking.

WHEREAS the opening of a navigable canal from Roanoke river to Meherrin river, and from the waters of Chowan river in the State of North Carolina, to some of the waters of James river in this State, or to the Dismal Swamp Canal, so as to form, by the most practicable plan, a water communication between the said river Roanoke, and James river, or the Dismal Swamp Canal, is an object of great importance to the interior commerce of a large portion of this state and North Carolina; and many persons in both States are willing to subscribe large sums of money for the purpose of effecting those beneficial works; and it is just and proper that they, their heirs and assigns, should be empowered to receive reasonable tolls in satisfaction for the money advanced by them in carrying the said works into execution, and the risk they run:

Appointment of commissioners to wait on the general assembly of North Carolina, and to enter into reasonable stipulations on the subject; and stipulations mutually agreed upon by them and a committee of the legislature of North Carolina.

1. No restriction or impost to be laid on commodities, of the growth, &c. of N. Carolina brought through the canals for sale or exportation; and the same may be sold without re-inspection.

2. Waters of Roanoke, &c. in Virginia to be a common highway for the use of vessels belonging to North Carolina.

3. Waters of Roanoke, &c. in N. Carolina, to be a common highway, for the use of vessels belonging to Virginia.

And whereas by a resolution of Virginia in General Assembly, passed on the thirteenth day of February, one thousand eight hundred and eleven, eleven commissioners were appointed, any three of whom were empowered to wait on the general assembly of North Carolina, to enter into reasonable stipulations relative to opening the canals aforesaid; subject however to the approval, alteration or rejection of the respective legislatures of this state and North Carolina; and Peachey, R. Gilmer, George Tucker, and Isaac H. Coles, esquires, three of the said commissioners, have accordingly attended the general assembly of North Carolina; and on a conference with the said gentlemen, by a joint committee of the Senate and House of Commons, the following stipulations have been mutually agreed upon and approved by the said commissioners, on the part of Virginia, and by the said committee of both houses of North Carolina to, wit:

First—The State of Virginia agrees that no restriction, duty or impost shall be laid on any commodity which is the growth, produce or manufacture of the state of North Carolina, brought through the said canals, or either of them, for sale or exportation, and that the same may be sold without re-inspection.

Secondly—The state of Virginia agrees, that the waters of Roanoke river, and all its branches, and all other waters communicating with the Albemarle Sound, as far as the same are in Virginia, shall be forever considered as a common highway, free for the use and navigation of vessels belonging to the state of North Carolina or any of its citizens; and that they shall not be therein subject to the payment of any toll or charge whatever imposed for the purpose of raising revenue.

Thirdly—The state of North Carolina agrees, that the waters of Roanoke river, and all its branches above the place from which with the canal shall be cut, and all the other waters communicating Albemarle Sound, as far as the same shall form a part of the said navigation proposed to be opened by this act, and are in North Carolina, shall be forever considered as a common highway, free for the use and navigation of vessels belonging to the state of Virginia, or any of its citizens; and that they shall not be therein subject to the payment of any toll or charge whatever, imposed for the purpose of raising revenue.

Fourthly—The state of North Carolina agrees that no restriction, duty or impost shall be laid on any commodity which is the growth, produce or manufacture of the state of Virginia, passing through the aforesaid waters, or any of them, to the said canals, or through the said canals or either of them, for sale or exportation; and that the same may be sold or exported without re-inspection.

In those articles where it is expressed, that no duty or impost is to be laid for the purpose of raising revenue, it is not to be understood that the imposition of tolls, for the purpose of improving the navigation of the said waters, is prevented.

The said states agree to appoint, each, three commissioners, who shall have power and authority to employ an engineer, or some person of competent skill and ability, to survey the country thro' which it may be necessary to conduct the navigation, under the direction of the said commissioners, or a majority of them; and to lay before them plans and sections of the different routes, and estimates, in detail, of the different parts of the several works; upon which the said commissioners or a majority of them shall have power and authority to determine on that route, which, all things considered, shall be deemed most eligible; and for the purpose of compensating the said engineer, and publishing the before mentioned plans and estimates, the said commissioners may receive such sums of money, as individuals may be disposed to advance, towards defraying the expense of employing an engineer, and publishing a report and estimates, to be repaid out of the first subscriptions to the Roanoke Canal Company; and the receipt of the said commissioners or their agents shall be considered as a payment of the amount therein mentioned towards a share or shares, which the holder of such receipt may have subscribed.

Sixthly—As soon as the before mentioned commissioners have determined on the most eligible route, for the proposed canals, and have ascertained their probable cost, the amount of the said cost, shall be divided into shares of one hundred dollars each; and the said commissioners or a majority of them, shall have power and authority to apportion the said shares among the counties of Patrick, Henry, Pittsylvania, Halifax, Mecklenburg, Brunswick, Greenville, Southampton, Nausemond, Botetourt, Bedford, Franklin, Campbell and Charlotte, and the Borough of Norfolk, in the state of Virginia; and the counties of Surry, Stokes, Rockingham, Caswell, Person, Granville, Warren, Halifax, Northampton, Hertford, Bertie and Gates in the state of North Carolina, making the said apportionment as near as may be, according to their respective distances from market and population: Provided, that no citizen of one county shall be precluded from subscribing in any other county, nor a citizen of one state from subscribing in the other.

Seventhly—And the said states agree, that they will pass laws prohibiting under reasonable penalties their respective citizens from impeding in any manner, the navigation of the river Roanoke and Dan, and that there shall be a free unobstructed channel left throughout the whole course of the said rivers in the deepest part of the same, not less than thirty feet wide.

Lastly—The citizens of each of the said two states may have the use of the inspections of the other, for the purpose of re-inspec-

No restriction or impost to be laid on commodities of the growth &c. of Virginia, passing thro' the said waters to the canals, or thro' the canals, for sale or exportation; and the same may be sold or exported without re-inspection. But tolls for the purpose of improving navigation may be imposed.

5. Three commissioners to be appointed by each state to employ an engineer to survey the country through which it may be necessary to conduct the navigation; and upon his report to determine the most eligible route.

Money may be received of individuals to compensate such engineer; to be repaid out of the first subscriptions to the Roanoke canal company.

Farewell Address to Thomas Jefferson, President of the United States; and Resolution relative thereto.

[Agreed to by both Houses, February 7, 1809.]

SIR,

THE General Assembly of your native state cannot close their session, without acknowledging your services, in the office which you are just about to lay down, and bidding you a respectful and affectionate farewell.

We have to thank you for the model of an administration, conducted on the purest principles of republicanism; for pomp and state laid aside; patronage discarded; internal taxes abolished; a host of superfluous officers disbanded; the monarchic maxim "That a national debt is a national blessing," renounced; and more than thirty-three millions of our debt discharged; the native right to nearly one hundred millions of acres of our national domain extinguished; and, without the guilt or calamities of conquest, a vast and fertile region added to our country, far more extensive than her original possessions, bringing along with it the Mississippi and the port of Orleans, the trade of the west to the Pacific ocean, and, in the intrinsic value of the land itself, a source of permanent and almost inexhaustible revenue. These are points in your administration which the historian will not fail to seize, to expand and teach posterity to dwell upon with delight. Nor will he forget our peace with the civilized world, preserved through a season of uncommon difficulty and trial; the good will cultivated with the unfortunate aborigines of our country, and the civilization humanely extended among them; the lesson taught the inhabitants of the coast of Barbary, that we have the means of chastising their piratical incroachments and awing them into justice; and that theme, on which, above all others, the historic genius will hang with rapture, the liberty of speech and of the press preserved inviolate, without which, genius and science are given to man in vain.

In the principles on which you have administered the government, we see only the continuation and maturity of the same virtues and abilities which drew upon you, in your youth, the resentment of Dunmore. From the first brilliant and happy moment of your resistance to foreign tyranny, until the present day, we mark with pleasure and with gratitude, the same uniform, consistent character, the same warm and devoted attachment to liberty and the republic, the same Roman love of your country, her rights, her peace, her honor, her prosperity.

How blessed will be the retirement into which you are about to go! How deservedly blessed will it be! For you carry with you the richest of all rewards, the recollection of a life well spent in the service of your country, and proofs the most decisive, of the love, the gratitude, the veneration of your countrymen.

That your retirement may be as happy as your life has been virtuous and useful; that our youth may see, in the blissful close of your days, an additional inducement to form themselves on your model, is the devout and earnest prayer of your fellow citizens, who compose the General Assembly of Virginia.

RESOLVED, By the General Assembly, that the Governor be requested to forward to the President of the United States a copy of the foregoing address.

and also, for the information of the General Government, a copy of the resolutions concerning our foreign relations, unanimously adopted by the present General Assembly, and of the preamble to the same.

No. IV.

Report and Resolutions on the subject of the Foreign Affairs of the United States.

[Agreed to by both Houses, February 7, 1809.]

THE committee to whom were referred sundry resolutions, touching, among other things, our foreign relations, and the measures of the administration consequent thereon, beg leave now to report on this branch of the subject :

That the French edicts and British orders of council, although the immediate causes of the embargo, were not the first grievances of which we had to complain against those nations ; they were the last links, only, of a long chain of indignities and oppressions, which they had previously conspired to cast upon us. Agreeing in nothing else, those powers seem to have agreed at least in the point of heaping insults and injuries on the United States, in total disregard of the relations of amity which subsisted between us, and in direct and gross violation of the best settled principles of the law of nations.

As to Great Britain, it seems to your committee, that ever since she was, reluctantly, compelled to acknowledge our independence, she has been pursuing a system of measures, calculated to regain the ground which she had lost ; to bring us back to our colonial subjection and dependence on her, and thus to effect, by her policy, what she was unable to accomplish by her arms.

Availing herself of the identity of our language, she has extended her laws of impressment to us ; and, as if we were still her colonies, has forced us to contribute to man her fleets. At this moment, at least three thousand free-born American citizens, perhaps many more, are mourning on board the British fleet, a hopeless separation from all the connexions dearest to their hearts ; are pining and expiring in a captivity, worse than Algerine, because its immediate consequences are to be involved in a war of plunder against their own country, and in the end, too probably, in a war against the lives of their countrymen. Great-Britain not only refuses to release these men, but she refuses to adopt any regulation whereby the outrage may be prevented in future. On the contrary, her board of admiralty, in answer to a proposition to this effect, from a late minister, Lord Holland, has declared that the existence of her navy depended on the continuance of impressments, as therefore practised.

Your committee see, in this declaration, the avowal of a firm and settled purpose, that so long as the United shall speak the same language with Great Britain, they shall contribute to nourish and support the British fleet, although the power of that fleet is to be turned against themselves. Your committee deem it an idle and ridiculous mockery to vaunt of the sovereignty and independence of our country, while the persons and liberty of our citizens are insecure ; while a foreign nation is permitted, at her pleasure, to seize on our countrymen, and take off for the purposes of war whatever number her occasions may require. Tribute in any form has been thought a badge of dependence and servility, but never can it assume a form so humiliating and degrading, as when it is a tribute of men, and free men, too, furnished to fight the battles of a foreign prince ; battles in which, if directed against other foreign powers, they feel no interest ; but which may be directed against their own country, and thus force them to imbrue their hands in the blood of a brother or a father.

Again, Great Britain, not content with the actual power of her navy, has, without any addition thereto, contrived the means of multiplying its operations and extending the range of its action to the great annoyance and even ruin of neutral commerce. The law of nations has declared, that a blockade cannot exist without actual investment by the ships of the enemy ; and in this state of things, it is admitted on all hands, that a neutral has no right to enter the port, since, by carrying in supplies, he might defeat the object of the blockade.

But Great Britain was not satisfied with this legitimate restriction on the commerce of neutrals.—Not able with all her ships, numerous as they are, to invest all the ports of her enemy, she has invented a species of blockade unknown to the laws of nations, by which she avoids the expense of an actual siege. keeps her ships free for other operations, harrasses her adversary most effectually and extensively, by blockading all his ports at once, and (what alone, is of immediate importance to us) drives neutral commerce from the ocean, or fills her coffers by its plunder. Your committee allude to the new mode of creating a blockade by proclamation, instead of actual investment. To say nothing of the principle, the injury which American commerce has already sustained by the practice of this innovation is immense.—When a blockade has been formed according to the law of nations, the appearance of the besieging fleet is sufficient warning to neutrals, who, with such notice, are in no danger of committing a breach of blockade, without intending it. But where neutrals have no such appearance, no such warning, no notice to guide them ; where the blockade, instead of being actual, is merely ideal ; existing no where but upon paper, they incur the penalties without intending the offence, and find themselves ruined by the imputation of a crime, which they would disdain to perpetrate.

Nor is this innovation objectionable only on the ground of the surprise which it practices upon neutrals. In its principle it is still more obnoxious : it gives to belligerents the power of implicating peaceable nations in the consequences of foreign wars, to an extent, denied to them by the law of nations ; to an extent which, if the peaceable nation be dependent on commerce, goes directly to her ruin, as certainly and immediately, as if she were a party in the war. For, according to this new invention, it is just as easy to blockade a whole island as a single port, and a whole continent as a single island. It is but necessary to declare the island or the continent blockaded, and neutrals must believe the fact, whether it be so or not, or take the consequences. Upon this principle it is obvious, that where belligerents, as at the present time, have involved almost every commercial country upon earth in their contests, it is easy for them, by reciprocal declarations of blockade, to say to neutrals, “ You shall not trade at all.” This idea, extravagant as it would have appeared a few years back, has been actually realised in relation to this country. Great Britain has by her declaration put a whole continent in a state of blockade. France, while her ministers have been continually declaring this pretence of blockade “ absurd,” “ monstrous,” “ indefensible,” “ a mockery of right,” and “ an insult upon reason,” has nevertheless proceeded to do the same thing, and, without a ship afloat upon the seas, puts the British isles in blockade, by her simple proclamation. Great Britain treats that proclamation as an empty menace, which France had no power to carry into effect, and boasts that the ascendancy of her navy had locked up the ships of France in their ports ; she proceeds, nevertheless, by way of return, to blockade on paper, the island of Zealand, two hundred miles in extent ; and she calls this “ retaliation,” as if France, and not herself, had been the mistress of this invention. To us, however, it is immaterial by whom it was invented ; since, by whomsoever invented, or whomsoever practised, it is a gross and intolerable usurpation on our rights. The spirit of this nation will never submit to the idea, that because France and Great Britain are at war, the commerce of the United States shall perish : that we shall become the victims of their mutual animosities and insatiable lust of power and dominion.

But this extravagant and monstrous invention of blockade by proclamation was not sufficient for all the purposes of Great Britain : being an innovation, and a bold one too, it required a gradual introduction and extension—a process, it would seem, too slow for all the views which she meditated.

Hence the resort to those instructions to her cruisers and her judges in admiralty; sometimes so secretly issued as to justify the belief, that they were intentionally concealed for the purposes of plunder. These instructions or orders of council began to prey upon our commerce so early as the year 1793, and were continued with little variation down to 1798. They were not pretended to be justified by the law of nations; they were regulations merely promotive of the British interest, and which she relied upon the power of her navy to enforce. A key to the character of such instructions has been candidly furnished, by one of her own writers of considerable eminence. Marshall in his treatise on the Law of Insurance, (page 322) speaks of the subject thus—"In every maritime war, the belligerent powers take upon themselves to make various marine regulations, adapted to their own respective situations and interests; but often contrary to the laws of nations and inconsistent with the independence of other states. And though it may be prudent for the subjects of neutral states, which are unable or unwilling to contend with such belligerent powers, to conform to these regulations, for their own safety, yet it seems to be now settled, that they are not bound by them." The feelings which will arise in the bosom of every American, on reading this extract, and comparing it with the practice of the country to which the writer belonged, will supersede the necessity of any commentary on the part of your committee. The policy of the British instructions, now under consideration, so far as it relates to American commerce, seems to have been to cut it up by the roots, or to force it into British channels, and thereby to bring about that monopoly of our trade, which she claimed as a right, while we were her colonies: the immediate effect of those instructions was to fill the British coffers, by the lawless plunder of American property. Scarcely ever before has the world been called to witness such a scene of insolent rapacity, on the one hand, and of patient remonstrance and forbearance on the other.

France, totally regardless both of the subsisting treaty and the laws of nations, and pretending that, by submitting to British impressment and spoliation, we were strengthening the hands of her enemy against her, (at a time when our government was making every exertion, short of war, to obtain the redress of those wrongs,) came out with what she pronounced to be measures of retaliation, and, by her imperial edict of Berlin, arrogantly forbade us to trade with Great Britain. From the impotence of the French fleet, that decree had very little other effect towards us, than to display the hostility and injustice of the government from which it proceeded. To Great Britain, however, it answered an important purpose; it furnished her with a pretext to crown her grand project of recolonizing the United States. Accordingly, on the hackneyed and iniquitous pretence of retaliation, she issued against us her orders of council of January and November 1807. By these, under pain of seizure and confiscation, she totally interdicts us from trading with every port or country at war with her, or from which the British flag is excluded: except indeed we choose to land our goods in Great Britain, and re-export them on the payment of such duties as shall be imposed by the British Parliament.—This is precisely the indulgence which we had while we were colonies; and if the British Parliament has the right to impose this tax on our trade, the principle of the revolution has vanished from under us; we relapse into subjection, and the blood of our fathers has been spilled in vain. We return to the ground which we occupied before the declaration of our independence, taxed by a British Parliament in which we are not represented, and that, without even the correlative claim of maternal support and protection.

Nor is it merely of commercial restrictions and spoliations that we have to complain against those nations: they seem to have vied with each other in adding insults to our injuries. Great Britain comes, within the line of our jurisdiction, to violate the sovereignty of our nation, by burning a French ship stranded upon our coast. France arrogates to herself the right of dictating our course towards Great Britain, and, by way of enforcing her dictate, she seizes and burns our ships upon the high seas, and threatens a confiscation of all American property sequestered by order of his imperial Majesty. Britain, determined not to be behind in this noble contest of insulting and outraging a nation whom she calls her friend, attacks an American ship of war within sight of our coast, and, in a manner, at once, the most perfidious and dastardly, murders a part of her crew, and carries off others of them to bondage or death.

If ever the wrongs and sufferings of a nation would justify a declaration of war, that declaration might long since have been made on the part of the United States. But war, if it can be avoided with honor, is not the policy of this nation. It is their true policy, as it is their sincere wish, to cultivate peace with all the world. The administration of the United States, influenced by this spirit of conciliation and friendship, has labored with equal zeal and energy to obtain the redress of our wrongs by amicable adjustment. These efforts have not, in the opinion of your committee, been either too often repeated or too long continued. They will convince the world, that peace is indeed our wish : and if at length we shall be forced into war, we shall take the field with that animated and firm determination which injured honor feels, when every effort at peace has been fairly exhausted and no alternatives remain but war, on the one hand, and disgrace and oppression on the other.

Our negotiations both with France and Great Britain, protracted to a length which only the purest spirit of peace could reconcile to itself, had sometimes worn the most pleasing aspect : when, in the course of the last winter, information of the hostile construction of the French edict, and of the meditated orders of the British council arrived in this country. At that time property of American citizens to a large amount, and a great number of American seamen were upon the ocean, embarked in commerce still active in spite of all previous restrictions. But these new measures, which Great Britain, at least, had the power to enforce, and which seem to have been projected by her with reference to the rich plunder then presented to her grasp, made it necessary on the part of our government to adopt a countervailing policy and save our citizens and their property from the ruin which hung over them. A declaration of war, considering the ascendancy of the British navy, instead of preventing, would have hastened that ruin. To have carried on our commerce, subject to the capture and confiscation menaced by those edicts and orders, would have been to have made that ruin certain. To have turned our trade into the channels pointed out by Great Britain, and to have pursued it on the conditions prescribed by her, would have been to return with our eyes open, to the degrading state of colonial vassalage. To have accepted the protection either of France or England, would have been to truckle to an aggressor, to have been precipitated at once into the wars of Europe, which if we survived, we might have had the consolation, at the end of it, to find ourselves French or British provinces. Under these circumstances, your committee believe that the administration of the United States advised the only measure of relief, compatible with our power, and at the same time with our honor. They advised the embargo, and it met the approbation of Congress, as it had done, under similar circumstances, during the administration of General Washington. As a measure of precaution, it has been completely successful. If it has failed in any degree, as a measure of constraint, your committee believe that it is not because our enemies have not felt its force, but because they believe we have felt it too sensibly : because the unfortunate opposition which the measure has met in some parts of the union, has inspired them with a fallacious hope, that we, ourselves, either could not or would not bear its privations. Your committee entertain a firm persuasion that those of our citizens, who, from the dictates of their judgment, and a sense of duty, have written or spoken against this measure, will themselves regret the opposition, when they see the manner in which it has been seized, and the insulting light in which it has been viewed by the British Governor of Canada and the British prime minister. The first, by inviting the citizens of this country to a breach of the embargo and promising them the protection of the British government, has evinced his impression that the opposition made to that measure did not proceed from objections to its policy, but from hostility to our own government, and attachment to that of Great Britain. He would not otherwise have dared so openly to make a discrimination between the people of this country and their government, to interpose himself between them, and insult them by a tender of British protection in violating the laws of the government of their choice. The British minister, George Canning, in his letter of September 23d, 1808, to Mr. Pinkney, repeats the indignity in terms still more offensive. He tenders the sympathies of his gracious majesty to the people of the United States, and, in effect, expresses his willingness, to interpose, in any manner, in his power, for their relief, even if it should be by placing the British shield between them and their government. It is believed that there is no man in whose bosom the spirit of an American resides, who can read and compare the Canadian address, and the ministerial letter, without remembering, that, although there is an ocean between us and Great Britain, there is none between us and Canada. As to the graciousness of his majesty, we have had sensible experience of that, from the year 1765 down to the present day. We desire no more of it. We have no reason to be solicitous for any further connexion with that prince, in whose vocabulary, friendship and hostility mean the same thing: as to his friendship, it is written in the plunder of our property and the blood of our citizens.

The construction placed by the British governor and minister on the opposition made to the embargo in this country, is one which we should all feel an interest in repelling. It contains an insult the most direct and poignant, not only to those citizens who have made the opposition, but to the country to which they belong. It is, in effect, saying to them that his gracious majesty regards them still as his subjects, and will suffer them to return to their allegiance as soon as they please: and this insolent overture is addressed to American citizens; addressed to them, at a time too, when the bones of those who fell in the war of our revolution, are still bleaching on our fields, and warriors live, who still recount to us the incidents of each battle.

To return to the embargo:—Your committee believe that its privations, in this state, at least, have been borne with a firmness worthy of the patriots of seventy-six: and they cannot forbear the expression of the hope, that the very prompt manner in which congress has determined to continue it, with the addition of non-intercourse with the offending powers, will dissipate the delusion under which they seem to have labored, in regard to the stability of the union of these states; and the firmness of the people who inhabit them will convince them that however distinguished by shades of political difference, the people of the United States are but as one man in repelling and punishing foreign aggressions, from whatsoever quarter they may come.

Your committee have thought it expedient, thus briefly, to bring together, to the recollection of the house, the most prominent features of that system of oppression, which France and Great Britain have practised upon us; in order to shew that it is a system, which involves the prostration of our most sacred rights, and, if permitted to go on, the final subjugation of our country. Your committee cannot withhold the expression of the sentiment, that by the repeated concessions of those two great belligerent powers, the civilized world seems to have been thrown back many centuries, into ancient barbarism and darkness. The lights furnished by those great luminaries who have written on the Laws of Nations, and who, (in the language of a Virginian patriot, now no more,) "have held up the torch of science to a benighted world," have been totally thrown aside, obscured and extinguished; and the mild law of reason and right has given way to the law of brutal fury and force.

It is by the operation of these causes, that the United States have been brought to the crisis in which they have now to act: our commerce, in the full tide of its prosperity, arrested and stagnated; our most valuable and sacred rights invaded and torn from us ; our citizens murdered or impressed and held in bondage ; our sovereignty, as a nation, trampled on and despised. Under these circumstances, what remains for us, but to give to our government the assurance that we are with them, and that we will support them, so long as the God of our Fathers shall vouchsafe to give us life and strength !

1. Resolved, That the aggressions of Great Britain and France have infringed our honor ; have violated our rights ; have usurped upon our sovereignty as an independent nation.

2. Resolved, That it is better for us to cease to exist as a nation, than to exist under dishonor and violated rights—Wherefore,

3. Resolved, That we will stand by the government of our country ; and that we will support them with the last cent of our treasure, and the last drop of our blood, in every measure, either of defence or offence, which they may deem expedient, to vindicate our injured honor and our violated rights.

Resolutions disapproving the Amendment proposed by the Legislature of Pennsylvania, to the Constitution of the United States.

[Agreed to by both Houses, January 26th, 1810.]

THE Committee to whom was referred the communication of the governor of Pennsylvania, covering certain resolutions of the legislature of that state, proposing an amendment to the constitution of the United States, by the appointment of an impartial tribunal to decide disputes between the state and federal judiciary, have had the same under their consideration, and are of opinion, that a tribunal is already provided by the constitution of the United States ; to wit : the Superior Court, more eminently qualified from their habits and duties, from the mode of their selection, and from the tenure of their offices to decide the disputes aforesaid in an enlightened and impartial manner than any other tribunal which could be created.

The members of the Supreme Court are selected from those in the United States who are most celebrated for virtue and legal learning ; not at the will of a single individual, but by the concurrent wishes of the President and Senate of the United States : they will therefore have no local prejudices and partialities.

The duties they have to perform lead them necessarily to the most enlarged and accurate acquaintance with the jurisdiction of the federal and several state courts together, and with the admirable symmetry of our government. The tenure of their offices enables them to pronounce the sound and correct opinions they may have formed, without fear, favor or partiality.

The amendment to the constitution proposed by Pennsylvania seems to be founded upon the idea, that the federal judiciary will, from a lust of power, enlarge their jurisdiction to the total annihilation of the jurisdiction of the state courts; that they will exercise their will instead of the law and the constitution.

This argument, if it proves any thing, would operate more strongly against the tribunal proposed to be created, which promises so little, than against the supreme court, which, for the reasons given before, have every thing connected with their appointment calculated to ensure confidence. What security have we, were the proposed amendment adopted, that this tribunal would not substitute their will and their pleasure, in place of the law? The judiciary are the weakest of the three departments of government, and least dangerous to the political rights of the constitution; they hold neither the purse nor the sword, and even, to enforce their own judgments and decrees, must ultimately depend upon the executive arm. Should the federal judiciary however, unmindful of their weakness, unmindful of the duty which they owe to themselves and their country, become corrupt, and transcend the limits of their jurisdiction, would the proposed amendment oppose even a probable barrier in such an improbable state of things?

The creation of a tribunal, such as is proposed by Pennsylvania, so far as we are enabled to form an idea of it from the description given in the resolutions of the legislature of that state, would, in the opinion of your committee, tend rather to invite than prevent a collision between the federal and state courts. It might also become, in process of time, a serious and dangerous embarrassment to the operations of the general government.

Resolved therefore, That the legislature of this state do disapprove of the amendment to the constitution of the United States, proposed by the legislature of Pennsylvania.

Resolved also, That his excellency the governor, be and he is hereby requested to transmit forthwith a copy of the foregoing preamble and resolutions to each of the Senators and Representatives of this state in Congress, and to the executive of the several states in the union, with a request that the same be laid before the legislatures thereof.

Resolutions on the subject of Military Claims to Western Lands.

[Agreed to by both Houses, February 6th, 1810.]

RESOLVED, That the Senators of this state in the Congress of the United States, be instructed, and the representatives requested, to use their best efforts to procure a further continuance of "an act to extend the time for locating Virginia military land warrants, for returning surveys thereon, to the office of the secretary of the department of war, and appropriating lands for the use of schools in the Virginia military reservation, in lieu of those heretofore appropriated," approved the second of March, one thousand eight hundred and seven.

Resolved, That the Senators of this state in the Congress of the United States, be instructed, and the Representatives be requested, to use their best efforts to obtain the passage of a law by Congress, appropriating such waste and unappropriated lands as may be thought proper, for the purpose of satisfying bounties, due from the state of Virginia to her officers and soldiers of the state line, and marines; the fund appropriated for that purpose having passed to the state of Kentucky, since the first day of May, one thousand seven hundred and ninety-two; and there being still a number of claims of the above description unsatisfied, and which the state of Virginia has disabled herself from satisfying by her donations of lands to Congress.

Resolved, That our Senators in Congress be instructed, and our Representatives be requested to use their exertions to extinguish the Indian claim within the boundaries of the state of Kentucky, and to confirm the titles of all locations for military services therein made.

Resolved, That his excellency the governor of this state be requested to transmit copies of the foregoing resolutions to the Senators and Representatives of this state, in the Congress of the United States.

Resolutions approving the course pursued by the Government of the United States in relation to Great Britain, and Foreign Affairs in general.

[Agreed to by both Houses, February 7th, 1810.]

THE General Assembly of Virginia having, at the last and preceding sessions, so fully expressed their strong and decided approbation of the course pursued by the general government, in relation to the contending powers of Europe, would deem it unnecessary, at this time, to renew the expression of their sentiments, if the arrangement concluded in April last, with David M. Erskine, the accredited minister of his Britannic Majesty, had not been perfidiously disavowed by his government, and if his successor Francis J. Jackson, after having grossly insulted the government of this country, had not made an unwarrantable and insidious appeal to the nation. In this situation of our affairs, it is the sacred duty of every part of the nation to declare their determination to stand forward, firm and united, in support of the general government, in their laudable efforts to defend the rights of this country, against the continued and growing aggressions of the great and haughty nations of Europe:

Therefore resolved, That the course which has been pursued, as well in regard to the arrangement concluded in April last, with David M. Erskine, minister plenipotentiary of his Britannic Majesty, as with respect to the subsequent correspondence with, and dismissal of his successor, Francis J. Jackson, and in relation to our foreign affairs in general, has confirmed the general assembly of Virginia in the exalted opinion which they entertained of the justice and wisdom, the firmness, decision and patriotism of the present Executive of the United States.

Resolved, That the general assembly of Virginia, being deeply impressed with the necessity of union among the people, and devotion to the government, do hereby solemnly pledge themselves to support the general government, in all such measures as may be deemed necessary for the defence of the rights, the interests, and the honor of the nation.

Preamble and Resolution instructing the Senators, and recommending the Representatives from this state in the Congress of the United States, to use their efforts in opposing the renewal of the Charter of the Bank of the United States.

[Agreed to by both Houses, January 23d, 1811.]

THE General Assembly of Virginia view with the most serious concern the late attempts which have been made to obtain from Congress a renewal of the charter incorporating the bank of the United States. This assembly are deeply impressed with the conviction that the original grant of that charter was unconstitutional ; that Congress have no power whatever to renew it ; and that the exercise of such a power would be not only unconstitutional, but a dangerous encroachment on the sovereignty of the states—Therefore,

Resolved, That the Senators of this state in the Congress of the United States be instructed, and our Representatives most earnestly requested, in the execution of their duties as faithful representatives of their country, to use their best efforts in opposing by every means in their power the renewal of the charter of the bank of the United States.

Resolutions appointing Commissioners to view James River from the Upper end of the Canal, to the highest point of navigation at the mouth of Dunlap's Creek, and for other purposes.

[Agreed to by both Houses, February 4th, 1811.]

WHEREAS it is a matter of the greatest importance, not only to the good people of this state, but to our brethren of the western states, that a better and more direct communication with the Atlantic should be opened betwixt the eastern and western waters—therefore, Resolved, That Wilson C. Nicholas, James Breckenridge, William Caruthers, Andrew Donnelly, junior, and William J. Lewis, gentlemen, be appointed commissioners, whose duty it shall be to view accurately, and make report thereof to the next general assembly of this state, James river from the upper end of the canal to the highest point of navigation at the mouth of Dunlap's creek; to mark out the most practicable way, if any, from the mouth of Dunlap's creek, for a canal to Greenbrier river; and to view that river to it's mouth, as well as the New river to the great falls of the Kanawha, to take the difference of altitude of the mouth of Dunlap's creek, and that point on Greenbrier river contemplated in this resolution.

Resolved also, That William J. Lewis, of Campbell, Isaac Otey, of Bedford, Matthew Harvey, of Botetourt, William Herbert, of Monroe, and Samuel Browne, of Greenbrier, gentlemen, be, and they are hereby appointed commissioners to view and mark out the nearest and most direct way for a turnpike road, from the road called the Buckingham road, near Robert Hunter's, to Greenbrier courthouse, to pass through Lynchburg, the Peaks of Otter, the town of Monroe, and by the Sweet Springs. And it shall be the duty of the commissioners to make report thereof to the next general assembly of this state.

Preamble and Resolutions respecting the claim of the Virginia Officers and Soldiers of the late Continental and State Lines.

[Agreed to by both Houses, February 2d, 1811.]

THE Committee to whom was referred a resolution respecting the claim of the Virginia officers and soldiers of the late continental and state lines, and such part of the Governor's letter as relates to that subject, have, according to order, had the same under consideration, and agreed to the following report :

Whereas the Congress of the United States did, by an act passed on the twenty third day of March, one thousand eight hundred and four, declare and enact, "That the line run under the direction of the surveyor general of the United States, from the source of the Little Miami, towards the source of the Scioto, and which binds on the east the surveys of the lands of the United States, shall, together with its course continued to the Scioto river, be considered and held as the western boundary line, north of the source of the Little Miami, of the territory reserved by the state of Virginia, between the Little Miami and Scioto rivers for the use of the officers and soldiers of the continental line of that state: Provided, that the state of Virginia shall within two years after the passing of this act recognize such line as the boundary of the said territory ;"

And whereas the general assembly of this state have passed no act recognizing the line run as aforesaid ;

And whereas it is important to the officers and soldiers of the continental line of this state, as well as to the United States, that a line separating the said reserved territory from the adjacent lands of the United States, should be accurately run, according to the true intent and meaning of the deed of cession, made by the commissioners of this state to the United States, on the first of March, one thousand seven hundred and eighty four, of the territory north west of the Ohio,

Resolved, That the Senators representing this state in the Congress of the United States be instructed, and that the delegates from this state in the House of Representatives be requested, to adopt such measures as to them may appear most expedient to procure a line to be run, according to the true intent and meaning of the deed of cession aforesaid, by commissioners duly empowered to act on the part of the United States, jointly with an equal number of commissioners to be appointed on the part of this commonwealth.

Whereas the general assembly of this commonwealth, on the second day of January, in the year one thousand seven hundred and eighty-one, did by a resolution declare their intention to cede to the Congress of the United States, for the general benefit of the union, the territory belonging to this commonwealth, lying north west of the Ohio river, on certain conditions expressed in the said resolution ; one of which conditions was in the words following, to wit ; That in case the quantity of good lands of the south east side of the Ohio, upon the waters of Cumberland river and the Green river, and the Tennessee river, which have been reserved by law for the Virginia troops on continental establishment, and upon their own state establishment, should (from the North Carolina line bearing in further upon the Cumberland lands than was expected) prove insufficient for their legal bounties, the deficiency shall be made up to the said troops in good lands to be laid off between the rivers Scioto and Little Miami, on the north west side of the river Ohio in such proportions, as have been engaged to them by the laws of Virginia ;

And whereas a committee of the Congress of the United States, to whom the said resolution was referred, did report that the above recited condition, named in their report, " the fifth condition," was reasonable, and ought to be acceded to by congress, and the same was accordingly agreed to as one of the conditions on which the proposed cession was to be accepted ;

And whereas it appears that the said committee, in stating the said fifth condition, which they undertake to recite in their said report, did inadvertently leave out the words, " and upon their own state establishment ;"

And whereas the general assembly of this commonwealth, on the twentieth day of October, in the year one thousand seven hundred and eighty-three, passed " an act authorising the delegates of this state in Congress to convey to the United States in Congress assembled, all the right of this commonwealth to the territory north westward of the river Ohio," upon the terms on which Congress had agreed to accept the cession of the said territory ; and in reciting the said fifth condition, copied the same as it stood in the report of the said committee of Congress, and not as it was originally proposed by the general assembly of this commonwealth, and actually agreed to by the Congress of the United States ; And whereas a deed of cession was executed on the first day of March, in the year one thousand seven hundred and eighty four, in conformity to the said act of the twentieth October, one thousand seven hundred and eighty-three ;

And whereas the officers and soldiers of the Virginia line on state establishment, possessing the same high claim to the gratitude of their country, and to compensation for their services, which has been so justly admitted as to the officers and soldiers of the Virginia line on continental establishment, have, by this oversight, in many instances lost the benefit and advantages which the general assembly of this commonwealth intended to bestow, and which it was their duty then, and which it is no less now the duty of this assembly to secure for them by every effort in their power ;

Resolved, That the senators representing this state in the Congress of the United States be instructed, and the delegates from this state be requested, to use their best efforts to obtain from the Congress of the United States an act authorising the officers and soldiers of the Virginia line on state establishment, their heirs or assigns, to locate the warrants, which they may hold for lands granted for military services, on lands within the limits of the territory reserved by this commonwealth according to the true intent and meaning of the said fifth condition of the said cession.

And whereas it may eventually appear that the good lands lying within the limits aforesaid may not be sufficient to satisfy the claims of the officers and soldiers of the Virginia line on state establishment, in addition to those of the officers and soldiers of the Virginia line on continental establishment ;

And whereas the faith of the commonwealth is equally pledged to the officers and soldiers employed in the marine service of this state, and to other persons who performed meritorious services during the revolution ; and, in consequence of the cession made as aforesaid to the United States, this commonwealth has been unable to comply with engagements which ought to be completely fulfilled ;

Resolved, That the senators representing this state in the Congress of the United States be instructed, and the delegates from this state be requested, to use their best efforts to procure the consent of Congress to a law, providing, in case the good lands in the said territory shall not be sufficient, other lands in some territory belonging to the United States, out of which the claims stated in the preamble to this resolution may be satisfied.

Resolved, That the executive be requested to cause a statement to be prepared and transmitted to the senators and representatives from this state in Congress, shewing as accurately as may be the amount of the unsatisfied claims for land belonging to the officers and soldiers of the Virginia line on state establishment, to those officers and soldiers who were employed in the marine service of this commonwealth, and to those meritorious persons to whom special donations of land were intended to have been made,

RESOLUTIONS, &c.

Preamble and Resolutions on the subject of the Measures of the General Government relative to the Belligerent Powers of Europe.

[Agreed to by both Houses, January 25, 1812.]

THE General Assembly of Virginia have beheld, with deep sensibility, the flagrant violations which the great belligerents of Europe have practised upon the rights of neutrality, as established upon the principles of universal law, and sanctioned by the acquiescence of the whole civilized world for many ages.—These violations have driven all the nations of Europe into a war, alike unexampled in its ravages, and its consequences ; and, whilst the United States have kept out of its vortex, and most scrupulously adhered to the duties devolved upon them, by treating all with equal impartiality ; they have, from year to year, indulged the delusive hope that reflection would bring back the aggressors to a sense of justice, and returning reason would ensure to the long violated immunities of the person and property of their citizens an exemption from the war committed upon them. France has paused in her career of hostility, and thereby afforded to her rival, England, an opportunity of performing her solemn promises without a compromise of her pride ; and it was expected by the government and people of the United States, that the proofs of this pause, presented in an unquestionable shape to the British ministry, would have been promptly followed by a repeal of the Orders in Council ; but fatal experience has produced the painful conviction, that in this just expectation they have been mistaken. And, regardless of all principle, the bold avowal has been made by Great Britain, the permitted admission of her fabrics into the continent of Europe, through neutral vessels, was an indispensable preliminary to the ter nation of her aggressions ; a condition which the United States have no demand in relation to the produce of their own soil or manufactories which their honor forbids them to demand, at the instance and for the benefit of another. With a knowledge of this avowal, and the daily evidence that Britain executes her orders in their living spirit, which is war upon us of the most aggravated species, a further indulgence of hope is allied with disdain and forbearance becomes criminal. And, although this Assembly confide in the patriotism of the Congress and Executive of the United States, to assert the rights of the nation, in the manner its honor requires ; and, as regards ourselves, this expression of their opinion may be superfluous ; yet, influenced by the examples of preceding legislatures, at times less momentous than the present ; and, apprehensive that their silence will be misconstrued into indifference or distrust ; more especially, as the minister plenipotentiary of Great Britain, in his correspondence with the government of the United States recently published, has opposed to the act of the Executive, and the evidence on which it is predicated, a presumed disagreement, as to the fact upon which he decides the justice of the measure that he had adopted, “ by all the legal authorities of the United States ;” and because we believe the measures of hostility pursued by the British government against us are persevered in, in the belief that we are a divided people ; this assembly declare their conviction to be, that notwithstanding “ all the legal authorities of this state,” but the people also, from whom our former derive their powers, concur in the sentiment of confidence in the government of the Union, and a firm resolution to support it in the redemption of its plighted faith, “ to maintain the rights, honor and independence of the United States.”—And, actuated by a sacred regard for the constitutional liberties of United America, sanctioned by the wisdom of their fathers, and consecrated with their blood, they will not withhold the testimony of their confidence, and the solemn assurance of their co-operation, to meet the crisis of the firmness of men, and the determination of free-men—Therefore,

1. Resolved, That this Assembly, speaking, as they believe they do, the voice of the people of this commonwealth, have viewed with approbation the usual course with which just remonstrances have been made by the general government for the purpose of obtaining from Great Britain, by honorable negotiation, redress of the many wrongs inflicted upon us by her Orders in Council, and measures equally hostile to the interest of the United States.

2. Resolved, as the opinion of this Assembly, That, however highly we prize the blessings of peace, and however we may deprecate the evils of war, the period has now arrived, when peace, as we now have it, is disgraceful, and dishonorable.

3. Resolved, That this assembly will support the general government in all constitutional and legitimate measures which may be adopted in vindication of the rights and interests of the people of the United States, and in support of the character and dignity of the government thereof ; and for these purposes pledge “ our lives, our fortunes and our sacred honor.”

4. Resolved, That the Executive of this state be requested to transmit the foregoing preamble and resolutions to the Executive and Legislative departments of the general government.

No. II.

Preamble and Resolutions asserting the right of the state Legislatures to instruct their Senators in the Congress of the United States; and disapproving the conduct of the Senators from this state in Congress, in relation to the instructions given them at the last session, on the subject of the bank of the United States.

[Agreed to by both Houses, February 20th, 1812.]

THE General Assembly of Virginia having, at the last session, after mature deliberation on the subject, and under a solemn conviction that the institution of the Bank of the United States was unconstitutional, instructed the Senators of this state in Congress to oppose the renewal of the charter of that bank, it has since seen, with mingled regret and displeasure, the authority of its instruction denied by one Senator and disobeyed by the other.

No man, however exalted by station or character, could be so considerable as to excite the resentment of this assembly—a resentment unworthy its own dignity, and in a manner honorable to its object. It will never descend to inflict personal injury or insult on any individual; it is withheld at once by its justice, its benignity and its pride, from indulging in itself, or exciting in others, the spirit of persecution and revenge; least of all, can it ever be so devoid of self respect, as to enter into an altercation with its own servants. But under present circumstances, when a right of vital importance, the prostration of which might ultimately affect the existence of the state governments, the balance of the constitution, and the integrity of the union, is openly questioned and denied, if this assembly were to pass the subject over in silence, it might, perhaps, properly be inferred, that it retreated from its claim of right, in humble submission, or abandoned it as an idle, or yielded it as an unjust pretension.

Whether the General Assembly has been guilty of an act of usurpation, or its Senators of culpable disobedience, let the world judge. This assembly will never disdain to give the reasons of its conduct.

There can be no doubt, that the scheme of a representative republic was derived to our forefathers from the constitution of the English House of Commons; and that that branch of the English government, whatever it be now in practice, was in its origin, and in theory always has been, purely republican. It is certain too that the statesmen of America, in assuming that as the model of our institutions, designed to adopt it here in its purest form, and with its strictest republican tenets and principles. It becomes, therefore, an enquiry of yet greater utility than curiosity, to ascertain the sound doctrines of the constitution of the English House of Commons, in regard to this right of the constituent to instruct the representative. For the position may safely be assumed that the wise and virtuous men, who framed our constitutions, thoroughly versed, as they undoubtedly were, in the English doctrines of representation, designed, that in the United States the constituent should have at least as much, if not a great deal more influence over the representative, than was known to have existed, time immemorial, in England. Let us then interrogate the history of the British nation. Let us consult the opinions of their wise men.

Instances abound in parliamentary history of formal instructions from the constituent to the representative, of which, though doubtless a stricter search would disclose many more, the following may suffice:—In 1640, the knights of the shire for Dorset and Kent informed the Commons, that they had in charge from their constituents seven articles of grievances, which they accordingly laid before the House, where they were received and acted on. In the 33d year of Charles II. the citizens of London instructed their members to insist on the bill for excluding the Duke of York (afterwards King James II.) from the succession to the throne ; and their representative said, " that his duty to his electors obliged him to vote for the bill."—At a subsequent election, in 1681, in many places, formal instructions were given to the members returned, to insist on the same exclusion bill : we know from history, how uniformly and faithfully those instructions were obeyed. Instructions are still extant, on the subject of the relations between England and France in 1701. The peace of Utrecht gave occasion, in 1713, to numerous instructions from various parts of England : those of London, particularly, are in the most authoritative tone. In 1741, the citizens of London instructed their members to vote against standing armies, excise laws, the septennial bill, and a long train of evil measures, already felt, or anticipated ; and expressly affirm their right of instruction—" we think it (say they) our duty, as it is our undoubted right, to acquaint you with what we desire and expect from you in discharge of the great trust we repose in you, and what we take to be your duty as our representative, &c." In the same year, instructions of a similar character were sent from all parts of England. In 1742, the cities of London, Bristol, Edinburgh, York and many others, instructed their members in parliament to seek redress against certain individuals suspected to have betrayed and deserted the cause of the people. And in 1769, the city of London instructed its members to guard with watchful diligence the trial by jury, the habeas corpus act—and on various other points.—It will be remarked, that some of the instances above quoted, relate to points of constitutional law, and some to those of policy ; and that most of them occurred about or since the revolution in 1688, at which time, and by which event, the English politicians tell us, their constitution was settled, the rights of the people ascertained, and the powers of every branch of their government limited and defined.

Instances are also on record of the deliberate formal acknowledgment of the right of instruction by the House of Commons itself, especially in old times.—Thus, the Commons hesitated to grant supplies to King Edward III. till they had the consent of their constituents, and desired that a new parliament might be summoned, which might be prepared with authority from their constituents.—Passing by other ancient precedents, one more instance shall be added, occurring in modern times, in the purest æra of the English constitution, (the reign of William III.) of an acknowledgment by the English Commons (in substance at least, if not in terms) of their absolute dependence on their constituents ; it will be found in the proposed remonstrance of the Commons, on the occasion of the king refusing his assent to the bill for free and impartial proceedings in parliament. Moreover, we are informed by authentic history, that formerly " when the Commons gave their answer touching the subsidy demanded for the wars, they desired leave to return into the country, to confer with their neighbours ;" and again, that the Commons " often refused to agree to propositions from the court, for this reason only, that they could not, till they went home and consulted with their constituents."

" Instructions (says a member of the House of Commons) ought to be followed implicitly, after the member has respectfully given his constituents his opinion of them : Far be it from me to oppose my judgment to 6000 of my fellow citizens." " The practice (says another) of consulting our constituents was good. I wish it was continued. We can discharge our duty no better, than in following the direction of those who sent us hither. That the people chuse is right because they chuse it." It were an endless labour to collect a catalogue of illustrious statesmen, the wisest and best England ever saw, who have, from time to time, publicly subscribed to these opinions : but it were impossible not to single out the name of Russel, who is particularly recorded to have acceded to the sentiment last quoted.

Without referring to the minor political authors, without number, as they are without fame, who have maintained these positions (quoted from one of them)–

“that the people have a right to instruct their representatives—that no man ought to be chosen that will not receive instructions—that the people understand enough of the interests of the country to give general instructions—that it was the custom formerly to instruct all the members, and the nature of the deputation shews that the custom was well grounded”—it is proper to mention, that the great constitutional lawyer Coke, though he flourished in the days of Queen Elizabeth, (whose attorney-general he was,) when prerogative was stretched to its uttermost bounds, and Sydney the martyr of freedom and republicanism, concur on this head.—Coke says “it is the custom of parliament, when any new device is moved for on the king’s behalf, for his aid, and the like, that the commons may answer, they dare not agree to it without conference with their counties. And Sydney (while he admits that the constituents cannot call the representatives to account, otherwise than by not re-electing them, if they disapprove their conduct,) maintains—“that members derive their power from those that chuse them—that those that give power do not give an unreserved power—that many members, in all ages, and sometimes the whole body of the commons have refused to vote, till they consulted with those who sent them—that the houses have often adjourned to give them time to do so—and if this were done more frequently, or if cities, towns and counties had on some occasions given instructions to their deputies, matters would probably have gone better in parliament than they have done.” In strict unison with these opinions of Sydney, are the inferences deducible from all the principles of government, maintained and established, concerning the nature of political trusts, by the apostle of truth and liberty, the immortal Locke, Blackstone indeed dissents—he denies the right of the constituent to instruct the representative :—but while the praise of classic and of legal learning is universally accorded him, the whigs of England (who concur with us, that government is a trust for the benefit of the governed) have uniformly denied the orthodoxy of his politics. The celebrated Edmund Burke, a man, it must be admitted, of profound knowledge, deep foresight and transcendent abilities, disobeyed the instructions of his constituents ; yet by placing his excuse on the ground that the instructions were but the clamor of the day, he seems to admit the authority of instructions soberly and deliberately given ; for he agrees, “he ought to look to their opinions,” (which he explains to mean their permanent settled opinions) “but not to the flash of the day ; and he says elsewhere, that he could not bear to shew himself “a representative, whose face did not reflect the face of his constituents—a face that did not joy in their joys and sorrow in their sorrows.” It is remarkable that, notwithstanding a most splendid display of warm and touching eloquence, the people of Bristol would not respect Mr. Burke, for this very offence of disobeying instructions.

It appears, therefore, that the right of the constituent to instruct the representative is firmly established in England, on the broad basis of the nature of representation. The existence of that right, there, has been demonstrated by the only practicable evidence, by which the principles of an unwritten constitution can be ascertained—history and precedent.

If in England, from the days of the youth and innocence of Parliament, while, yet the free spirit of her Saxon laws remained in original simplicity and purity—from the earliest, to the latest periods of her eventful history—throughout all the convulsions and vicissitudes she has undergone—the right to instruct their representative has been unceasingly claimed by the people, often exercised, sometimes formally acknowledged, and frequently implicitly obeyed by the House of Commons ; if their greatest constitutional lawyers, their purest patriots, their ablest statesmen, and those profound authors, who first revealed to the modern world the true nature of government, have, under various circumstances, and at dissipated periods of time, concurred in sanctioning, to the people of England, the great right of instruction ; who should presume to deny to the freemen of America, the same degree of control over their representatives ?

If, in England, over whose government, even in its theory and utmost purity, the people have no direct control, except in one branch of the Legislature—whose system of representation, compared with that of the United States, is at best but a numerous open aristocracy—where the representative is eligible from the great body of the nation, from the wide extent of the empire, without any qualification of local residence—the right of instruction has been uniformly asserted, and admitted, and enjoyed; much more unquestionable is it in the United States, where the people are acknowledged to be the only legitimate source of all legislation—where the representative and constituent bodies are more intimately connected by the constitution—where none can be a representative or senator who shall not, when elected, be an inhabitant of the state for which he is chosen.

It is deeply to be lamented, that in this country, the collection of the opinions of our own wise, good and great men, should be, as it is, so scanty and so rare. The doctrines of statesmen, most deeply skilled in political science, and especially in the principles of representative government, have sunk into oblivion, as themselves have sunk into the grave. The voice of our fathers is heard by their children, only in the murmurs of indistinct tradition—that voice, which might minister light to our minds, harmony to our opinions, stability to our principles, and veneration to our institutions. The authority of American statesmen in support of the general right of instruction, though it were certainly the best, is the least capable of distinct citation. Happily, that is not now necessary: how generally the right of instruction (as between the people and the state governments particularly) has been acknowledged, how little questioned, how often exercised, and how dearly valued, in Virginia at least, the memory of every man must abound with proofs.

The General Assembly therefore rest satisfied, that, in exercising the right of instructing the senators in Congress, it has advanced no novel pretension, as it will presently appear it has made no unjust one: and that, if example could justify disobedience to such a command, even that justification is wanting on the present occasion.

To view the subject upon principle.—The right of the constituent to instruct the representative body seems to result, clearly and conclusively, from the very nature of the representative system. Through means of that noble institution, the largest nation may, almost as conveniently as the smallest, enjoy all the advantages of government by the people, without any of the evils of democracy—precipitation, confusion, turbulence, distraction from the ordinary and useful pursuits of industry. And it is only to avoid those and the like mischiefs, that representation is substituted for the direct suffrage of the people in the office of legislation. The representative, therefore, must, in the nature of things, represent his own particular constituents only. He must, indeed, look on the general good of the nation; but he must look also, and especially to the interests of his particular constituents as concerned in the common weal; because the general good is but the aggregate of individual happiness. He must legislate for the whole nation: but laws are expressions of the general will: and the general will is only the result of individual wills fairly collected and compared: in order to which collection and comparison, (that is, in order to express the general will, in order to make laws) it is plain that the representative must express the will, and speak the opinions of the constituents that depute him.

It cannot be pretended that a representative is to be the organ of his own will alone; for then, he would be so far despotic. He must be the organ of others—of whom? not of the nation, for the nation deposes him not; but of his constituents, who alone know, alone have trusted, and can alone displace him. And if it be his province and his duty, in general, to express the will of his constituents to the best of his knowledge, without being particularly informed thereof; it seems impossible to contend, that he is not bound to do so, when he is so specially informed and instructed.

The right of the constituent to instruct the representative, therefore, is an essential principle of the representative system. It may be remarked, that wherever representation has been introduced, however unfavorable the circumstances under which it existed, however short its duration, however unimportant its functions, however dimly understood—the right of instruction has always been regarded as inseparably incidental to it. Not to mention other instances, which history affords, we are informed that “the procuradores, or members for Castile in the corte held at Madrid in the beginning of the reign of Charles V. excused themselves from granting the supplies he desired, because they had received no orders from their constituents; and afterwards receiving express orders not to do it, they gave Charles a flat denial. The same was the custom in France before that country was enslaved. The General Assemblies being laid aside, the same custom is still (latter end of 17th century) used in the lesser assemblies of the states in Languedoc and Bretagne.”

It is a maxim of all governments founded on contract, that no man be bound by laws to which he has not given his assent, either directly, or mediately by his representative, or virtually through representatives chosen by his fellow citizens, amongst whom he dwells, having the same general and local interests with himself. If the right of the constituent to instruct the representative be denied, a law might be enacted, according to all the forms of the constitution, and yet contrary to the very express will of every man in the community, the individual representatives themselves only excepted. If one representative may disobey the instructions of his constituents, the whole representative may disobey the whole constituent body. If then, a law were proposed, against which the nation solemnly and unanimously protested, and which the people with one voice instructed their representatives to oppose; if the representative might lawfully disobey, and should in fact disobey such instruction; here would be a law, binding on the people, enacted not only without, but directly against their consent.

A representative has indeed a wide field of discretion left him; and great is the confidence reposed in his integrity, fidelity, wisdom, zeal; but neither is the field of discretion boundless, nor the extent of confidence infinite: and the very discretion allowed him, and the very confidence he enjoys, is grounded on the supposition, that he is charged with the will, acquainted with the opinions, and devoted to the interests of his constituents.

But although the position be admitted, which indeed it seems impossible to deny, that the people have a right to instruct their immediate representatives, or that the people composing each state in their sovereign capacity, may instruct their Senators in Congress; it may still be denied, that the state legislatures have any such right of instruction.

It is obvious to remark, in the first place, that those who allow to the people of each state the exercise of this act of sovereignty, the instruction of their senators, and deny the same power to the state legislatures, give us the empty theory, and deny us the beneficial practice of such instructions. It is difficult to conceive how the people can give such instructions, otherwise than thro' their state legislatures.

The several state constitutions—saving to the people the sole right to alter, amend or abolish the forms of government—saving certain other great natural rights, which the legislatures are forbidden to touch—and excepting certain powers, specified in the constitution of the United States, which are transferred by the people and by the states, from the state governments to the general government—do certainly vest in the state legislatures every power and attribute of sovereignty, which the people themselves would otherwise exercise in person. Those legislatures are, in fact, in the daily exercise of all powers belonging to the state sovereignty, except those thus forbidden to them. Now, the power to instruct the senators of the states in Congress has not been forbidden by the state constitutions to the state legislatures, and retained by the people in their own hands. Therefore, the state legislatures may exercise this act of sovereignty, this right of instructing their senators, as properly as they may exercise any of those powers, which they exercise daily, without any doubt about their right, and which yet are not granted to them by any express delegation.

Of this doctrine, the whole history of all the American governments proves the justness. The state legislatures sent deputies to the first Congress; they formed the old articles of confederation of the United States; they sent deputies to the federal convention that framed the present constitution; and they called the conventions of the people which ratified that constitution. Had they any express grant of power to perform these important acts? Yet, was it ever doubted, that they had a rightful power? All these great acts of sovereignty are as much beyond the range of ordinary state legislation, as is this power of instructing Senators.

But this right of the state legislatures to instruct their Senators in Congress is yet more conclusively demonstrable from a view of the federal constitution, taken with its context, the old articles of confederation.

The articles of confederation were certainly nothing more than a perpetual solemn league and covenant between the state sovereignties. The federal convention was deputed to amend them. It, however, proposed a new system, which, in its construction of the House of Representatives, departs from the principles of the league, and is clearly national; but in that of the Senate adheres to those principles, and is clearly federative—federative, as well in the equality of representation as in the mode of election. This was no more, in effect, than engrafting so much of the former league upon the new constitution; making that branch of the government, as the whole had formerly been, the representative of the state sovereignties; and placing it, like the Congress under the articles of confederation, under the influence of the state legislatures. Now, the right of the state legislatures to instruct their delegates in Congress, under the confederation, never was doubted. The senators under the present constitution stand in the same relation to the state government. The Senate was designed, in truth, to form the balance of the new constitution; to check the consolidating tendencies of the other principles of the system, and to preserve the state governments inviolate. Such was certainly the contemporaneous exposition of the subject.

It has been asked by some, if the state legislatures may instruct their Senators, why may not the colleges of presidential electors instruct the president? The right of the state legislatures to instruct their Senators rests not solely on the ground that they elect them; but if it did, there is no similitude between the electoral and legislative body, in regard to the right of instruction. Instead of a parallel, there runs a contrast between them. The former exists, but a few weeks, is created for a single purpose, and when that is answered, is dissolved forever: the latter may be regarded as always in existence, is created for general purposes, and is the fair representative of the state sovereignties.—No one electoral body elects the President and Vice-President; each gives only the vote of one state; no one of them therefore can, with any colour of right, claim control over officers elected by the electors of all the states: whereas the state legislatures have the exclusive election of their Senators, who return to them for re-election. Every facility for action too is possessed by the one; to the other it would be impracticable to act at all. Besides, the President and the Senators are officers of very different character: he is truly the representative of the whole nation, elected by all, responsible to all; they are the representatives of the states, elected by the states, responsible to the states; and we naturally look to our particular representatives, to promote the objects we have at heart. To instruct the President were absolutely impossible.

It has been urged, that if the state legislatures may instruct their Senators in Congress, so may also the state executives. But the state executives are clearly, in no case, the electors of the senators; they are vested with the appointment during the recess of the legislatures, from mere necessity. And it is not the executive, but the legislative bodies of the states that are clothed with the state sovereignties: this is the great distinction.

The power of the state legislatures to interpose on questions of deep political interest, in the affairs of the general government, by way of instruction to their senators, and the obligation of such instructions, are sustained by authorities, the weight of which will not be resisted.

The celebrated authors of the Letters of Publius speak the following unequivocal language: "If the majority (in the general government) should be really disposed to exceed the proper limits, the community will be warned of the danger, and will have an opportunity of taking measures to guard against it. Independent of parties in the national legislature itself, as often as the period of discussion arrived, the state legislatures, who will always be not only vigilant but suspicious and jealous guardians of the rights of the citizens against encroachments from the federal government, will constantly have their attention awake to the conduct of the national rulers, and will be ready enough, if any thing improper appears, to sound the alarm to the people, and not only to be the voice, but if necessary, the arm of their discontent." And again—"It may safely be received as an axiom in our political system, that the state governments will, in all possible contingencies, afford complete security against invasion of the public liberty by the national authority. Projects of usurpation cannot be masked under pretences so likely to escape the penetration of select bodies of men, as of the people at large. The legislatures will have better means of information. They can discover the danger at a distance; and possessing all the organs of civil power, and the confidence of the people, they can at once adopt a regular plan of opposition, in which they can combine all the resources of the community. They can readily communicate with each other in the different states, and unite their common forces for the protection of their common liberty." Even the Federalist, then, agrees, that the state legislatures may interpose to prevent danger, or to resist usurpation; proportioning their opposition to the magnitude of the evil. But how interpose? By sowing the seeds of faction in silence? or by arms? or by public and dignified instructions? Let not those who deprecate intestine feuds and civil wars, deny the right or obligation of instructions.

The session of the General Assembly of Virginia, of 1799-1800, is memorable for "the report of a committee, to whom was referred the communications of various states, relative to the resolutions of the (then) last General Assembly of this state, concerning the alien and sedition laws." In this celebrated state paper, authoritative for the reasoning it contains, it became necessary to defend the state right of interposition in the affairs of the general government; and it is stated "to be a plain principle founded in common sense, illustrated by common practice, and essential to the nature of compacts, that where resort can be had to no tribunal superior to the authority of the parties, the parties themselves must be the rightful judges in the last resort, whether the bargain made has been pursued or violated. The constitution of the United States was formed by the sanction of the states, given by each in its sovereign capacity. It adds to the stability and dignity, as well as the authority of the constitution, that it rests on this legitimate and solid foundation. The states then, being parties to the constitutional compact, and in their sovereign capacity, it follows of necessity, that there can be no tribunal above their authority, (it is the sovereign authority of the states exercised by the Legislatures that is here spoken of) to decide in the last resort, whether the compact made by them be violated; and consequently, that as parties to it, they must themselves decide in the last resort, such questions as may be of sufficient magnitude to require their interposition."

If the passages above cited be orthodox, the main proposition which hath been above urged, to prove the right of a state legislature to instruct its senators, is established—that the state legislature is clothed with the general attributes of the state sovereignty. Those doctrines, too, afford a plain inference, that instructions from the constituent Legislatures to their Senators in Congress, are public acts within the sphere of that portion of the state sovereignty, not retained by the people, nor delegated by the constitution of the United States to the general government, but represented and possessed by the state legislatures.

And if those doctrines be correct, there will be an end also to that distinction, which has been insisted on, between instructions on constitutional points, which have been said not to be obligatory on a senator, and instructions on matters of policy, which are allowed to be obligatory. On the contrary, it would appear, that if there be any difference in the obligation of such instructions, those of the former description are of the stronger obligation; since the infraction of the bond of union gives the states the strongest claim to interfere; though measures of evil policy might be attempted, which would equally jeopardize the independence of all, and consequently the happiness of each, as any violation of the constitution.

The General Assembly will not offer additional argument to fortify the conclusive reasoning of The Federalist, or of the Assembly in 1799-1800, above referred to.

At the Session of the General Assembly of 1799-1800, also, various instructions were given to our then Senators in Congress. It is believed that neither the right, nor the obligation of those instructions was then questioned.—It cannot escape observation, that those instructions, as well as the report above mentioned, are sanctioned with the recorded assent of the same honorable Senator, who has since denied the obligation of the senator to obey, while he admitted the right of the state legislature to instruct; which is precisely the relation, not between the state legislature and senator, but between it and a member of the house of representatives: a senator is instructed; a representative requested. The honorable senator formerly voted to instruct our senators and to request our representatives. To instruct—is not merely to recommend: an instruction to a senator, in contradistinction to a request to a representative, implies a command. It is useless to offer proof, that the right to command implies the duty to obey. And it is hoped, that the language of the honorable senator was either not maturely considered or not correctly reported.

It hath been stated to the world, that the Legislature of Virginia instructed their Senators in 1808, to use their best endeavors to obtain amendments to the Constitution of the United States, which would, in effect, give the State Legislatures the right of recalling their respective Senators in Congress;—and that this instruction was substantially disobeyed. The fact may have been as stated. It is only mentioned here, that it may be remarked, that it passed without censure, only because it passed without notice. It never was understood as an act of resistance to instructions.

Various objections have been urged to this claim of the constituent, of a right to instruct the representative, on which it may be proper to bestow some attention.

The first objection that comes to be considered, lies chiefly against the right of the people to instruct their immediate representatives; and is grounded on the supposed impossibility of fairly ascertaining the sense of the constituent body. The impossibility is denied; it may often be matter of great difficulty. But then the duty of obedience resolves itself into a question, not of principle, but of fact—whether the right of instruction has been exercised or not. The representative cannot be bound by an instruction that is not given; but that is no objection to the obligation of an instruction actually given. And, at least, this objection cannot apply to instructions voted by a state legislature.

It has been urged, that representatives are not bound to obey the instructions of their constituents, because the constituents do not hear the debates, and therefore cannot be supposed judges of the matters to be voted. If this objection have force enough to defeat the right of instruction, it ought to take away, also, the right of rejecting the representative at a subsequent election. For it might be equally urged on that occasion, as against the right of instruction, that the people heard not the debate that enlightened the representative's mind—the reasons, that convinced his judgment, and governed his conduct. If the right of instruction be abandoned on this ground, the right of rejection should be yielded also. In other words, the principle, that mankind is competent to self government, should be renounced. The truth is, that our institutions suppose, that, although the representative ought to be, and generally will be, selected for superior virtue and intelligence, yet a greater mass of wisdom and virtue still reside, in the constituent body, than the utmost portion allotted to any individual.

But it has been said, that a state government may instruct its senators to violate the constitution of the United States—that a state, in actual insurrection against the general government, may instruct its senators to promote the cause of rebellion: and it is asked, whether the senator would be bound by such instruction, to violate the constitution he had sworn to preserve, and to overthrow the government he had sworn to defend?

It may be answered, in the first place, that the particular instruction, which forms the subject of present consideration, could by no possibility involve a breach of the constitution of the United States. It might, and in the opinion of this Assembly, would have been unconstitutional to charter the bank of the U. States anew; but surely, it could not possibly be deemed unconstitutional not to charter it.

As to the rest, without determining the point, which has been taken for granted, that a state in open rebellion against the general government would still be entitled to its representation in the Senate of the U. States, which, to say the least is extremely doubtful—it is admitted without difficulty, that if a state instruct its senator to give a vote plainly unconstitutional, or to raise the standard of rebellion, the senator is not bound to obey such instruction. Every case, such as that supposed, must stand upon its own peculiar circumstances: it supposes all bounds of right transcended, all legitimate rule prostrated: and the propriety of opposition must be determined by the nature of the injustice, the extent of the mischief, and the prudence of resistance. But it is no argument against the exercise of a lawful power, that it may be made the pretext for the assumption of an unlawful power. The right of instruction, rightfully exercised, with no evil intention, to no pernicious object, cannot be affected by the admission, that, if either a state government, or the general government, become corrupt and ambitious, and usurp tyrannical power, it may of right, and ought to be resisted. The admission is cheerfully made. The General Assembly of Virginia is incapable of affirming the exploded doctrine of non resistance.

Finally, it has been objected, that the instructions of the constituent are not obligatory on the representative, because the obligation insisted on is fortified with no sanction; the representative cannot be punished for his disobedience, and his vote is valid, notwithstanding his disobedience. It is true that there is no mode of legal punishment provided for this offence, this default of duty; and that the act of disobedience will not invalidate the vote. It is true, too, that a representative may perversely advocate a measure which he knows to be ruinous to his country; and that neither his vote will be invalidated by his depravity, nor can he be punished by law for his crime, heinous as it surely is. But it does not follow, that the one representative is not bound to obey the instructions of his constituents, any more than that the other is not bound to obey the dictates of his conscience. Both duties stand upon the same foundation; with almost all the great political and moral obligations. The noblest duties of man are without any legal sanction; the great mass of social duties—duties the most important, most sacred, most useful—our duties to our parents, to our children, to our wives, to our families, to our neighbour, to our country, our duties to God, are, for the most part, without legal sanction, yet surely not without the strongest obligation. The duty of the representative to obey the instructions of the constituent body cannot be placed on higher ground.

Such are the opinions of the General Assembly of Virginia, on the subject of this great right of instruction, and such the general reasons on which those opinions are founded. The subject is susceptible of various other, and very strong views, which are not pretermitted because they are not understood, but because they are deemed unnecessary.

1. Resolved therefore, That this Assembly doth highly and equally disapprove the conduct of both the Senators of this state in Congress, in relation to the subject of the Bank of the United States, and to the instructions concerning the same, given to the said Senators by the General Assembly at the last session.

2. Resolved, That it is the indubitable right of the State Legislatures to instruct their senators in Congress, on all points, either constitutional or politic, whenever the magnitude of the occasion shall require such interference; and that, by consequence, it is the bounden duty of the Senators to obey such instructions; provided the instructions to be given and obeyed require not the Senator to commit a violation of the Constitution, or an act of moral turpitude.

3. Resolved, That, after this solemn expression of the opinion of the General Assembly, on the right of instruction, and the duty of obedience thereto, no man ought henceforth to accept the appointment of a Senator of the United States from Virginia, who doth not hold himself bound to obey such instructions.

RESOLUTION

Requesting the Executive to transmit copies of the Preamble and Resolutions, on the subject of the Right of Instruction.

[Agreed to by both Houses, February 20th, 1812.]

RESOLVED, That the Executive be requested to transmit a copy of the Preamble and Resolutions adopted by both Houses of Assembly, at the present session, on the subject of the right of the State Legislatures to instruct the Senators of the several States in Congress, and the conduct of the Senators of this state, in regard to instructions given them at the last session of Assembly, to each of the Senators of this state in Congress, and to the Executives of each of the United States.
